Proper Management of Fertilized Pasture Essential to Greatest Profit

The use of complete fertilizer on pastrues for the milking herd can result in maximum profit only when the fertilizer is so applied and the pasture so managed as to result in the maximum saving in barn feeding expenses and the maximum amount of grazing at the time when extra grass is needed. Men who have had several years' experience with the practice state that complete fertilizer gives much better results when applied very early, say late March or early April, than when applied at a later date, presumably because the plant foods are soaked into the soil, where the roots are, more effectively when the fertilizer is applied early enough to have the benefit of all of the spring rains and perhaps a late snow or two. When fertilizer is applied at this early date it may be depended upon in a normal season to give good grazing ten days or two weeks in advance of unfertilized land. That early grazing, which one would not have but for the fertilizer, is worth the maximum amount because it comes when it is needed and replaces barn feeding. It would be worth much less at the normal peak of good grazing in June.

The best method of management seems to be to apply the fertilizer early, turn the cows on to the fertilized plot as soon as the grass is large enough to provide really good grazing and keep them there until the whole plot is grazed rather closely, then shift them to the unfertilized land, which should be in fair condition for grazing by that time, and keep them entirely off the fertilized plot until it has made a growth of three or four inches.

By that time, the unfertilized pasture is likely to be getting short, at which time the cows can be turned back on to the fertilized plot. By this method of management, the extra grass produced by the fertilization is used just before and just after the normal peak of best grazing on untreated land and hence yields the greatest possible return in terms of manager feeding saved and increased milk production.

If the fertilization and grazing is not managed about as outlined, there is a strong probability that the extra grass produced by the fertilizer will come on or at least be eaten by the cows at the period when the unfertilized pastures are at their best and consequently will be of minimum rather than maximum value to the dairyman.

Feed The Lawn

Most lawn soils which are lacking in nitrogen and lawn grasses respond to applications of nitrogenous fertilizers. R. A. Oakley of the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommends the annual application of two to three pounds of Ammonium sulphate to 1000 square feet of lawn, applied in a water solution or mixed with sand or loam and then well watered after application in early spring. One to two pounds should be similarly applied in late spring, and a similar quantity in early fall. "This treatment, if consistently followed should benefit the lawn greatly."

UNCLE SAM HAS A "NAVY ON LAND"

We are hearing a great deal these days about our splendid fleet of warships and about navai limitation thru international agreement. Few people perhaps realize that a great deal of onr naval establishment is on land, and there are more than a thousand units of this kind scattered over the United States and its outlying possessions. In an intercsting article under the title "Uncle Sam's Navy on Land," Oliver McKee, Jr., says in the current issue of the National Republic:

"The navy yards, collectively, are a vast enterprise. Even the smallest of them, that at Washington, embrace 121 acres, while the largest, that at Mare Island, covers over 1,500 acres. Each has anywhere from 150 to 500 individual buildings. These figures help to give an idea of the physical size of these properties. The navy yards have railroad tracks, sewers, overhead and underground wires and cables, power plants, coal and oil fuel plants, fences and walls, marine railways for dry docking small crafts, reservoirs, tanks and other public works, locomotives, railroad cars, motor trucks and automobiles, land and floating derricks, concrete mixers, similar equipment of many kinds.

"The navy yards are responsible for the maintenance of the fleet. That is, perhaps, their most important function and the value of each is in direct proportion to the services which it renders to the fleet. The average age of our naval vessels is increasing each year, and this makes necessary an increasing expenditure for repairs to keep them in a satisfactory operating condition. The yards, too, have done, and are doing, much improvement work for various vessels of the fleet. They have modernized battleships, added new guns to cruisers, helped to make submarines more safe through the installation of protective devices, etc. The navy yard, like the efficient seaman, is a jack of all trades. Its commandant can never tell what new job the morrow will bring to him and he and his men must be ready for it. One of the most interesting works recently undertaken has been the restoration of the frigate Constitution, the famous 'Old Ironsides.' This work is being carried on in the Boston navy yard, quite appropriately, and Old Ironsides is now able to take the water again.

"The Bureau of Ordnance has been a pioneer in developing heavy machinery, high grade steels and alloys, and thus, in an indirect way, has fostered the manufacture of many articles that have filled a real need in peace-time pursuits. National defense needs have required the expenditures of considerable sums for experimental purposes. Patriotic inventors have been given a chance to develop their ideas which they could not have enjoyed had they never had anything more than their own resources to draw upon. In manufacturing forged steel contributed to the advance of the steel industry in the United States. Similarly, chemical research necessary for making armor plate and gun forgings has given to private industry knowledge that has been of great commercial value and importance. Though a military specialty, the perfection of fire control equipment has resulted in perfecting the gyrocompass and other navigational instruments. Because the supply of German optical glass was cut off, the opening of the World War paralyzed the optical industry of the nation. The Bureau of Ordnance was instrumental in encouraging and fostering the domestic manufacturers, with the result that under the stimulus thus given, the American industry today is one of the most advanced in any country in the world.

"In the same way, the bureau of engineering, construction and repair, and yards and docks, have helped advance the course of science. Developments in the navy have found a wide use and value outside. The great dry docks of the navy are available for the use of merchant ships when other facilities are not at hand. The docks therefore have a commercial use, as well as a military and a naval use.

DOING GOOD IN NICARAUGA

Some time ago an epidemic of smallpox broke out in Nicaragua near the Costa Rican border. United States army engineers are in that section of the Western Hemisphere engaged in the task of making a survey for the proposed Nicaraguan Canal. The situation became serious and the army medical corps with the engineers immediately got busy and as a result, the epidemic at last reports was under control.

This is only another little story of what our army and its scientists have done in Latin-America. Although certain "liberals" who are opposed to our policy in Latin-America declare that we have only imperialists ambitions, it is a fact that every intervention of the United States army into the affairs of a Latin-American country has resulted in benefit not only of the persons whom it was designed to protect but to the country which had some of its territory occupied.

If Uncle Sam was imperialistically inclined toward Latin-America he would have had some of the countries to the south of us ground under his heel long before this. But this has not been the case. He has only intervened when it was necessary to save lives and property, and wherever the army and the marines have gone there have been better sanitary conditions and better living conditions after the Yankees have left.

How Cuba was cleared up after the departure of the Spaniards is well known to everyone, and the record of the past few years in Hawaii is one of constructive effort to help the natives toward a higher standard of living.

Have you heard any of the so-called "intellectuals" arise anywhere to commend the action of the United States army doctors in stamping out this latest smallpox epidemic in Nicaragua? Have you heard any praise for this purely benevolent effort from those who like to call Uncle Sam an imperialist in his Latin-American efforts? Not a word has been sounded.

The insincerity of these critics of Uncle Sam is best evidenced by the fact that they can hecloud the issues and embarrass the government in carrying out of its policies. Praise for any service like the kind recently rendered in Nicaragua is beyond their ken. No wonder thea, that there efforts give rise to the suspicion in the minds of thinking Americans that in their criticism of this government they are actuated not so much by motives friendly to the people of Latin-America, but by a desire to do something to help European propaganda in the countries to the south of us. This is only a part of the general program to make Uncie Sam always in the wrong.

An Interesting Fact.

The First Women Jurors

Maryland, probably to a larger extent than any of the other original colonies is replete with interesting facts.

In an earlier "Interesting Facts" article reference was made to the woman frequently referred to as the "first suffragist." Reading further of the early days of this colony, we are more and more convinced that the early settlers were exceptionally liberal in their views and broad minded in their administration of justice and affairs of state.

When we consider that in the sixteenth century, and indeed until much later, women were considered merely a society adornment and home-keeper, and man was intrusted to the serious affairs of the nation, it is refreshing in this day of political and business equality, to find that among the first of the warrants granting land in Maryland, was one issued in 1638 to Mistress Mary Troughton, granting her "as much land as any of the first adventurers had in respect to the transportation of five persons thither under the rent mentioned in the first conditions."

In addition to the activities of the women of the province in those days in acting as administrators and executors of estates, it is rather astonishing to learn, especially in view of the controversy raging within the past few years concerning women serving on juries, that this duty was performed in courts of justice more than two hundred and fifty years ago in Maryland.

In the Generai Provincial Court held at Patuxent, September 22, 1656, it was ordered "that a jury of able women be empanelled and to give their verdict to the best of their judgment" in a certain criminai case then pending.

Again in 1667 the court records of Kent county show that a similar jury was empaneiled to try one Hannah Jenkins on a serious charge of which she was acquitted by the jury, as its recorded verdict shows.

Just two hundred and seventy-four years after empenelling the first recorded jury of women, a special session of the General Assembly of Maryland was called to pass laws enabling women to register and vote.

Thus we can assume that the homage to woman, for which Maryland is noted, has been transmitted in a direct line of inheritance through the centuries to the present generation.

In today's Republican considerable space is used in advertising at tax sale a number of pieces of real estate for the non-payment of taxes for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929. While it is not the intention or desire of county officials to unnecessarily embarrass taxpayers in thus advertising their properties for sale, it is nevertheless incumbent upon them to do so in order to comply with the law.

MT. LAKE PARK

While it is true that there has been a recession in all lines of business here as elsewhere, yet news dispatches indicate there is an upward trend all along the line. We can each do our share to help this along by being a little more optimistic. Stop thinking and talking hard times. Stop railing at the wrongs, misdeeds and unrighteousness (if any) of the present generation. Why, even before the time of Abraham, men were claiming that the world was degenerate; that the world was coming to an end, and that children no longer obeyed their parents.

A free translation from an Assyrian tablet of 2800 B. C. reads as follows: "Our earth is degenerate in these latter days; there are signs that the world is speedily coming to an end; bribery and corruption are common; children no longer obey their parents."

And still the world moves. But the pessimist has always been with us and always will be. It may be true that the kids are a little too familiar with the pocket flask and are stepping on the gas a little too hard. But they will come out of the nose dive in time. It might help some to stick this silly doggerel on the wind-shield as a reminder:

"Ten gallons of gas,
A quart of corn,
And all they found intact
Was the horn."

* * *

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has started work on the electric signal system between Cumberland and Grafton, which was suspended during the winter. More than a hundred furloughed men have been called to this work. One of the camps, eight in number, between Keyser and Grafton, is located at Mountain Lake Park. These camps average fifteen men.

There are rumors afloat that the improvement of the road between Loch Lynn and Gorman will not be started this spring. Whether this is true or not, we do not presume to know. We hope the report is unfounded. Aside from the fact that the people over the mountain are entitled to this consideration, inside politics ought not to control the situation and prevent a much needed public improvement, which will give work to a good many of our citizens and help solve, to that extent, the unemployment situation in this particular region. With this work started, with a fair season in prospect at the Park and the Mount Airy Canning Company's expanding policy, this summer and fall ought to see a very much improved condition.

Work is progressing on the new concrete and brick tower being built by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company a short distance west of the B. & O. station at this place.

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. MacClelland Clayton, who have been spending the winter months in Fairmont, will return soon to their cottage in the Park. The mother of Mrs. Clayton, who is nearing the century mark, is improving in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. C. Fleming and Mrs. Cora Bishop, of Fairmont, were visitors at the Park this week.

Mrs. Frank Murphy, who has been at her cottage the past two weeks, has returned to her home in Fairmont. She expects to open her home here permanently within a short time.

Tuesday: Raking leaves; planting bulbs; digging around the roses. Wednesday: Firing the furnace.

Miss Katherine McClain is spending a part of the winter in Honolulu, H. I., where she is enjoying fine summer weather and a wealth of beautiful scenery.

A rather stubborn fire broke out last Monday on the property of Roy Slider, adjoining that of Nelson Miller. The fire had its inception in the spring mania for burning leaves. An alarm was telephoned to the Oakland Fire Department which responded with its usual promptness and with the assistance of a number of the Park residents the fire was soon under control with little damage resulting.

Mrs. Mary McConnell died at her home in Wilmington, Del., and was buried there on Tuesday. She was born at Thayerville, then known as the Casteel & Stemple Mill, about 77 years ago. She was a daughter of the late John Edgar, a pioneer resident of Garrett county and a sister of Wm. Edgar and Mrs. Laura Green, of Garrett county.

Sunday School Lesson

(©, 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 30

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT—Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Savior.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Savior.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—He Went About Doing Good.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The King Serving.

Since the lessons of the quarter are bound together by the threefold unity of one book, one theme, and one person, the best method of review for young people and adults is to present the book of Matthew as a whole, and each lesson in its relation to Matthew's central purpose. The central theme is Jesus Christ, the King, the fulfiller of the Messianic hope.

Lesson for January 5.

God entered into covenant with David concerning the Kingdom (II Sam. 7:8-16). Christ's genealogy shows His legal right to the throne of David (1:1-17). The Messiah was not only said to be the seed of the woman (Gen. 3:15) and the son of a virgin (Isa. 7:14), but the mighty God (Isa. 9:6). Jesus Christ, the King, was begotten of the Holy Ghost and born of Mary, thus becoming Immanuel (Matt. 1:23, cf. Isa. 7:14).

Lesson for January 12.

The King entered upon His official work by being baptized. Christ's baptism was His act of consecration to the task of saving His people through the sacrifice of Himself upon the cross. Having received the official approval from the open heavens, the King went forth to the wilderness to meet and overcome the devil (Heb. 2:14). His victory demonstrated His ability to accomplish the work of redemption.

Lesson for January 19.

The voice of John the Baptist being stilled, the King becomes His own herald. His message was the same as John's, namely, "the kingdom of heaven at hand," which means the Messianic earth rule of Jesus Christ. He enlisted helpers to His side and went through Galilee preaching with triumphant success.

Lesson for January 26.

This lesson shows the characteristics and responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom, the beatitudes showing the characteristics, and salt and light the responsibilities. The life and testimony of the disciples are to light up the darkness of the world and preserve it from decay.

Lesson for February 2.

This lesson displays the principles which are to control the lives of the subjects of the kingdom. They should live a life of prayer, putting their trust in the Heavenly Father for temporal blessings. Spiritual affairs are to be first.

Lesson for February 9.

The subjects of the kingdom should be free from censorious judgments, be on the lookout for false teachers, avoid empty profession, and obey the words of Christ, the King.

Lesson for February 16.

In the performance of mighty works the King demonstrated His ability to administer the affairs of the kingdom. He showed His power over the chief foes of mankind—sickness, sin, satanic power, death, sorrow, and storms.

Lesson for February 23.

The kingdom was to be propagated by sending forth twelve men to preach the gospel of the kingdom. Their mission was authenticated by supernatural deeds.

Lesson for March 2.

In the propagation of the kingdom, violent opposition arose, resulting in the plan to kill the King. Opposition will be experienced by all who go forth in Christ's name.

Lesson for March 9.

The parables display the admixture of moral and spiritual conditions in the world between Christ's crucifixion and second coming. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those who love it, but conceals it from those who do not.

Lesson for March 16.

The parables of the wheat and tares, mustard seed and leavened meal, show the outward growth and inner decay of the work inaugurated by Christ in the interval between His crucifixion and second coming.

Lesson for March 23.

Though rejected by the nation, the King continued His ministry of healing and teaching.

Straightning the Kinks

The kinks and tangles in our lives would straighten out wonderfully if we would let them come oftener under the influence of the calm, clear life of Jesus.—Presbyterian of the South.

Christians

The young Christian thinks himself little; the growing Christian thinks he is nothing; but the mature Christian knows that he is less than nothing.—John Newton.

Fairsweep School Made Clean Sweep In Attendance

Fairsweep School, a one-teacher school about three miles south of Oakland, has led all other schools in Garrett county in percentage of attendance by having one hundred percent for the last five months. Miss Hazel Garlet is the teacher of the record-breakers, who number thirteen. Superstition seems to have no effect upon them.

Some of the pupils have as far as 2½ miles to come each day, and when the weather is extremely bad, the parents are always on the job, making sure that their children are in school.

Every precaution is used by the teacher, pupils and parents in keeping children health so that they are able to be in school regularly. Miss Garlet has taught there four years and has always had splendid attendance, according to John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer.

A peculiar feature of this enrollment is that all entered school on the first day, and since that time there have been no additions and no withdrawals. The pupils are so proud of their record that they walked the distance into Oakland when they had their picture taken.

"WHAT IS FORESTRY" IS MADE PLAIN IN LETTER

Explanation Sent Out in Bulletin by Forestry Department

The following explanation appeared in the March issue of the News Letter, a bulletin published by the Maryland State Department of Forestry:

Forestry

Forestry—what is it? Many Forest Wardens who have spent years in protecting Maryland's forests and who have observed the success of such work in the rapidly growing stands of young reproductions, feel perhaps, that forestry is fire control alone. The man on the street may consider that tree planting or the reforestation of idle land is the whole of forestry. To others, the well kept park with lordly shade trees, fountains and grass plots may appear to be the highest form of forest management.

Fire control, tree planting, and even to a lesser degree, park management are more or less important phases of the whole subject of forestry which contains not only these activities but also a variety of other lines of work.

In order to gain a clear conception of this term forestry, let us consider the accepted definition of the term; the science and art of managing forests in continuity for forest purposes, i. e., for wood supplies and forest influences. The science of forestry lies in the knowledge of tree habits, together with soil, moisture, climate and other factors influencing tree growth; the art comprises the application of our knowledge of tree habits to the problem of obtaining the best reproduction and growth on any forest area.

"Managing forests in continuity" is an important, even, basic conception which forest enthusiasts and even, at times, trained foresters forget. Forestry does not exist unless there is continuity of growth or as it is sometimes expressed, sustained yield. In this sense, forestry management does not differ from business management. In business the executive handles his capital, in whatever form it may be, so as to produce a steady income, striving always to build up his capital and never to impair it. So the forester must strive always to retain and increase his forest capital or growing stock, never cutting more in any year than the growth during that period or if his cuttings are periodical, more than the growth since the last cutting period. Treated in this way, the forest assumes its permanent role of wood factory at the same time contributing its beneficient influences of sheltering homes, protecting stream-flow, feeding the wild animals, and providing rest, recreation, and healthful surroundings for the sick and weary.

Forestry as a whole is subdivided into five main branches; forest policy, silviculture, forest management, forest protection, and forest utilization. Forest policy is defined as the attitude toward forests and general methods of administration of public interests in forests by the State. For instance, the attitude of the State of Maryland as enunciated by the forest laws of the State together with the interpretation and administration of these laws by the Department of Forestry comprise the forest policy of this State. Silviculture is the art of producing and tending a forest. When an Eastern Shore farmer leaves seed trees on his loblolly pine cutting areas, he is practicing accepted silviculture. Forest management is the practice or application of forestry in the conduct of the forestry business. Forest management determines costs and yields and by its proper application, the forestry enterprise is self-sustaining and profitable. Forest protection is the science and art of protecting a forest from its enemies. This phase of forest concerns itself not only with fire control but also with the protection of the forest from insects, tree diseases, and ravages of wind and storms. Forest utilization is the brand of forestry which concerns itself with the operation of harvesting and marketing the forest crop and other resources of the forest.

IN MEMORIAM.

Henneberger—Just a tribute of love in remembrance of my dear husband, Merrill H. Henneberger, who departed this life one year ago today, March 26, 1929:

One long year has passed since that sad day
When one I loved was called away;
God took him home; it was His will,
But in my heart he is living still.

Nobody knows my longing—
But few have seen me weep;
I shed my tears from an aching heart
That smiles hide from the deep.

I miss your smiles, your cheerful way;
With you I spent my happiest days;
I miss you when I need a friend—
On you I always could depend.

All is dark within my dwelling,
Lonely is my heart today;
For the one I loved so dearly
Has forever passed away.

Fold him, O Father, in Thine arms,
And let him henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.

His loving wife,
ETHEL L. HENNEBERGER.

PROHIBITION AGENTS ARREST SIX MEN AND CAPTURE GIANT STILLS IN SERIES OF RAIDS OVER WEEK-END

Seize 7,650 Gallons of Mash and More Than $1,500 Worth of Finished Product of Stills

Six men were arrested, four giant stills destroyed, 7,650 gallons of mash and more than $1,500 worth of moonshine liquor confiscated in an intensive drive on illicit whiskey plants conducted by prohibition agents from the Cumberland office of the enforcement division and Garrett county officials during the past week-end.

Several truckloads of equipment were brought to Oakland as a result of the numerous raids, and it was estimaed that all the property destroyed and confiscated had a valuation of at least $12,000.

The largest seizure of the week was made Friday in a farmhouse near Thayerville, where two 100-gallon stills, seventy-two barrels containing 3,300 gallons of whiskey mash, 129 gallons of the finished product, 800 pounds of brown sugar, 100 pounds of rye and a quantity of other supplies and bits of equipment were taken.

State to Prosecute.

In connection with the Thayerville plant, Abraham Andrittis and John B. Dilley were arrested and lodged in the Garrett County Jail in Oakland. State charges have been preferred against the men and the June term of Court will investigate. Birrell Cuppett, of near Sand Flat, was held as a witness for the State.

On Thursday Charles E. Wolcott and Charles Frame were arrested on Wolcott's farm near Hoyes and were also lodged in the local Jail. Eight hundred and sixty-five gallons of liquor, the product of a 150-gallon still, which was destroyed, was seized. One thousand pounds of sugar and 2,750 gallons of mash as well as 500 gallons of gasoline were destroyed. State cases will also be made in the local courts against Wolcott and Frame.

James Morris and George Pidores were arrested on Sunday morning on a farm located between Deer Park and Sand Flat, and a 175-gallon still and 1600 gallons of mash were discovered and destroyed.

Automobile Also Seized.

On Wednesday the agents of the Prohibition office destroyed three moonshine plants on Backbone mountain near Bloomington and Westernport and arrested Lester H. Barnard and Albert "Rudy" Johnson. Both were held in $500 bond on transportation charges when given a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson in Cumberland, Allegany county, Federal charges being preferred against the men. Johnson's car was confiscated when agents found him transporting a quart of whiskey.

The raids were conducted by George T. Danforth, agent in charge, and by Sheriff W. D. Casteel and Deputies Joy Griffith and Richard West.

Authorities have stated that there were several others implicated in the illicit production of the liquor and that arrests would be made later.

The three plants captured in the Thayerville and Sand Flat sections of the county are said to have belonged to Clarksburg (W. Va.) people and were being operated by the men arrested at the time of the raids. They were three of a number of other stills owned by the same parties. Bonds for the appearance of the men at the June term of the Circuit Court were arranged Monday night by Clarksburg people and the men were released from jail.

DISTRICT FORESTER TALKS AT CIVIC CLUB MEETING

Discusses Development and the Work of Forestry Department

The development of the State Department of Forestry and the work of that department was discussed by H. C. Buckingham, district forester, at a special meeting of the Oakland Civic Club held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Lottie M. Loar on Second street. Besides members of the Civic Club, students in the biology department of Oakland High School were also present and were quite interested in the address made by Mr. Buckingham.

The speaker brought out the fact that in other parts of Maryland as well as in other states, organizations such as Women's Clubs, Boy Scouts, D. A. R., high school groups, men's service clubs, etc., have done much in promoting forestry by roadside planting, purchase of waste land for state forestry management and protection, slope planting and reforestation of vacant areas.

Of these suggestions slope planting along tbe nearby highways and reforesting vacant areas on the Herrington Manor State forest seemed the most feasible undertakings for the Oakland Civic Club.

"State forests, properly managed and protected, mean trade, industry and prosperity," he said. "The amount of timber cut from our forests at the present time is greater than the annual growth, which leads to a state of wood poverty. Under proper protection and management our forests and waste lands would produce as much timber as we now use.

"Of the 600,000 acres of woodland in Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick counties, 200,000 acres are idle and unproductive, but these lands are sufficient to fill our timber needs if all were fully productive. The forest is a renewable resource.

"Idle lands may be purchased at low cost, put under constructive management and made to more than pay their way. State forests provide timber reserves for future needs, watershed protection, furnish a natural home for game and wildlife and constitute a great recreational area for the people of the State."

Judge Sloan Decides Land Case.

Circuit Court was again in session on Monday of this week when Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan came to Oakland for the purpose of hearing arguments and rendering a verdict in the case of James Garrett and Thomas Garrett against George Ours and Jacob Ours, which was tried at the March term. The verdict was in favor of the plaintiffs.

The case involved title to about 20 acres of land located back of Mountain Lake Park near the Gorman road and had been in course of litigation for approximately two years. Both sides clalmed title through a series of conveyances going back to 1860 when the George Calamese lands were divided among the members of the Perry family.

A number of witnesses as to old surveys and landmarks were produced during the trial and considerable interest was manifested by people in the section of tbe county where the land is located. Attorneys in the case were E. R. Jones for the plaintiffs and Messrs. Renninger and Offutt for the defendants.

Rev. George R. Savage, of Baltimore, will conduct Easter services in St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church at eleven o'clock Easter Sunday morning at which time also the Holy Communion will be administered and a sermon in keeping with the day delivered.

All Pictures for High School Yearbook Have Been Taken

All pictures for "The Oak," official yearbook for Oakland High school, have been made, Jacqueline Lockyer, editor, has announced, and the cuts are now being made by the Baltimore Maryland Engraving company. When completed, they, with the written material, will be turned over to The Republican office for the presswork.

Several new features will be included in the book this year and the members of the Senior class are enthusiastic over the prospect. The book will be off the press about June first.

BOYS' WEEK AGAIN WILL BE OBSERVED IN OAKLAND

Rotary Club Sponsoring Celebration April 27 to May 2—Is County-wide in Scope

The county-wide celebration of Boys' Week, which was inaugurated in Garrett county last year, will be held again this year from April 27 to May 2, it has been announced. The Boys' Work committee, is sponsoring the movement.

Boys' Week is celebrated for the purpose of focusing public attention upon the boy as the world's greatest asset, to interest everyone in boys and boys in themselves.

The celebration will be opened with boys at Sunday school and church on Sunday morning, April 27. There will be a parade in the afternoon to be participated in by a number of bands, boys' organizations, and boys from all sections of the county and surrounding communities.

Following the parade the boys will be addressed in the Maryland theatre by Mr. Harry Cronin, Fairmont, W. Va., an outstanding lawyer and prohibition officer under Judge E. M. Showalter of the Marion county juvenile court.

Various other activities will be enjoyed by the boys during the week, Rev. C. A. Shilke, a member of the committee, stated. On Friday afternoon, May 2, the boys of Oakland will be the guests of the Rotary at a picture in the Maryland theatre. Further details of the program would be announced later, he stated.

THREE FIRES IN AS MANY DAYS ALARM PEOPLE HERE

Dixon's Cottage on Deep Creek Destroyed—Thieves Set Fire to Mrs. Offutt's Home

THIRD DWELLING BURNS

Authorities yesterday morning redoubled their efforts to discover the cause of the three fires here within three days, all of which are thought to have been of incendiary origin. None of the dwellings were occupied at the time. The last one to be reported was the cottage belonging to Lawrence K. Dixon, Oakland merchant, situated on the banks of Deep Creek Lake, about nine miles north of Oakland, which burned to the ground about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. The house and personal property were valued at about $4,500, at least half of which is covered by insurance.

Mrs. Offutt's Home

Fire Sunday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock at the summer home of Mrs. Nanienne T. Offutt, at the north edge of town, was extinguished by the Oakland Volunteer Fire department before much damage had been done. A lounge in the reception room on the first floor was consumed by flames and a bed and bedclothing in a room upstairs, in the rear part of the building were also destroyed.

Mrs. Offutt and her daughter Nell, who had been in the house an hour previous to the fire, had discovered quite a bit of wearing apparel missing. A number of other articles were brought out which they intended returning for later, but after the fire these articles were also missing. The personal property was later discovered in a small outbuilding on the property, where it is supposed the thief had hid them.

Another Dwelling Burns

The third fire occurred on Monday evening about 10:15 o'clock when the building owned by D. Edward Offutt, and until recently occupied by Alfonse Borelli, at the west edge of town, was almost entirely consumed. The fire was extinguished by the Volunteer department after laying a hose line to the Little Youghiogheny river, nearby.

The Dixon property which was consumed early yesterday morning had been occupied until Tuesday by Thomas Flanigan, when he returned to Oakland, but there had been no fire in the building for several days. Tuesday night was the first time the house had been vacant for ten months, it was stated. The fire was discovered by Mr. Bowman who lives nearby, who notified Mr. Bittinger, State road man, but the flames were already coming out of the windows.

Footprints Discovered

There were several footprints noticed about the building, and the door to the engine room near the building, usually kept locked, was open.

Tracks were also discovered about Mrs. Offutt's property and it was supposed that tbe thieves who made away with the personal articles, set fire to the house in order to blot out all trace of the robbery. The fire in the Offutt house was set in two rooms, which were in different parts of the building.

The State Fire Marshall is being sent for by George Kerins, fire chief, who is expected to be here and make a complete investigation. Thus far county authorities have made no arrests.

May Form Ladies' Auxiliary to American Legion

Word has been received by the commander of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, that Mrs. George E. Parker, Jr., State president of the American Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, will be present at a meetlng to be held in the City hall at 8 p. m. this evening, April 3.

Notices were mailed to the mothers, wives and sisters of members of the legion requesting them to be present and hear Mrs. Parker. The local post is on record as favoring the organization of an auxiliary.

CHILD HEALTH DAY TO BE OBSERVED IN STATE MAY 1

To Emphasize Right of Children to Health and Happiness

Maryland will join with other states on May first in the nation-wide celebration of Child Health Day. The purpose of the observance is to focus the attention of every grown-up on the right of every child in the country to health and happiness and to protection from disease and harmful conditions, not only on May Day but every day and all the year round.

Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health is chairman of the Maryland Child Health Day Committee which is composed of representatives of all organizations interested in the health and welfare of the children of the State. "There are two phases of the celebration of Child Health Day," Dr. Knox said, "the children's observance of the day, which is care-free and is associated as it always has been with the spring festival and with appropriate health games and exercises and the more serious observance by grown-ups on whom the responsibility falls for securing the rights of children to growth, development and opportunity.

"The ideal to be striven for was outlined by President Hoover in the Children's Bill of Rights in connection with the first celebration of Child Health Day, several years ago. What the Bill of Rights seeks to realize for every child may be summarized as follows:

"To be born well, with a sound mind in a sound body.

"To be adequately nourished and tenderly cared for.

"To be brought up in proper surroundings.

"To have regular and adequate medical supervision.

"To be trained physically, mentally and spiritually so that the best that is within the child may have full opportunity for development and expression.

No licenses were issued for a three-day period, that of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week, which is an incident that has not happened for many years, according to E. Z. Tower, clerk. WHAT A DIFFERENCE 90 DAYS MAKE!

TODAY A TODDLING CHICK . . . in 90 days a proud pullet about to lay. There's something to think about! Tiny bones and little muscles have grown several times in size . . . a delicate fuzz has sprouted into hundreds of feathers . . . a chick weighing grams has grown into a pullet weighing pounds . . . all in 90 short days!

A wonderful change . . . and only one thing can do it . . . good feed! This year consider Purina Startena Chow (mash) and Purina Chick Chow (scratch) or All-Mash Startena Chow for the first six weeks . . . and then Purina Growena and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow until your pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

Put these Chows before your chicks. You will see pullets that are built right . . . pullets that will lay eggs aplenty in fall and winter when eggs are always worth good money.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(The Observer, Baltimore)

Democratic factions wait on each other. The Republicans wait on the Democrats. Most of the rank and file are sick of the waiting. They want action.

The anti-Ritchie people have waited for organized support on the Eastern Shore. The great majority of Democrats there are apparently opposed to the Governor's continuation in office but they hesitate to line up for Senator McIntosh. They apparently think a more vigorous campaign is needed to cope with the Ritchie State-wide machine.

There has been talk and talk of Henry P. Turner of Talbot county becoming the candidate for Comptroller on the anti-ticket with Senator E. J. Clogan running for Attorney General. But Turner confers and confers. His lack of action is said to be due to the fact that he fears the McIntosh support on the Eastern Shore will not be sufficient.

While this backing and filing has been going on some Baltimore Democrats, realizing at last that Judge Samuel K. Dennis will not be at their service, are beginning to talk seriously of supporting Representative Stephen W. Gambrill if he will run. It is not assured that Mr. Gambrill would undertake to muss up the situation by blindly plunging in but his advocates hope that the McIntosh supporters can be brought around to the view that the Howard county man can make much the better race because of his stump speaking ability.

An obstacle to the entry of Mr. Gambrill as a substitute for Mr. McIntosh is aaid to be Howard Bruce. Apparently he objects to Gambrill. Mr. Bruce is looked to as the leader of the McIntosh forces because of his personal friendship for the Baltimore county Senator. Mr. Bruce no doubt is willing to make a liberal campaign contribution but to date he has done little else. When wanted for consultation or help he is frequently found to be in New York or Chicago. He is energetic and all that but he lacks the practical knowledge of politics. He came into politics from the top—the financial end. Thus it is that to date it cannot be seen that Mr. Bruce with all his energy and force has brought his friend McIntosh anything. Practically all that Mr. Bruce has done has been the giving out of statement of his belief that Ritchie cannot be re-elected. But it took no prophet to say this. Thousands have been aaying it for more than a year and the Republicans attest to this view by boosting the Ritchie fourth term candidacy.

Ritchie holds off his announcement from day to day while he makes efforts through his understrappers to cajole or seduce the opposition leaders. This one is sent to see Jackson, the other is sent to see Charlie Bichy and still another is put on the trail of Billy Curran. It is the old story of four years ago. Ritchie wants the cards stacked in his favor. He lacks real courage.

Certainly he cannot be satisfied with the situation in Baltimore City. Go where one will one finds Democrats and Democrats who say they will not vote for Ritchie again. We might mention, for instance, a certain factory employing 120 men, most of them Democrats. Less than twenty votes there for Ritchie. Another working group of thirteen men. Nine Democrats, four Republicans. Only two votes for Ritchie on a poll. And so it goes.

Chairman Galen L. Tait of the Republican State Committee gave a good demonstration of exactly what the anti-fourth term Democrats need. And that is a man able to throw hot shells into the enemy camp. Mr. Tait came out with a statement showing the Ritchie hypocrisy in naming committees and especially his Chesapeake Bay bridge committee which was deliberately packed with Democrats as though the Republican residents of the State could have no interest in auch a proposition. Further Mr. Tait called attention to the Governor's proposed use of the Johns Hopkins University for his own political purposes.

The warm reception given the Tait statement well shows that the anti-fourth term Democrats are making a mistake to remain so quiet—so quiet in fact that a Republican has to come forward and help put some ginger in the campaign.

The statement of former Senator Weller that Albert G. Towers was his first choice for Governor was no surprise but it was further interesting to learn that the former senator now proposes to back a Sixth District man for the nomination. This may mean Alexander Armstrong, Judge Urner, Judge Sloan or former State Senator David A., Robb. One can make his own choice and he will be knowing just as much about it as we do at this particular time.

Lee Case Now
Remarkable Procedure

Remarkable indeed is the procedure of Brooke Lee as the reigning Democratic boss of Montgomery county in an effort to defeat his political enemies.

The Grand Jury has been making an inquiry as demanded by Lee and the county officials who appear to be subservient to him and the outcome is yet to be made known. What Lee wants is a whitewash for his officials and that he has made plans but it is such an unusual procedure for a boss to rush before a Grand Jury and tell what should be done that the whole State is or should be interested in the outcome.

It is not common for the Grand Jury to be used in political fights and that is not the object of a Grand Jury as we understand it. But things may be different in Montgomery county under the Lee regime just as they are different at Annapolis under the Ritchie regime.

The action of Lee in his paper, the Maryland News, in publishing facsimiles of two checks the payment of which was held up for lack of sufficient funds is characteristic of the Lee method of fighting. Such methods are not likely to find favor with people of decency anywhere and they cannot do the Lee cause any good in the long run. It is not the wisest thing to sneer at the other fellow because he may lack cash. Lee, born to wealth, may think he can afford to do this but we do not think he will dare to submit himself to the suffrage of the people of Montgomery county again. Should he do so, he may find that money cannot buy everything in this world.

Sindall Said To Be
Ritchie Candidate for Mayor

The inclusion of Robert A. Sindall among the guests at the dinner given by Governor Ritchie on Friday night of last week in honor of the visiting Governors set city Democrats to talking about the meaning of it. Mr. Sindall presided at the Concord Club Jackson Day dinner which was so staged as to boost the Ritchie fourth term candidacy, and, since that time various stories have been going around. And since Mr. Sindall was among the few invited to the Friday night dinner it is currently reported that he is the Governor's choice for the Mayoralty nomination next year.

This may or may not be true but it is cartain that the attention paid by the Governor to Mr. Sindall is being interpreted as part of the Ritchie effort to curry favor with the members of the Masonic fraternity. Mr. Sindall is not only a Free Mason but he is the Potentate of the Order of the Mystic Shrine in this city. Now it happens that in the course of the Al Smith presidential campaign in 1928 Mr. Sindall was called upon to do some political work at State headquarters and it is said that he actually began it or was about to begin it when he quit cold. The reason for his stepping aside, it was freely said at the time, was the fact that he was a candidate for the position he now holds as Potentate, the election for which was not to come up until after the Presidential election. Members of the Shrine said that unless Mr. Sindall got out of the Smith campaign his chances for election as Potentate would be ruined, and it is a fact that he stepped aside and was elected Potentate after a hard fight and with a none too large majority.

Futhermore it is not contradicted that for months Ritchie supporters who are close to him have been saying that the Governor has the Catholic vote safely corraled. This may or may not be but the fact is that His Excellency is now making a strong drive to bag the Free Masons. But, say members of that powerful order, Potentate Sindall cannot deliver the Shrine or Masonic vote to anyone. Meanwhile the mention of Mr. Sindall as a Democratic possibility for Mayor next year aerves to emphasize the desperate efforts the Governor is making to use a great secret organization for his own political purposes. Certainly we have not yet heard the last of it.

Baltimore County
Beginning to Seethe

The situation in Baltimore County is becoming more interesting. Report has it that President Robert Clarke of the Board of County Commissioners, is now openly an advocate of the renomination of Governor Ritchie. From the beginning it has been reported that Mr. Clarke has had his head set toward becoming the party boss in the county and it is apparent that the Governor's followers in that county have done nothing to discourage his ambition in that direction.

Then there is Michael H. Winand, treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee for the county who has given notice that he is off the McIntosh reservation and will go Ritchie in the fashion and probably for the aame reason that moved Frank A Furst.

On top of that is the open threat in Baltimore County of admirers of Al Smith that they will in future vote for no Democrat who did not support Al Smith in 1928.

The Republicans seem to be lying low to see what the Democrats propose to do. They have been saying they expect to carry the county for their local ticket this year but all is not yet harmony in that part either. The friends of George R. Norris of Dundalk appear to be in the ascendant with Col. C. Wilbur Miller as chairman of the county committee but there is no trustworthy information as to the makeup of the slate for the November election.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP—HIMSELF

Written by Sadie Gilch

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time"— but not by simply being named after some of them. At least that is the opinion of those who watch the book in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit court which contains the names of all applicants for marriage licenses.

Seldom, if ever, has an applicant come to Oakland for a marriage license, with a first and middle name like William McKinley, George Washington, Isaac Newton, Benjamin Gump, Major Hoople, Theodore Roosevelt, Oliver Wendell or William Jennings, who ever amounted to more than a truck driver, day laborer, or a glass blower, a persual of the records shows.

The fond parents who name their children after some idol may be hitching their wagon to a planet, but wouldn't it be far better to give them a handicap to overcome such as Ethelbert, Percival, Reginald, Angelina, Sylvesterita, or force upon them the desire to become radio announcers. This almost assures success for your prodigies, but don't blame Scoop if this recipe doesn't work, because if Ethelbert turns out to be only a truck driver or an ice man, it's just going to be too bad, that's all—too bad.

The question at hand among the band boys is "Where was Reeves Blandford when Mr. Gilbert announced his song at the concert at Friendsville on Saturday?"

The Amalgamates combined with the Izaak Waltons of the Ananias club in throwing a big April Fool's party on the banks of the Little Yough river, just below the mill dam, on Tuesday morning about 1:30 a. m.

Since the fishing season had only just begun, Jim Painter contented himself by telling a story which nearly everybody believed, but when the Amalgamates suggested really getting down to work and fixing some bricks in sacks and pocketbooks with strings attached to fool the Oakland people, that was too much for anybody to believe.

It is rumored, that because of April's well known weather, the party was all wet but this would not be verified by any of the members or Reed Smouse.

The Inaugural Parade

Scoop wasn't going to say anything about an inaugural parade for Mayor Stemple until "Monk" saw Col. Bell and requested an especially elaborate affair. So, after writing to the Ancient Order of Corn Justice Extractors from Hoyes; Order of Mystic Kegs, Sand Flat; the politicians from Swanton and Sheriff Casteel, of Oakland, Scoop decided he could have a mammoth parade and inaugural ceremony on next Monday evening, as they all promised to be there.

The sheriff has decided to let out his "birds" so that they can join their respective societies as they appear in the parade, and as Scoop is glad to announce that he has again engaged the services of the Shantytown cadets, and the Quality Hill Fife and Drum corps, the parade promises to be the biggest inaugural event since the Fair waa held in Sweeney's pasture lot.

Mayor Stemple wants to be crowned queen of April Showers right in front of the City hall, and in order to bring him to the proper place at the right time the parade will form in Hogan's alley and will proceed through Sweeney's alley to the mill, between Dixon's and Kerins' to the rear of The Republican; through Treacy's archway to Alder and thence to alley by C. and A. Gas company's barn; to Fourth street; Fourth to Dr. Hinebaugh's alley, thence to city hall. The retiring Mayor Fraley will be clothed in purple and will ride in a chariot driven by Willum Ben Hur Frazee, while Stemple himself will carry a blowtoreh in one hand, raised in the likeness of "Justice," while in the other hand he will earry a plunger, which will signify that he will clean up the town.

Cot. McComas, the only man able to slip into the council this term, will appear in the parade in a motor boat and a bathing suit, regardless of the weather, and will take orders for lots along the way. He will have lots and lots to say.

Mayor-elect Stemple's first ambition is to uniform the department of street cleaners.

It has just been announced that Paul Sommer, of Morgantown, and Ed. Alexander have been elected as members of the Amalgamated Society for the Prevention of Work, and will be duly initiated as soon as they light in town. Their names were brought up by Slim Shaw, but the rest of the members couldn't see that all Poky wanted was to get a lot of West Penn people into it so they could control the stock. They went through with only one blackball.

Scoop wants to know who sent him that April Fool letter on such expensive paper.

THE CONSTITUTION AFLOAT

The American frigate Constitution rides the waves again! The famous warship has been made over from a decaying hulk into a semblance of its gone glory. "Old Ironsides" is afloat because the school children of Garrett county and the hundreds of other children in the public schools of the other counties in the states composing the United States piled millions of pennies into a fund that grew to be $400,000. It was only right that the school children should have looked on as the Constitution sat again upon the water.

Shades of the men who contributed to the forty-two victories achieved by the Constitution must rejoice that the old frigate has been resurrected from a grave in mud, that her dead spars and timbers have been replaced with new, that she is restored to seaworthiness, prime to move about the seven seas. "Old Ironsides" dates from 1794 when President Washington signed the law authorizing her construction. She first tasted the sea October 21, 1797.

The restoring of the Constitution is an eloquent gesture. She will have no practical duty in the navy. Her usefulness is in summoning up scenes of years when battles on the high seas frequently developed into hand-to-hand death grapples. She was the pride and the glory of the American navy in its earliest seasons. For years while the Constitution was the American flagship, pirates continued to infest the seas in parts of the world, and privateers were still legitimate.

"Old Ironsides" takes Americans back to the beginnings of their Republic. She is emblematic of their skill, ingenuity and resourcefulness in building war vessels capable of defeating the proud men of war of other nations. Should the Constitution be sent on a tour of American ports, interest in the navy would be quickened. Sight of the old craft would stimulate thought of what a new-born nation achieved in defense of its rights.

DONE WITH RADICALISM

The government of Mexico, after experimenting for a dozen years with radical schemes of attack upon capital invested in productive enterprise, has learned a lesson the new government of Rubio is putting into effect. It is announced that capital will be welcomed and protected in its legitimate activities in the Mexican republic. The reason for this is that the masses of the people, in whose name the crusade against commercial enterprise was invoked, have paid heavy penalties for that policy. Capital has been driven out of Mexico. The operation of mines, oil wells and agricultural estates has been reduced to such an extent that employment for Mexican labor has been impaired and consequent pauperism and starvation. Scores of thousands of Mexicans have fled from what was expected to be a socialist Utopia into the "capitalistic" United States in order to earn enough money to hold body and soul together.

Not long ago the ruling elements of Mexico were working in close affiliation with extreme socialism and bolshevism. General Calles affiliated himself with the Third International. Radical "labor" organizations ruled Mexico. It was an era characterized by confiscation. It was good sport for the doctrinaires and the demagogues, but it was discovered that when industry was destroyed, employment was destroyed, and the impoverishment of the country resulted. Rich in natural resources, Mexico has been in the midst of stagnation. Within the past few months sentiment in Mexico has turned against radicalism. Following the attempts of radicals, enraged because of the disolution of their partisanship with government, to assassinate the chief officials of Mexico, revolutionary radicals are being dealt with sternly. Many have been chased out of the country; others have been jailed. Today Mexico is too hot to hold the Red advocates of government by terrorism and violence and the headquarters of the Mexican communist movement has been moved to the United States. No longer will Mexico serve as a station on the underground railway for revolutionaries trekking from Moscow to the United States.

The most dangerous enemies of the wage earner, the farmer and of producing elements generally are the demagogues who strike at legitimate business enterprise under the pretense that in attacking enterprise and employment they are serving the interests of the masses. We have them with us in force in American public life; politicians avid for power, and willing to strike at the prosperity of the country in order to attain it. They have done considerable execution in their crusade against productive industry during the past year. Their success in this, as in Mexico, however, has only turned the attention of the people to the harmful results of such tactics. There is today a strong reaction against prosperity-destroying, employment-killing demagogy.

An Interesting Fact.

National Capitol Completed by Maryland's Aid

Students of history will agree that the State of Maryland, both during and since the American Revolution, heartily loaned its support to the central government at Washington. During the Revolution President Washington had frequently turned to Maryland for ald in times of stress. In December, 1789, the General Assembly of Maryland, by legislative act, authorized an advance to the President of the United States, the sum of $72,000, payable to his order in three equal yearly payments, to be applied towards the election of public buildings. This amount was supplemented by the merchants of Baltimore by an additional $100,000, pledged by a "boosters" committee in what we would in this day call a "drive."

But after the southeast corner of the Capitol had been laid by the Masons, on September 18, 1793, the money advanced by Maryland, as well as that advanced by Virginia, was soon exhausted, as was also the credit of Robert Morris, known as the "financier of the Revolution" who was associated with James Greenleaf, of New York, in the construction of the public buildings. In order to relieve this embarrassing situation, and after various humiliating attempts of the government to borrow money at home and abroad (a situation inconceivable to us, considering out government's present financial rating) President Washington determined to apply to his old friend, Maryland, for a loan, and voiced his confidence in the outcome of his request by writing to Governor John H. Stone in December 1796: "If the state has it in its power to lend the money which is solicited, I persuade myself it will be done; and the more especially at this time when a loan is so indispensible."

Maryland did not disappoint, for in response to this appeal, the General Assembly promptly voted a loan of $100,000 on December 4, 1796, and $50,000 before the legislature adjourned. But in order to secure the prompt advance of these sums, the treasurer of the Western Shore was authorized to sell "the reserved lands to the westward of Fort Cumberland," and "100 acres of land at Fort Frederick."

Thus, it was due to Maryland's timely aid, as reported by the District Commissioners, that the public buildings were completed, and Congress was able to hold its fall session in 1800 in the new Capitol.

IF YOU DIE NOW YOU'LL STILL BE COUNTED ALIVE

The 1930 Decennial Census to Count Figures from April 1

If a person dies between April 1 and the time the census-taker arrives, he will be counted as being still alive in the 1930 decennial census, according to instructions which have been sent out by the Census Bureau in Washington. Children born after April 1 will not be counted in the census, although they may be two or three weeks old by the time the census-taker arrives at their home.

Population figures in the 1930 census will be compiled as of April 1, although the entire month will be needed to complete the census taking. The 1930 census reports will picture the United States as it was on one particular day, despite the fact that the population of the country is continually changing in size and moving from one place to another.

Getting everybody counted once in the place where they belong and nobody counted more than once is one of the biggest problems the Census Bureau has to consider, for each district must be credited with its proper population if apportionment of representation in Congress is to be correct. Detailed instructions have been issued by Census officials, telling the enumerators whom to count and whom not to count.

All persons will be enumerated as being residents of whatever place is their "usual place of abode" on April 1, regardless of where they may be when the census-taker arrives.

Each census-taker will count a number of persons who are not actually in his district when the census is taken. Among these will be the following:

1. Persons temporarily absent, either in foreign countries or elsewhere in the United States on business or visiting.

2. Persons attending schools or colleges located in other districts.

3. Persons ill in hospitals or sanitariums in other districts.

On the other hand, a number of persons who are present in the district at the time of the census will not be counted in the population of that place. Among these will be the following:

1. Persons vislting in the district.

2. Transient boarders or lodgers who have a permanent place of abode outisde the district.

3. Students or children living or boarding in the district in order to attend school, but not regarding the place as their home.

4. Persons who eat or work in the district but who sleep in another district.

It is not, say the census authorities, a question of where a person votes, or where he pays taxes or owns property. It is a question of where he lives; the "usual place of abode" for the purposes of census is the place which one would name in answer to that question. Sentiment and local attachments are not to be considered. One's heart may be in the highlands, or in Tipporary, but unless his usual place of abode is there he does not form a part of the population of that locality according to the consus. When a part of the population of that lolocality according to the census. When a young person has left his parents' home and obtained employment elsewhere, the place where he regularly stays while engaged in this employment is considered his "usual place of abode," even though he may still think of his parents' residence as "home."

But census taking is a practical problem and exceptions have to be made. It is not always possible in these days of easy location to enumerate everybody at their usual place of abode. Accordingly the census under certain conditions finds it necessary to sanction the enumeration of a person in a place which is not his usual place of abode, if it is a choice between doing that and not enumerating him at all. The regulations provide that if a person temporarily away from home is not represented at his usual place of abode by a husband, wife, father, mother, or other relative or by a housekeeper, servant, landlady or anybody else who can be relied on to give his name to the enumerator, he shall be counted in the district where he happens to be when the census is taken. Where entire families are absent from their usual places of abode they will so far as practicable be reached by means of an "absent family" schedule forwarded to them by mail to be filled out and returned to the supervisor of the district in which they reside. Or if a family temporarily present in a given district objects to being enumerated there on the grounds that it is not living at its usual place of abode, it may fill out a non-resident family schedule which will be allocated to the proper district by the census officials.

Transient boarders or lodgers who have no permanent home will be enumerated wherever they happen to be staying when the census is taken. This applies to traveling salemen who have no usual place of abode, or to any persons who have no permanent homes. People employed in railroad, road, or other construction camps, lumber camps, convict camps, or other places which have shifting populations composed of persons having no fixed places of abode, will be enumerated where found, except in so far as certain individuals in such camps have some other usual place of abode where they will be reported by members of their families.

Students in colleges and universities who have no homes elsewhere will be enumerated in the district in which the school is located. Teachers will be enumerated at the place where they are teaching when the census is the summer vacation at their parents' taken, even though they may spend home or elsewhere.

TOO MANY FIRES!

PROTECT YOURSELF!

The greatest danger today in any public building is fire and its results.

Did you ever stop to think what might happen should your institution catch afire, what the result might be?

Are you equipped with any means of combating this danger? If not, will you just stop to consider the advantage of a fire-extinguisher, placed in a position easily accessible and constructed to give perfect service at less than a moment's notice.

Do you not consider anything to prevent loss or destruction of property by fire a good investment?

The American La France Extinguisher has proven itself to be one of the best and most perfectly constructed extinguishers on the market today.

Would you be interested to learn more about such an investment as this? Think it over.

COST OF TEACHING EACH PUPIL IS 3 CENTS AN HOUR

Increase Last Year Over 1928 Is $2 for Every Boy or Girl Attending Public School

For the teaching of every boy or girl in the average county elementary school in Maryland the State paya 3 cents an hour, or $1 a week, in salaries of teachers, principals and supervisors, according to a statement released by the State Department of Education a few days ago.

Nearly three-fourths of the $50 per pupil average cost for the 1928-29 school year was disbursed in salaries, the report states. The average annual salary cost was $37.54 per pupil.

Varies in Counties

The cost of educating the average boy or girl in the typical elementary school in the 1928-29 year showed an increase of $2 over the year previous. The $50 average does not include any charges for the school building or for the expense of administration in the superintendent's office.

Not all of the counties spent as little or as much as $50 for the education of the average pupil. Washington county spent $42, Frederick $43, while Garrett and Montgomery invested $60 per pupil. Baltimore City tops the list with $77 per pupil cost, an increase of $4 over the previous year.

The counties that had the largest increases between the two years were Montgomery, Worcester, Cecil, Garrett, Talbot, Dorchester and Washington.

The cost per pupil in white elementary schools for current expenses, excluding general control and fixed charges, as compiled by the Department of Education was as follows:

County.	1928.	1929.

"This covers provisions not only for the individual child's work in reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, geography, history, English, music, nature study, physical and health education, but also for maps, globes and charts used for class work."

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' QUESTION BOX ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. What makes water gurgle when it comes out of a bottle?
2. Why do our eyes blink?
3. Where does the tadpole's tail go?

1. Air, as you all know, exerts a pressure, so if there is an empty space anywhere, air will press into it. Now, when we pour water out of a bottle which is full, an empty space is left behind in the bottle, and from moment to moment as the empty space is formed in the bottle, the air outside rushes in to take its place. Sometimes the liquid coming out of the bottle pushes back the air trying to rush in, and sometimes the air pushes back the liquid. There is a series of fights going on between the liquid coming out and the air trying to get in the bottle. This throws the air into little disturbances which we hear as gurgles.

2. The blinking is done by means of muscles in the eyelids. The real objects of the blinking of our eyelids is to keep the front of the eyeball constantly clean. When our eyelids move up and down in blinking, the watery fluid which we call tears, is poured all over the front of the eyes and washes away all particles of dust or other substances. You know some animals—snakes for instance—have no eyelids and therefore never blink.

At a certain age in the life history of a tadpole some of the cells within a tadpole's body begin to devour the cells that make up the tail. And so the tail is gradually eaten away and absorbed by the action of these cells. The material out of which the tail is made is used up by something else and therefore disappears.

COST OF TEACHING EACH PUPIL IS 3 CENTS AN HOUR

Increase Last Year Over 1928 Is $2 for Every Boy or Girl Attending Public School

For the teaching of every boy or girl in the average county elementary school in Maryland the State pays 3 cents an hour, or $1 a week, in salaries of teachers, principals and supervisors, according to a statement released by the State Department of Education a few days ago.

Nearly three-fourths of the $50 per pupil average cost for the 1928-29 school year was disbursed in salaries, the report states. The average annual salary cost waa $37.54 per pupil.

Varies in Counties.

The cost of educating the average boy or girl in the typical elementary school in the 1928-29 year showed an increase of $2 over the year previous. The $50 average does not include any charges for the school building or for the expense of administration in the superintendent's office.

Not all of the counties spent as little or as much as $50 for the education of the average pupil. Washington county spent $42, Frederick $43, while Garrett and Montgomery invested $60 per pupil. Baltimore City tops the list with $77 per pupil cost, an increase of $4 over the previous year.

The counties that had the largest increases between the two years were Montgomery, Worcester, Cecil, Garrett, Talbot, Dorchester and Washington.

The cost per pupil in white elementary schools for current expenses, excluding general control and fixed charges, as compiled by the Department of Education was as follows:

County.	1928.	1929.
County average	$48	$50
Montgomery	56	60

State	59	61

Spent For Books and Material

Books and materials used by the average county white elementary school cost the State and county $2 per pupil, the report says, adding:

"This covers provisions not only for the individual child's work in reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, geography, history, English, music, nature study, physical and health education, but also for maps, globes and charts used for class work."

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' QUESTION BOX ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. What makes water gurgle when it comes out of a bottle?
2. Why do our eyes blink?
3. Where does the tadpole's tail go?

1. Air, as you all know, exerts a pressure, so if there is an empty space anywhere, air will press into it. Now, when we pour water out of a bottle which is full, an empty space is left behind in the bottle, and from moment to moment as the empty space is formed in the bottle, the air outside rushes in to take its place. Sometimes the liquid coming out of the bottle pushes back the air trying to rush in, and sometimes the air pushes back the liquid. There is a series of fights going on between the liquid coming out and the air trying to get in the bottle. This throws the air into little disturbances which we hear as gurgles.

2. The blinking is done by means of muscles in the eyelids. The real objects of the blinking of our eyelids is to keep the front of the eyeball constantly clean. When our eyelids move up and down in blinking, the watery fluid which we call tears, is poured all over the front of the eyes and washes away all particles of dust or other substances. You know some animals—snakes for instance—have no eyelids and, therefore never blink.

At a certain age in the life history of a tadpole some of the cells within a tadpole's body begin to devour the cells that make up the tail. And so the tail is gradually eaten away and absorbed by the action of these cells. The material out of which the tail is made is used up by something else and therefore disappears.

1. The place (v. 13).

It was at Caesarea Philippi, the northern limit of Jewish territory, practically in Gentile territory.

2. The time in Christ's ministry.

The cross was only a few months away. The King had already been rejected. They had charged Him with being in league with the devil and sought to kill Him. It was highly important that the disciples have clear views as to Christ's person in order to stand the test of His trial and crucifixion.

3. Peter's confession (vv. 13-10).

(1) The occasion (vv. 13-15). Two questions asked by Jesus Christ provoked this confession. a. As to the opinion of the people concerning Him (vv. 13, 14). They recognized Him as a teacher and prophet of more than human authority and power. Had He been content with this, He would not have been molested in Jerusalem. It owns His persistent claim of being the God-man, the very Son of God, that sent Him to the cross. b. As to the personal opinion of the disciples (v. 15). It was not enough for them to be able to tell what opinion the people held concerning Jesus. It was necessary that they have definite, correct and personal knowledge of and belief in Him. (2) The content (v. 16). It consisted of two parts. a. "Thou art the Christ." This avowed Jesus to be the Messiah—the fulfiller of the Jewish hopes and expectations. b. "The Son of the living God." This acknowledged Him to be divine. It was the recognition of His glorious person in keeping with the Jewish hope (Isa. 9:6, 7).

4. Christ's confession of Peter (v. 17).

Those who confess Christ shall be confessed by Him (Matt. 10:32, 33). Christ pronounced a blessing upon Peter—not in the nature of reward, but a declaration of the spiritual condition of Peter because of his clear apprehension of his Lord.

5. Christ's charge to the disciples (v. 20).

He asked them not to tell any man that He was the Messiah. The time was not ripe for such testimony.

II. The New Body, the Church, Announced (vv. 18, 19).

Following the confession of Peter, Jesus declared His intention of bringing into existence a new body, to the members of which He would give eternal life, and into whose hands He would entrust the keys of the Kingdom. Peter was to have a distinguished place in this body. Association in this new body cannot be broken by death, for the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it.

III. The King Predicts His Death (vv. 21, 23).

This prediction was no doubt startling to the disciples. They did not yet realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross. So unwelcome was this announcement that Peter cried, "This shall not be unto Thee." Later Peter saw through the darkness to the sunlight on the hilltops beyond. A new hope filled his breast (I Pet. 1:3, 4). Victory through death is yet the stumbling block of many.

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (vv. 24-26).

Life can be saved only by losing it. If we are going to be Christians, we must share Christ's suffering.

1. There must be denial of self (v. 24). There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self. All people practice self-denial, but only real disciples of Christ deny self.

2. "Take up His cross" (v. 24).

This cross is the shame and suffering which lie in the path of loyalty to Christ.

3. Follow Christ (v. 24).

This means to have the mind of Christ—to be like Christ.

Flowers That Are Not Seen

If a man could make a single rose, we should give him an empire; yet roses and flowers no less beautiful, are scattered in profusion all over the world, and few regard them.—Martin Luther.

A Life in His Hands

The right thing is not always the easiest; but God has His schools for training, and a life left in His hands will never fail of its highest development here and hereafter.—Selected.

BELLE'S BEAUTY SECRET REVEALED

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

BELLE NORTON jerked the bureau over into the opposite corner from where it had always stood. Instead of coming over her shoulder the light from the window now fell directly upon her face. She had a queer jumpy feeling in her breast. It was true she was losing her looks, such as they were. Mrs. Polk had told her so just this afternoon when they met at Mary Graham's. Mrs. Polk always gave tongue to anything that popped into her head. She herself was marvelously smooth-skinned at eighty and she declared she had never used anything but soap and water on her face. It was patent Belle at eighty would be a sight to behold.

Anyway, wasn't there the Blossom beauty shoppe? She'd trust to that to fix her up somehow. She ran downstairs to the telephone. A moment later she had made an appointment for ten the next morning, rather inconvenient because she ought to be doing her soliciting for the membership drive then. She'd have to tuck that soliciting in somewhere before the day ended. Still, nothing mattered so much as that Edgar Sheldon shouldn't come back after twelve years' absence and find her looking "awful."

Belle was punctual to her appointment next morning. She sank into the chair and let deft-fingered Martha Blossom do soothing things to her scalp, her face, her throat. This beauty doctoring business was certainly restful. She drew a deep breath and relaxed for the first time since Ella went to the hospital for an operation and sent the twins over for Aunt Belle to look after. Right on the heels of that had come Aunt Annie, high blood-pressured and dieting, for a long visit. Then mother had had a touch of lumbago. The day she had been too busy to prepare anything but creamed codfish on toast for lunch, Nell Appleby with a motoring party had dropped in. To top all Edgar Sheldon had written after years of silence to say that he was coming back for a few days and wanted especially to see her. That might mean anything or nothing. But it certainly did involve entertaining all the old crowd for his sake.

Such thoughts as these ran through her head as Martha Blossom's delicate finger-tips essayed to smooth out lines, creases, hollows. Lunch to get after this treatment and a full afternoon to follow. But, at least, she'd look decent and that always upholds a woman. She looked into the mirror. "Oh, dear! I'm twisting my face again. That undoes all you've accomplished, doesn't it?" Martha Blossom smiled encouragingly and patted on more astringent cream.

By midafternoon Belle realized that her facial massage hadn't done much for her after all. Mary Graham had suggested that she take a tonic. That tooth she should have had filled long ago was tuning up. But she couldn't take time to go to the dentist's. She simply had to get a pitcher of broth ready for Ella's supper. Ella was home from the hospital now, in fine shape, but still in need of a little coddling.

At ten minutes to six Belle snatched the blue pitcher of chicken broth and started on a run for her sister's house, two blocks away. Ella was pleased with the broth. She was always pleased with everything, for nature and life had molded her in a soft, amiable, charming way. With her sunny hair and color scarcely impaired by appendicitis, she was a distinct contrast to slim, dark, fretted Belle.

"Sit down and catch your breath," suggested Ella.

"Can't. Mother isn't feeling well. She's sent for Doctor Pratt."

"Why doesn't she try Doctor Severance, as I told her?" asked Ella. "Dr. Pratt is an old dear, but he lets mother eat too many things she shouldn't. You're not looking particularly well, dear. Why don't you see Martha Blossom?"

"Good gracious! I did, for two hours, just this morning."

"Oh, well. Maybe you need a tonic," sighed Ella.

That sigh was the last straw. Belle hurried away.

She hadn't gone a block when she heard a persistent "Mieuw!" behind her. Looking round, she saw that Ella's yellow cat Wuz was following her. She attempted to drive him back. He stopped. She went on. Again "Mieuw!" Wuz again at her heels. She was near a corner, where traffic was thick, and she must cross the street. That cat! Ella thought the world of him. If she could get hold of him she would carry him back home. But Wuz was wily. When Belle's hand almost touched him he scampered out upon the crosswalk. Belle took after him. She heard the grinding of brakes, saw a great red truck loom over her. Then she struck the asphalt with a slap.

Traffic paused as strong arms lifted her. From the doorway of a great, yellow, square-built house a shrill old voice was screaming: "Bring her to me!" And that's where they took her, to Mrs. Polk's.

An hour later the excitement had quieted down. Ella had been told. Anna Shaw had gone right over to mother's. Doctor Severance, big, kindly, deep voiced, had assured Mrs. Polk that there wasn't a thing the matter with her patient but shock, a few bruises and general exhaustion. But he insisted that she must stay in bed for a week at least, see nobody, sleep much and eat nourishing food.

It was delightful in the great old-fashioned room with the scent of rose leaves rising from the glossy linen and golden silk coverlid. Mrs. Polk was the perfect hostess. She enjoyed having somebody to do for, the stir of extra telephone calls, flowers and visitors. And Anna, Mrs. Polk's valued maid, delighted in fixing the invalid's tray three times daily, with snacks between. All the two women and Doctor Severance demanded of Belle was that she be a good child and carry out their orders. A good child! And it was so long since Belle had thought of herself as being anything but frazzled and frayed and run down at heel. Besides, she was learning that Mrs. Polk wasn't a sharp-tongued old critic, but a big-souled, big-minded, big-hearted woman, generous to the last degree.

That week was a lovely dream. Then one afternoon Belle arose. She looked in the glass and started with surprise. She had gained pounds, there wasn't a line in her face, luster had come back to her hair and eyes.

Doctor Severance took her home. And there she found an ovation, flowers, cards of greeting, chicken, all just as if she had been away on a journey.

The following evening Mary Graham entertained for Edgar Sheldon. Belle met him there for the first time. He was even better looking than of old and he had the same caressing way.

"You've got darned pretty, Belle," he said admiringly.

Belle failed to thrill and wondered why. Then she looked down at the rich red roses she was wearing with her little black crepe frock. Those roses had come from Doctor Severance. He was a recent widower and he was trying to make her believe he needed her. This knowledge was beautifying Belle as much as rest and good feeding, for it brought her happiness, the happiness she thought she had missed altogether.

Term "Dixie" Ascribed to Old Currency Note

Up the river on the steamboats came the $10 notes. For all steamboatmen when in New Orleans did their banking at the Banque des Citoyens. They were printed, these $10 notes, in English on one side and in French on the other for the convenience of both the Creoles and Anglo-Saxons. In large letters on the back of each note was engraved "DIX," the French word for ten. You could see the dix before you saw the note, it was said.

"A dix note is always good," remarked a steamboat mate in Cincinnati, counting his pay money.

"You're right," responded the clerk. "A 'dixie' is bon-bon, as these French fellows say down South."

Unlettered as they were they pronounced the DIX as it was spelled. The town where the "dixies" came from they called "dixie's land."

"I'm going down the river after dixies," said the flatboatmen, of whom there were still a goodly number on the rivers as late as 1850.

"I bought this horse down in the dixie country," remarked a traveler on the wharf at Louisville.

As time went on and the sectional homogeneity of the southern people became more manifest with the darkening of the war clouds, the term "dixie's land" came gradually to be applied to the whole section in which the dixies had the largest circulation. From there on, a step only was needed to extend the borders until it embraced all the United States territory south of the Mason-Dixon line.—From "The Pageant of Pockets," by Garnett Laidlaw.

Schoolgirl Howlers

The following school girl "howlers" have been collected by a writer in Overseas:

"The whole world, except the United States, lies in the temperance zone," says one school girl. To the question, "What king came after Queen Elizabeth?" an alert young thing replied: "Philip of Spain, but she turned him down."

Q. What do you understand by suffering for righteousness?

A. Having to go to Sunday school.

Q. What is a herbaceous border?

A. A herbaceous boarder is one who will not eat meat.—Toronto Globe.

Aztec Sport

According to archeologists, a game that was a strange mixture of soccer and basketball was popular with the Mayas and Aztecs. Huge stone rings were set up on walls, and the players, striking a rubber ball only with wrist, shoulder, elbow or hip, would attempt to send it through them. This was centuries before rubber was known in Europe. For protection the players wore leather pads on the parts which had contact with the ball. The game provided the major sport of the times, and great amphitheaters surrounded the courts on which the teams played.

Vibration Effects

A certain amount of vibration is set up by a dog or other animal in crossing a suspension bridge. Such vibration might be sufficient to damage a bridge in the case of a large body of men all keeping step together, and with soldiers the order is often given to break step while going over a bridge. A musical instrument sets up sound vibrations and in extreme instances these vibrations might be sufficiently powerful to break windows.

MT. LAKE PARK

Dr. Charles W. Baldwin ls one of the promoters of Mt. Lake Park and has always taken an active interest in its affairs. He and his family always spend the summer here. On the thirtieth of last month Dr. Baldwin celebrated his 90th birthday by preaching a sermon and telling the story of his ministry at a Methodist Episcopal church near Millersville, Anne Arundel county, in the same parish where, sixty-four years ago, he began his ministry,

Despite his many years of labor he is hale and hearty and gives the impression of a man thirty years his junior. His chief delight is taking his daily walks, reading, visiting his friends and performing his duties of love for his church. He has held a number of charges throughout Maryland and in the District of Columbia and is active as president of the Board of Trustees of Morgan college, a trustee of the American University and executive secretery of the Baltimore City Mission and Church Extension Society.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland, Md.

The following was taken from the Agricultural Outlook for Maryland 1930, which is now available just for the writing to the County Agent or the Extension Service, University of Maryland.

Poultry

Storage stocks of poultry were 28% greater on January 1 than on the same date last year, and 13% greater than the five-year average. This affects prices of Maryland poultry. A probable downward trend of beef and lamb prices for the next few years is also likely to help the present downward trend in poultry prices, with the result that they remain at lower levels than in the last few years.

Storage holdings of broilers are the heaviest in history, and the present year will likely prove a poor one for broiler raisers, especially for winter and early spring broilers.

Cheaper and more liberal supplies of turkeys have had an effect on the market price of heavy classes of poultry, and apparently this condition will continue to be an important factor.

Dairying

The surplus of butter, cream and condensed milk now in storage in the United States and the surplus of fluid milk on the Maryland markets sound a note of warning to dairymen of the State.

Decrease in the purchasing power of consumers has helped to create some of the surplus in dairy products, and this influence will no doubt be felt during 1930.

The three cooperative milk marketing associations in the State last year marketed 2,190,375 gallons of milk in excess of the amount marketed in 1928.

These conditions would indicate a somewhat lower price for milk during 1930.

It is not a good time to increase the dairy herd or for new herds to be established.

During the past 18 months more heifers have been saved to be placed in Maryland herds. This number constitutes probably 30% of the total dairy cows of the State and would indicate that the increase in milk production will be likely to extend over several years.

The dairy farmer should aim toward more economical production by eliminating the low producing cow, by the use of more home-grown feeds, and should retain only such heifers for replacement as come from high-producing cows and are sired by good purebred bulls.

The outlook deals with the entire Agricultural situation and will be of interest to all Marylanders whether they are farmers or not.

TOPIC FOR COUNTY-WIDE DEBATE HAS BEEN CHOSEN

Selected From List Sent in by School Principals—Date and Place to be Announced

The topic to be used for the county-wide debating contest to be held this year between the high schools of the county, was announced by Prof. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, this morning.

The topic was selected from a list sent in by each high school principal from Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident, Friendsville, Accident, Kitzmiller, Kempton and Oakland. The one chosen was, "Resolved: That it should be the policy of our nation to increase the power of the federal government."

The three northern schools, Grantsville, Friendsville and Accident, will have the affirmative side; while the three southern schools, Oakland, Kempton, and Kitzmiller, will take the negative side of the question.

A small admission may be charged this year, and the proceeds will be added to the total of $50 which will be presented by the Garrett National Bank of Oakland through G. A. Fraley, cashier, and the First National Bank of Oakland, through Delbert Davis, cashier, its sponsors. The total will probably be divided between the two competing teams with 60 percent going to the winning team and the remaining 40 percent to the losers. The money obtained by the various schools is to be spent for books for their school libraries.

The date and place of holding the contest have not yet been decided, Mr. Rathbun said. Preliminary debates will be held in each school beforehand to determine who shall be the representative. One person will be chosen from each high school.

SAFE AT CRELLIN STORE ROBBED FRIDAY MORNING

Robbers Escape With Almost $800 in Cash After Cracking Safe With Nitro-Glycerine

Authorities have been unable to find any clues which might lead to the arrest of robbers who broke into the store of the Stanley Coal company, Crellin, last Friday morning, blew open the safe and escaped with $700 or $800 in cash. Inculded in this amount was $125 belonging to the Postoffice department, and Scrip money amounting to about $200. No merchandise was taken, as far as could be learned.

The safe, formerly in the office of the County Commissioners, was quite large, and it was thought that nitro-glycerine was used to blow open the doors. The explosion occurred about 3:10 o'clock in the morning and was heard by several people in Crellin, none of whom investigated the cause, thinking it came from Oakland, four miles away.

The robbery was discovered about 6 o'clcok the next morning by Howard Phares, mail carrier. Entrance to the building was affected through a window in front of the store. A second window was also broken.

County officers are still working on the case in an attempt to find whether the culprits were from this section or from the "outside."

CLUBS IN COUNTY START TREE PLANTING ACTIVITY

Civic Club Arranging Celebrations and Days for Planting

Tree planting, both for national forest reservation and for beautifying towns in Garrett county, will assume larger proportions this year than ever before, according to H. C. Buckingham, district forester, who has conferred with Civic clubs of Kitzmiller and Oakland within the past few days.

The Civic club of Kitzmiller is planning a celebration on April 17, when a number of trees will be planted along the streets of that town, and also the Kitzmiller Grammar school children will plant trees in the school yard.

The Civic club of Oakland has decided on a tree planting project, to be conducted on the Herrington State Forest, the exact acreage undetermined at present. Mr. Buckingham plans to set out 10,000 Red Pine trees on the forest reserve during April, and F. F. Nicola, owner of Rock Lodge, will plant 22,000 of the same species on approximately 20 acres of land.

That a number of Japanese chestnuts might be planted here by the government as an experiment, was also stated by Mr. Buckingham. The Japanese chestnut is said to withstand the blight that is killing the American chestnut trees, and the wood is said to be better grade. The planting would be made on the State forest reserve.

The district forester cautioned people about setting fire to brush piles in the morning. Brushburning was responsible for 26 percent of all fires last year, and he advised notifying A. L. Sines any time anybody contemplated burning brush. A brush fire, from the lookout tower, looks like a serious forest fire, and a number of men are needlessly rushed to different points only to discover that it is a brush fire. In the evening on damp still days, is the time to set brush fires, he stated.

Forestry Leaders Meet With Fire Department

Members of the State forestry department held a meeting last evening with members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department and others at the City hall, and discussed problems of forest fires.

A fire fighting crew was organized to help in the Savage mountain forest district in case of necessity, and more than 20 men signed for service. One crew was formed with Emory Bolden warden, and one formed with George Kerins warden. An emergency crew was also formed.

It was so arranged that at no fire would there be more than 12 members of the department absent from Oakland, leaving sufficient protection here for possible outbreaks.

H. C. Buckingham, district forester; Karl E. Pfeiffer, assistant state forester; and A. L. Sines, district warden, represented the State at last night's meeting.

Miss Betty Harper, of the home service department of the Monongahela West Penn copmany, gave a demonstration to Freshman girls of Oakland High school yesterday afternoon on the electrical appliances, sweeper, washer, ironer, iron, waffle iron, electric beater, toaster, percolator, Armstrong stove and refrigerator.

She prepared a dessert in the refrigerator and served all the members of the Freshman class, and also baked an upside-down cake on the Armstrong stove; pin-wheels on the waffle iron, and toasted bread. The school was presented with an electric percolator.

SEARCH WITHOUT SUCCESS FOR BODY OF WM. HARVEY

Frostburg Man Believed to Have Jumped from Glendale Bridge, Deep Creek, Last Friday

Search for the body of City Engineer William Harvey, aged 54 years, of Frostburg, believed to be at the bottom of Deep Creek Lake, about seven miles from Oakland, continued without success today, the sixth day since his car was found on Glendale bridge, across the narrows of the lake.

Deep sea divers will arrive at the lake at 2:30 this afternoon to begin the work of exploring the bottom of the lake in the vicinity of the bridge. The divers are employes of the firm of the Brown Salvage and Derrick Corporation, Baltimore, and are being brought here through the efforts of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

The cost of securing the services of the divers is being borne by friends and business associates of the missing engineer. They will have with them the latest improved equipment, consisting of about two hundred feet of air line and two hundred feet of life line, equipment for the generation of electric current and other necessary machinery. The assistance of intelligent laborers will be required.

Allegany and Garrett county authorities, aided by volunteers, have been dragging and dynamiting the lake for several days in efforts to locate the body of the missing man who left his home at 7 o'clock Friday morning and has not been seen since about 4 o'clock that afternoon when he parked his car in the center of the bridge. He was in Oakland on Friday morning and in Grantsville at noon where he ate dinner with his brother, John Harvey, at the National hotel.

Harvey was said to have been worried in recent months because of ill health and had been in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for examination. He drove away from home on Friday morning without indicating where he was going or how long he intended to stay.

Dynamite Lake

While parties of men dragged the lake from the bridge and from several boats, other groups scoured the nearby woods for some trace of the missing man. Permission to use dynamite in the lake was granted by the State Conservation commission. The bottom of the artificial lake is covered with tree debris, leading searchers to believe the body may be held at the bottom. The lake is about fifty feet deep under the bridge at that point.

Papers and Money on Seat

Sheriff W. D. Casteel, of Garrett county, found Harvey's pocketbook containing $135, and a package of papers, on the front seat of Harvey's machine, with the back of the seat folded down over the moncy and papers. An overcoat and other articles were found on the back seat.

Parked Car Friday Afternoon

Harvey's car, according to Earl Harvey, a farmer of Swanton, was driven on the bridge between 2:30 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. He said he drove over the bridge at 2:30 and there was no car there but when he recrossed the bridge at 3 o'clock the machine was parked on the right side of the bridge, facing Swanton. The missing man was also seen, smoking a cigar, in the machine, by occupants of the cottages along the lake. The authorities were not notified until Saturday morning when It was discovered that the car had not been moved since early Friday afternoon.

State's Attorney William A. Hunter and Terrance J. Boyle, county investigators; Sheriff William A Harvey, a nephew of the missing man; and Deputy Sheriff James McGregor, all of Allegany county, aided the Garrett county authorities in the investigation. The rescue car of Cumberland, equipped with apparatus needed in drowning accidents, etc., was brought to the lake by Frederick C. Dreyer who directed the search.

The missing man has a wife and three young sons; also five brothers and two sisters, of Frostburg and Shaft, Md. Harvey was born in Frostburg and graduated from Beall High school in 1896, and West Virginia University at Morgantown in 1901. He had been engaged in mining engineering and surveying In both Garrett and Allegany counties for a number of years and is widely known.

New Census Questions

Jacob John Treestump has just sent up a new list of questions to be handed out to the enumerators of the senses, and he entrusted them to Scoop's care. Instead of handing them out to Doc Yutzy, Newton Dawson, Cissil Rumsey, and the rest of them, Scoop is reprinting them here, taking up valuable space in his column for the sake of getting this valuable information gathered and tabulated by Uncle Samuel.

These new questions which farmers will be required to answer as well as the city slickers, are as follows:

Are your married? Why?

How many nights do you stay in?

Have you a little Fairy in your home?

Have you ever attended a mail order college?

Were you born in West Virginia or in the United States?

Can you read Hog Latin?

Do you speak English respectfully?

Are you loafing at your work or just loafing?

Are your feet mates?

Do you suffer from ingrown toenails, dandruff, "B. O.," halitosis, or enlarged glands? If not, why?

Do you keep your teeth clean? (include false ones.)

Do you believe in signs?

Parade A Failure

The inaugural parade was a complete failure, according to the new mayor. Col. Bell didn't show up, and they couldn't find the six white horses. The mud was too deep in the alleys, and the amiesite was too slick. Snow got in the horns of the Shantytown Music Charmers and the only thing they could play that sounded halfway decent was "Turkey In the Straw," and that got monotonous as the party progressed. Cot's lots were covered with water and In fact somebody threw a wet blanket over the entire affair.

The Old Home Town

If there are checker boards placed in many business places in town, Oakland is going to be an exact replica of The Old Home Town. The only thing lacking is the box of "sody crackers" and the burnside stove.

Ted Mason, who inspects all checker establishments at least once each day to see that things keep movin', says that A. S. Ours is the champion so far but others are running him close.

What say to a checker tournament? It's too early to think of horseshoes and bunion derbies.

Ex-Mayor Fraley, who has waited all winter around the fire house so that he could be there just once before the truck got away from him, lost out again during the past week.

He was there all right when the whistle blew, but he got so interested in talking on the telephone that the truck pulled away without him. He can now be seen, most any time, perched on the driver's seat of the fire engine, determined that he will succeed next time. If you are looking for the ex-mayor just open the door of the fire house.

ONE THIMBLEFUL—A DAY'S FEED FOR ONE CHICK!

THINK OF IT! One tiny thimbleful . . . all the feed a chick can put in its little crop in one day. On this tiny bit it must live . . . grow . . . build bones . . . build muscles . . . start feathers. Think of the job feed has to do!

They must depend on feed for so many things! They get them all in Purina Chick Startena (mash) or Purina All-Mash Startena Chow . . . 12 different ingredients in every thimbleful. Cod-liver oil . . . dried buttermilk . . . alfalfa flour . . . granulated meat . . . these and eight others are there!

These 12 ingredients . . . think how carefully they must be mixed to make every thimbleful alike. Purina Startena and All-Mash Startena Chow are mixed over and over again . . . 960 times just to be thorough! You will find the same care taken with Baby Chick Chow (scratch) . . . to be fed with Startena until your chicks are six weeks old . . . and with Purina Growena (mash) and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow (scratch) . . . to be fed from then on until the pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

How little feed a chick eats . . . just one thimbleful a day . . . yet how important it is . . . how much depends on it . . . the chick's very life . . . its growth . . . what the pullets will do for you next fall and winter when eggs are sure to be worth good money. You can afford to feed only the best . . . Purina Poultry Chows.

HEALTH PROTECTION IS COOPERATIVE ENTERPRISE

Approximately Fifty Diseases Are on "Notifiable" List

Over 10,000 cases of communicable diseases have occurred in Maryland since the first of the year and have been reported to the State Department of Health. The cases have been about evenly divided between the counties and Baltimore City. Large as the number seems, it is much less than the total for the first three months of last year when influenza brought the total for that period up to over 36,000

There are nearly fifty diseases on what is called the "notifiable" list. These include typhoid fever, typhus, tuberculosis, influenza, pneumonia, the so-called children's diseases—measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, other diseases such as septic sore throa, dysentary, sleeping sickness, with rabbit fever, and undulant fever among the more recent additions. Asked whose duty it was to notify the health officer of the occurrence of communicable diseases, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that the responsibility falls upon the attending physician, upon superintendents of institutions and upon householders. Teachers are also asked to report suspected cases.

"Communicable diseases are reported to the local health officer or the State Department of Health," Dr. Riley continued, "for the same reason that a fire is reported to the nearest fire department—in order that the outbreak may be gotten under control promptly and to prevent its spreading elsewhere. Just as a fire department snaps into action immediately, so a health department starts the necessary control measures as soon as it is notified of the occurrence of a communicable disease. The measures differ in accordance with the character and seriousness of the disease.

"In these days of rapid and easy travel by land and sea and in the air disease may spread very swiftly. It is no longer sufficient for a health officer to be informed only with regard to sickness from the catching diseases in his own county or state. In order that the people under his care may be adequately safeguarded, he must be notified—and notified promptly—of the occurrence of disease in other places. Disease prevention has become more and more a cooperative undertaking.

"Information in regard to the occurrence of communicable diseases in this country and throughout the world is collected by the U. S. Public Health Service and relayed to health departments throughout the United States. The records for each state are furnished by city and state departments of health. It is obvious that to be of use they must be accurate, complete and sent without delay.

"The accuracy and completness of the reports that are furnished by the different states are being tested by the U. S. Public Health Service to determine their right to be included in what is to be called the U. S. Registration Area for sickness-Morbidity, to sue the technical term. This will include only those states whose registration—or reporting—of sickness comes up to certain standards. The tests have been completed in sixteen of the twenty-three counties in Maryland, and so far, eleven have had a perfect record. It is hoped that an equally good showing will be made by the remaining counties and that Maryland will have a place in the proposed Registration Area."

Baked Spaghetti

One-half pound spaghetti, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 cup grated cheese.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Melt fat, add onion and green pepper and cook until soft. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper, paprika and sugar, and cook 10 minutes. Mix spaghetti with sauce. Add ½ cup cheese. Put in greased baking dish, sprinkle the top with remaining cheese and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until cheese is brown.

Cauliflower with Cheese

Place a whole cooked cauliflower on a dish for serving. Pour over and around the cauliflower 2 cups of cheese sauce.

Cheese Sauce

Two tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 cup American cheese (grated).

Melt butter in saucepan. Add flour mixture with the seasonings and stir until well blended. Pour on the milk and stir constantly. Cook until thick. Then add the cheese which has been carefully grated and cook slowly until the cheese is melted. Additional cheese grated and sprinkled over the cauliflower makes an attractive garnish.

Cheese Sauce for Boiled Rice or Hominy

Four tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 pint milk, ¾ cup grated cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of Worcestershire sauce. Blend flour and butter together in a saucepan over the fire. Add the milk. Bring to a boil over the fire, stirring until smooth. Then stir in the cheese and salt. Add Worcestershire sauce.

Cheese Straws (Bread Crumbs)

One tablespoon butter, 2-3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 cup grated cheese, 4 tablespoons milk (or just enough to hold materials together).

Mix flour, salt, bread crumbs, grated cheese and milk together. Stir in melted butter. Roll to ¼ inch thick, cut in strips and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.)

Baked Eggs

Three eggs, 1 cup crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup grated cheese.

In bottom of greased muffin pans, place layer of bread crumbs sprinkled with melted butter. Break egg into each section. Season, cover with layer of bread crumbs, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Put a dash of paprika on top. Bake in moderate over (325 degrees F.) about 15 minutes, or until eggs are set.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland. Md.

Due to reports of heavy winter killing of peaches in most parts of the middle western states, and some parts of the eastern states, it is believed there will be an opportunity to market Maryland peaches more widely and advantageously in 1930 than was possible in 1929, according to the annual Agricultural Outlook just released by the University of Maryland Extension Service. Keeping this in mind, those growers who have possibilities of a crop should exercise every precaution to obtain maximum products.

However, there is no reason to believe, in spite of the small crop of peaches in 1929, and the light planting of peach trees in the southern states in recent years, that a heavy planting of trees would be justified in Maryland. Total car-lot shipments of peaches in the six states of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, during the four-year period, 1922 to 1925, was 5,288 carloads. In the four-year period, 1926 to 1929, it was 5,852 carloads. This increase in car-lot shipments, in addition to the probable increase in truck shipments, indicates that production in those states is being maintained.

According to the Outlook, commercial plantings of apple trees are only justified where conditions are favorable for economic production of good quality fruit, since, in the barreled apple states, two-thirds of the trees in commercial orchards are less than 19 years of age, and one-third are under 9 years of age. Hence, indications point to a continued heavy production of commercial apples for several years.

Whenever plantings are made, it is pointed out, special attention should be given location and the choice of varieties, particularly in regard to market preference and adaptability of the variety to the region. Production of good quality fruit in Maryland is of first importance in meeting competition of other states, but there is also need for reducing the cost of production by increasing the yield per acre and by more economical use of labor, material and equipment in orchard operation.

Did you ever stop to think what might happen should your institution catch afire, what the result might be?

Are you equipped with any means of combating this danger? If not, will you just stop to consider the advantage of a fire-extinguisher, placed in a position easily accessible and constructed to give perfect service at less than a moment's notice.

Do you not consider anything to prevent loss or destruction of property by fire a good investment?

The American La France Extinguisher has proven itself to be one of the best and most perfectly constructed extinguishers on the market today.

TREES ARE FRIENDLY—

Trees are friends of all, probably much more than people generally realize. The farmer has saved a crop from wind damage by a row of these stately sentinels.

A home owner in some locality finds that his house will sell for a few hundred dollars more, in some cases thousands more, if he had the foresight to plant and encourage trees on the premises.

The motorist thanks the high heavens for a big shade tree when he has to change a tire along a hot summer road. American Legion posts and other organizations have done a worthy job by planting each year a row of trees as memorials.

Clubs and organizations of Garrett county are taking up the work of beautifying their particular towns and of providing for the future.

State and national officials have learned that wasteful destruction of our national forests has caused aerious problems of floods. The legislators are showing signs of understanding the situation and reforestation has begun.

If every man, woman and child would each year plant a few trees and take care in not starting forest fires by carelessness, the problem would be greatly simplified.

The tree is our friend not only in a practical sensc but also in other finer ways. Few folk are so hard-boiled but what they can get a real thrill out of grand old oak trees, towering into the aky—or beeches turning yellow in the spring—the willows blooming like pale green waterfalls—the dignified elms—the grateful shade in summer—the brilliant reds and yellows of the maples in the autumn—the evergreens beautiful at all times—nearly everyone has some favorite trees.

Joyce Kilmer wrote four of the greatest lines of modern poetry concerning nature, starting

"I think that I shall never see A poem lovely as a tree."

and closing with:

"Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

An Interestino Fact.

Maryland County, Liberia

Space forbids a detailed discussion of the incidents showing the attitude of the people of Maryland relative to the gradual abolition of slavery within her boundaries. One of these incidents we have chosen for today's article. The independent nation which Maryland founded in Africa.

In 1833, approximately 17 years prior to the Civil War, the Maryland State Colonization Society was formed for the purpose of transporting the free negroes of the state to Africa, the point selected for this colony being Cape Palms. Prior to that date, in 1834, the state passed a bill appropriating $260,000 for the transportation of freed negroes to the Dark Continent.

Incidently, it is interesting to note that the Federal Census of 1860 gave Maryland a population of 516,108 whites, 87,188 negro slaves and 83,718 free negroes.

November 28, 1833, the brig "Ann", armed with a "six pounder on two wheels", set sail from Baltimore. It may or may not be significant, but the flag of the new colony sought to be established was to be "the flag of the United States, except that in place of the stars upon a blue field, there should be a white cross of equilateral arms"—the cross and bars.

Arriving at Cape Palms, there was held on February 12, 1834, a great meeting between the colonists and three of the powerful native kings, looking to the purchase of a site for the colony. The sale and purchase was held up for some time, because there was no rum in sight, the colonists being all sworn to temperence. Finally, the production of silver dollars won the day and an island with three hills, a small harbor and quite a good deal of farming land, was purchased and laid out into farms on each side of "Maryland Avenue." A code of laws was drawn up and a paper currency was issued, the notes in addition to the figures representing the denomination, bore a picture of the article it would purchase—five cents; a bunch of tobacco; ten cents, a chicken; one dollar, a goat, and so on.

In 1854, a war with the natives led to the absorption of the State of Liberia into the Republic of Liberia as "Maryland County."

Thus ended an idealistic attempt to solve a much vexed problem.

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?
? THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' ?
? QUESTION BOX ?
? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. Why does a bee die when its 'stinger' comes out?

2. Is it true that once upon a time we had one eye, placed in the middle of the forehead?

3. Why do the waves curl over and break?

1. In the first place what we call the sting of a bee is not really intended for that purpose, but exists to help the bees lay its eggs, and when the bee uses its 'stinger' it is roughly torn from its body causing a wound which soon proves fatal. It is only used as a matter of defense of the hive and other bees, so the bee in using its 'stinger' really gives its life to protect its home and, in fact, commits suicide. The bees that sting do not themselves lay eggs.

2. Of course, this is a very hard question to answer and be sure we are right. Some very learned scientists, however, who have studied the brains of all kinds of animals, say that there still remains a part of the brain which represents an eye which occupied the middle of the head in front, right in the center. In fact, there still exists in New Zealand a lizzard in which this central eye is so near the surface that it can be affected by the rays of light. So far as known this is the only animal in the world in which this eye still exists. But it is not likely that human beings were so constructed.

3. We can best answer this question by asking you another one: "Why does a man topple over when he jumps from moving train?" The answer to the two questions is just the same. When a man steps off a train his body is all moving, and when his feet touch the platform, their motion is stopped, unless he runs quickly enough in the direction in which the train is moving. The rest of his body goes on moving and his feet are left behind and as the upper part of his body does not stop when his feet do, he topples over and fails. That is what happens to the waves when they reach the shore, their feet, so to speak, (the bottom part of the waves) are caught and held back by rubbing against the sand and pebbles; but the rest of the wave moves on and so they topple over and break.

NEW PROJECT ANNOUNCED BY DEMONSTRATION AGENT

Planning And Making of Children's Clothes to be Featured

A series of demonstrations in planning and making clothes for children is announced by Miss Benthien, Home Demonstration Agent for Garrett county. She is now making arrangements to hold them at points in the county which will be most convenient for those desiring to attend. The first one will be held on May 8, at the Court House.

This project, according to Miss Benthien, is especially designed to help mothers solve the many problems which are encountered in providing an adequate supply of suitable clothes for rapidly-growing, active children, and she is anxious that just as many of the mothers in the county as can possible do so take advantage of this opportunity.

Each demonstration will occupy an entire day and will include clothing for both girls and boys, of ages up to twelve years for girls, and up to six years for boys. Among the garments which will be on display and used for illustrative purposes will be clothes for the baby, rompers that are easily made, bibs that a small child can put on, dresses for girls up to twelve years, suits for boys up to six years, sun suits, shoes and stockings and underwear.

With actual garments, which she has made for illustration, Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist of the University of Maryland Extension Service, will attend each demonstration and will show just how the garments are made and point out their important features. An opportunity will also be given those who attend to examine the garments in which they are particularly interested, and time will be allowed for cutting patterns of some of them.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, Spencer J. Hardesty, who died March 15, 1927.
More and more each day I miss you,
Friends may think my wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within my heart concealed.

STATE WILL SPEND LARGE SUM OF MONEY IN ROADS

Six Projects in Allegany and Garrett are on Spring Program

With three big projects east of Cumberland nearing completion, the State Roads Commission is planning six other projects for the Western end of the state that will cost close to a million dollars.

The improvements planned for Allegany and Garrett county, bids for which will be solicited within the next three weeks, will give this section one of the best net-werk of roads in the state.

Garrett County Project

In Garrett county the state already has underway a new concrete road from Grantsville to the Pennsylvania State Line.

In addition to this five miles will be added to the concrete road from Oakland toward Kitzmiller. Seven miles of this road, which is over mountains and of difficult construction, has already been built.

The biggest project for Allegany county is the McCool-Westernport road, consisting of a 16-foot concrete highway about five miles long.

Another long needed improvement to be undertaken will be the relocation of the road and construction of a bridge at Moscow, which will eliminate two railroad crossings. Continuing the improvements to Lake George's Creek road further, about one mile of the road through the town of Barton will be relocated and approaches to another bridge built. Other sections of that road will also be built up with concrete shoulders.

On the Mt. Savage road, the bridge at Corrigansville will be replaced with a two-way structure and about one and a half miles of narrow concrete road through that town will be widened to about eighteen feet. Work of improving the macadam road near Mt. Savage will also be continued.

These improvements, which have been definitely decided upon, will cost between $700,000 and $800,000, the amount spent in each county being approximately equal.

Mountain Grading Finished

East of Cumberland, the work of grading the roads over Polish mountain and Town Hill and Sidling mountain will be completed within the next week, according to District Engineer Lee T. Downey. Work has already been started on the concrete from the top of Green Ridge to the bottom of Sidling mountain. The roads on all three mountains will be completed by July, Mr. Downey said.

Other improvements east of Cumberland include the elimination of the B. & O. crossing at Ridgeville; and, later on, the Western Maryland crossing five miles east of Hancock may also be replaced with an overhead bridge.

The Perilous Romance

By BEATRICE VANDEGRIFT

(Copyright.)

"I WANT you to marry me, Loretta Poole," said the perfectly strange man at the studio party.

Loretta had never been to a studio party in New York before. But the tall, gorgeous sophisticated Irma who shared her apartment and worked in the same advertising firm with her, had brought her on an impulse of the moment.

Loretta had been casually introduced to the man earlier in the evening, but had not caught his name. He was tall and lean with a slight dark mustache which gave him an air of kindly cynicism. He had stood a bit apart from the others—the long-haired men who raved on Nordicism and the doom of the theater—the white-cheeked, red-lipped girls who incessantly smoked and talked without looking at a person. One red-headed girl in green had risen, sung a snatch or two of a song, and sat down in the middle of a bar with a weary, "Oh, punk!"

This man was a little different. And now he had incredibly asked her to marry him, standing beside her on the small grilled balcony off the studio, and looking down into what used to be a stable yard, pale in the wet light of a blurred moon.

Loretta had not had a love affair in her twenty-four years. She had never even been kissed. One day, playing at "forfeits" in the school yard, Jack Moselle, the bad boy of town, was offered the penalty of either kissing Loretta Poole or drinking down a glass of water with a live rat in it. He had chosen the latter—he, the scum of town, who lived across the railroad tracks, whose mother was a washwoman and whose father was spoken of only in whispers by the nice people of town . . . 'Jack Moselle, who sulked in the back seats of the classrooms, coming sometimes to life in English class to give a moody, disconcertingly original recitation that made the teacher afraid to call on him again. This town bad boy had chosen not to kiss her! Loretta had never forgotten the humiliation of it.

"I want to marry you," the man repeated.

Loretta protested that she did not know him, that she had just met him, that he must be a little out of his head. She did not add, "And I don't even know what kind of a man you are. You may be all right—and you may not be."

"Give me time," she begged bewilderedly. "Let me know you better."

"If you don't answer me now, I shall never ask you again," he stated definitely.

Wild thoughts raced through Loretta's head. This would probably be the only romance of her life. Did she dare grasp it? This man might be anything. Would she risk him?

"I will," she told him, suddenly. "Oh, please," as he moved towards her. She retreated to the crowded room, while he remained on the balcony, smoking.

"Who—who is the tall thin man with the mustache?" she finally summoned the courage to ask of a girl who wandered by.

"You mean Grandin Crane?" came the answer. "The writer? Why, he's the only real celebrity in the crowd."

Loretta breathed deeply. She knew of Grandin Crane. She had read his novels. After a time she humbly sought him on the balcony.

"I know you," she said. "And I don't see why you want to marry me."

"Because I love you," he returned with intensity, "and always have."

"Always? You just met me."

"I met you," he said, smiling, "in the seventh grade. I used to sit in the back of the room so I could watch you. You hated me. You were the little lady. Your mother wouldn't let you have anything to do with me. I was the town bad boy—from across the tracks—"

"Jack Moselle!" exclaimed Loretta.

He nodded.

"I'm sorry to have tricked you into marrying me. You never would have—knowing me."

"No," stammered Loretta, then added, "But why wouldn't you kiss me—that time? You preferred swallowing a live rat."

"I loved you too much to humble you by kissing you—then. Am I bumbling you now, Loretta?"

Humidity

The weather bureau says that relative humidity is the ratio of the amount of invisible water vapor in a given volume of air to the amount that would make this air saturated at the same temperature. In short, it is the ratio between the amount of invisible vapor present to the maximum amount that could be present at the same temperature. In measuring humidity, only the invisible water vapor is considered, and not the drops of rain or droplets of fog.

Alligators in Demand

Alligators are extensively utilized. Their hides can be tanned into an excellent leather, which has become expensive. The teeth, obtained by rotting the skulls in the ground, are of fine ivory, and valued for carving into ornaments. Both flesh and eggs are eaten by some persons, and the eggs are valued because they can be hatched in boxes of warm sand, yielding young alligators to be sold as pets, or killed and made into curious ornaments.

Lesson for April 13

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:1-14; 19: 13-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto Me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus, the Children's Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Friend of Girls and Boys.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Growing in the Kingdom.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Sin of Neglecting and Misguiding Children.

I. The Greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven (vv. 1-4).

1. The disciples' question (v. 1).

The prominence given to Peter in connection with the announcement of Christ's purpose to build the church and the payment of tribute with the money in the fish's mouth, provoked jealousy on the part of the other disciples. The transfiguration scene revealed the divine person and the program of His kingdom. Seeing that the kingdom was to come to realization despite the tragedy of the cross, disciples wished to know their place of rank in the kingdom.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 2-4).

He taught them by placing a little child in their midst.

(1) Condition of entrance into the kingdom (v. 3). The great question was as to whether they were really in the kingdom. Their behavior revealed the fact that they needed conversion. Before they could even see, much less enter into, the kingdom, they must be born from above (John 3:3, 5). (2) Whosoever possesses childlike humility is the greatest (v. 4). The child is dependent, lowly and modest. Those who have been born again, or converted, have these characteristics.

II. The Lord's Identification With His Believing Ones (vv. 5-9).

1. Receiving the believer in Christ's name is receiving Christ (v. 5).

Through faith in Christ we become God's children and so completely is our life interwoven with His that He regards treatment of us as treatment of Himself.

2. The peril of causing a believer to stumble (vv. 6-9).

To cause to stumble means to give occasion for a moral fall. The particular reference was to the carnality and selfishness which were expressing themselves in their contention for preeminence. Their behavior was not only an injury, but a stumbling block to others. Everything causing one to stumble, though it be as vital as hands and feet, should be removed.

III. Believers Are Specially Cared for by the Heavenly Father (vv. 10-14).

1. They are under angelic guardianship (v. 10).

So precious is the believer in God's sight that angelic messengers are provided (Heb. 1:10). These angelic messengers have access to the very throne of God, even beholding His face. So high is the honor bestowed upon believers that the highest angels are sent to guard them.

2. The Son came especially to save such from their lost condition (vv. 11-14).

The Heavenly Father does not will that any one of these should perish. They are objects of the Father's seeking love. The salvation of the humble believer has been secured by the incarnation and the sacrifice of the Good Shepherd.

IV. Jesus Receiving Little Children (Matt. 19:13-15).

We should carefully note the setting of this text. Jesus had been speaking of the sanctity of marriage, which is the bulwark of the home. Into the sacred enclosure of the home comes childhood to complete and ennoble it.

1. Children brought to Jesus (v. 13).

Doubtless they were brought by their parents. Many parents today who are careless as to themselves, desire to bring their children into touch with Jesus Christ.

2. Rebuked by the disciples (v. 13).

They regarded children as too insignificant to engage the Lord's attention. Christ places high value upon children.

3. The disciples rebuked by Christ (v. 14).

These words uttered by the Lord have placed a peculiar dignity upon the child. It is Christlike to care for children and no service in the world pays such large dividends.

4. Christ laid His hands upon the children (v. 15).

Facts and Figures on Your Telephone

By EDWIN F. HILL

Edwin F. Hill

There has never been a time when as many employees of industry owned an interest in the business as now. The heads of large industrial organizations recognize the value of this partnership and encourage the purchasing of stock in the business. It's an excellent example of thrift and, in addition, gives the employees an added interest in the operation of the organization of which they are a part.

Annual reports of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies show that 9,830 employees in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia are purchasing 42,267 shares of stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. At the present market quotation, these shares have a value of more than $10,000,000.

Ownership of stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is widespread. On January 1, there were 469,801 stockholders of this company. Last year the number of stockholders increased 15,205. The company's latest report gives the average number of shares of capital stock outstanding as 13,113,746. Net earnings per share available for dividends for 1929 were $12.67. The corresponding figure for 1928 was $12.11 per share.

It will be of interest to know that the average number of shares held per stockholder is twenty-eight. No single individual holds as much as one per cent of the total capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Incredible -- But True

One person in a hundred won't know what this girl is holding. It's a section of underground telephone cable, and there are 3,636 wires in it. Sounds incredible? The telephone company says it's correct and the girl in the picture is Miss Grace Sahm, an employee of the company's information department in Washington.

This is the largest cable made. It is capable of providing for telephone conversations between 3,636 people at one time. The circuits in such a cable are equivalent to 72 pole lines, each carrying 50 wires.

Telephone Research Department Expands

New Building Under Construction Will Provide Increased Laboratory Facilities

The Bell Telephone Laboratories, where research and development is carried on for the Bell System Companies, is undoubtedly one of the best equipped institutions of its kind in the world. In this building, located at 463 West Street, New York City, one will find more than 5,400 scientists, engineers and assistants engaged in problems designed to produce new and improved equipment for telephony and telegraphy.

Increased research and development activities in the telephone industry have necessitated an enlargement of the laboratory facilities and the construction of an additional and more modern building is now under way.

Among the interesting sections of the Laboratories are the sound-proof rooms required for research and development work on telephone instruments, acoustics and audition.

Besides preventing the entry of sound, these rooms have specially treated interiors to eliminate reverberation. They have special ventilating systems to admit fresh air without allowing noise to enter. There are now thirteen such rooms, which vary in size from booths in which one or two persons can work to larger rooms thirty by thirty feet square.

These sound-proof rooms are used in tests on various kinds of telephone transmitters and receivers and in studies of speech and hearing.

MT. LAKE PARK

We desire to take this medium to announce to Jim Painter, Druggist Dawson and any other interested Izaak Waltons in Oakland and elsewhere, that we do no more fishing until it quits snowing and the sun shines. President Hoover and the writer went the other day and the latter has been laid up with laryngitis ever since. We like fishing but by the eternal we don't like laryngitis.

We now hear that the road leading from Loch Lynn to Gormania through the Ryan's Glade section is going to be started this spring, all rights of way having been secured. You know it's lucky for the Mt. Lake correspondent that we hear one thing and then another. These various rumors help fill up what would otherwise be a depleted column, for with the late blizzard and an ill-advised fishing trip, news items of interest are scarce and hard to dig up. But getting back to the road proposition, if it starts at as many points in Loch Lynn, and goes in as many different directions, as the different rumors seem to indicate, it will require the assistance of a cross-eyed driver and a bow-legged mechanic to negotiate the trail. However, we are willing to concede that the County Commissioners know their onions and are willing to leave the matter entirely up to them, just so the road is started this spring in order that the rather serious unemployment situation may be relieved. But it seems that the building of this section of road is a much needed improvement and a patriotic duty.

We might wait until the next issue to call attention to the help-yourself chicken dinner that is going to be held at the Park M. E. church on the evening of April 23. That will be Wednesday. But we are afraid we will overlook the item, therefore, in order that you may not miss a good thing—a dinner at 50 cents—chicken, soup and all the trimmin's, we mention it now. Better arrange for this and you can thank us afterwards.

VOLUME 54. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, APRIL 17, 1930. NUMBER 9.

STILL NO TRACE OF MAN MISSING SINCE APRIL 4

Efforts to Locate William Harvey Are Unsuccessful—Divers Return to Baltimore

Efforts to locate the body of William Harvey, city engineer of Frostburg, were redoubled on Sunday and the days following by rescuers who were confident that it would rise to the surface on the ninth day since his disappearance.

Harvey has been missing since Friday, April 4, when his automobile was found on the Glendale bridge, across the narrows of Deep Creek Lake, about seven miles north of Oakland, and friends of the man are certain he committed suicide by jumping into the water.

Scores of men have been working for ten days in dynamiting and dragging the lake while others searched the woods in that section. Two divers, Charles and Nathan Swacco, of Baltimore, spent Thursday evening and Friday searching the bottom of the lake, covering an area of approximately 5,000 square feet under and near the bridge.

They found, contrary to general impression, that there was no undercurrent, and they expressed the conviction that had Harvey's body gone down from the bridge they would have found it. The divers returned to Baltimore on Saturday.

It is general belief that his body will be found floating on the surface of the lake, and an endless lookout is being maintained by his friends who have searchlights, boats and grappling hooks, and remain constantly in that vicinity.

Insists She Saw Him

Miss Lola Bennett's story that she saw Harvey get on a Western Maryland train Friday afternoon is not considered seriously by people here. Miss Bennett, who teaches at Sang Run, this county, got on the train at Wilson, and she told her parents that Harvey got on at a little station near Kitzmiller, carrying a traveling bag and that she recognized his hat. The Western Maryland track is over 20 miles from where his automobile was abandoned, and he was seen in the vicinity of the lake at 4 o'clock the afternoon of his disappearance. The train is due in the Kitzmiller section at approximately that time. Miss Bennett did not converse with the man and it is believed that she has been mistaken in her recognition.

It is possible that his body, if it is in the lake, was blown to pieces or covered with tons of earth when dynamite was exploded beneath the surface.

Elks and Legion Help

Funds to defray the expense attached to securing the professional divers was provided by local and Cumberland business men and eoneerns for which Harvey had rendered service. Substantial assistance was also given by Frostburg Lodge, No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, of which Harvey was a member, and the American Drum Corps, whose members state that Harvey was always one of their staunchest friends and a generous contributor when they conducted campaigns to raise funds for the organization.

Firemen Called to Extinguish Brush Fires at Park

The Oakland Volunteer Fire department was called twice during the past week to extinguish brush fires, both of them at Mt. Lake Park. The first call came on Thursday afternoon from the home of Hervey Bittner, and the second came Sunday afternoon as a result of a blaze in the extreme southwest section of the Park.

Both fires were extinguished before any great damage had been done. The brush fire is supposed to have caught from the sparks of a locomotive, while the fire around the Bittner home caught from a lighted rubbish pile.

Cars Wreck at Sunnyside

Two cars, one a Ford roadster driven by J. Z. Friend, Swanton, and the other a Chevrolet sedan driven by Alva Ream, Crellin, sideswiped at a point near Sunnyside, on route 37, Saturday evening, damaging them to a considerable extent.

The fenders, running board and wheels on the left side of each car were practically demolished. No one was injured.

FORM LEGION AUXILIARY AT MEETING ON MONDAY

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Williams Is Elected Head of Organization

The wives, mothers, and sisters of members of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, met on Monday evening in the City Hall and organized an American Legion Auxiliary. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Williams; vice-presidents, Mrs. Neil Fraley and Mrs. Delilah Kildow; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Carter; treasurer, Mrs. Ed. Lawrence; Chaplain, Mrs. B. H. Sincell; sergeant-at-arms, Miss Theresa Welling.

At a previous meeting the purpose and aims of the organization had been explained by the State President of the American Legion Auxiliary. At the meeting on Monday further discussion was made of its purpose and aims. Some community projects were suggested and the Auxiliary promises to be of service to the community. All ladies who have relatives members of the American Legion are urged to make application and become members of the Oakland American Legion Auxiliary. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, April 29, at 8 o'clock in the City Hall.

The first three are hold-over members; Mr. Ream and Mr. Dawson were re-elected and M. Weber and Mr. Naylor are new members of the board.

Peddicord's Team Wins Bowling Championship

Peddicord's bowling team, winner of the first round of the Oakland Bowling league, defeated Alvey Martin's team, winner of the second round, in a championship series of five games, played Monday night on the recreation alleys. Martin's team won the first game but Peddicord's men came back strong and took the next three.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the league, according to Joseph Hinebaugh, manager. The bowling league has become an annual affair, with this year's contests the most successful, judging from the amount of interest taken by members of the teams.

Morgantown Wins

Morgantown Masonic bowling team defeated the Oakland team on the Recreation alleys on Tuesday night by the margin of 28 pins. This is the third series of games to be played and Morgantown has been successful in two of them.

HEALTH DAY IN COUNTY WILL BE HELD IN JUNE

All-day Celebration Planned for Oakland, Friendsville, Grantsville and Accident

That the celebration of Child Health Day in Garrett county would be held the first week of June was announced by Miss Ruth Martin, public health nurse, who is planning all-day celebrations for Oakland, Grantsville, Friendsville, and Accident.

Child Health Day, usually held the first of May in Maryland, is not held in Garrett county until the latter part of May or the first of June, on account of the delayed warm weather in this section. It is possible to arrange a more fitting program on the latter date, it was stated.

All day celebrations will be held at Oakland and Friendsville on Thursday, June 5; and Grantsville and Accident on June 6. Among the speakers for these occasions are Dr. J. H. M. Knox, director of the bureau of child hygiene of the State Department of Health; and Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, deputy State health officer of Cumberland.

A free moving picture will be shown at each place. Children from the country schools will participate in this program at the nearest center. A parade of the school children will be held in which a prize will be given for the best Health idea demonstrated. This is to be followed by a program by the schools, a program of plays, pageants, songs, stunts, etc. A splendid program is being prepared for each place and a large attendance is expected.

Dr. McComas to Speak at High School Assembly

Dr. Henry W. McComas is to address the student body of Oakland High school this afternoon at two o'clock in the High school auditorium, on the subject of "Health".

Dr. McComas' talk will be followed by a program arranged by the Home Economics club under the direction of Miss Eva Falkenstein. The program includes a playlet, "A Bachelor's Dilema", Virginia Fraley, Beulah Savedge, Margaret Tillett, Glenna Paugh, Glenda Smith, Geraldine Feathers, Janice Graham, Mary Sue Bell; a second playlet, "The Troubles of a Bride and Groom," Elizabeth Hoyc, Nellie Wagner, Clara Moon; readings by Louise Moon; preserving hints by Eleanor Baker, Lillian Ashby, Mary Louise Savedge, Violet Crissinger; kitchen cabinet band, Louise Moon, Maxine Paulie, Geraldine Feathers, Janice Graham, Nellie Holtschneider, Katharine White, Pauline Browning; musical selection, Genevieve Sweeney.

Parents and friends of the Oakland High school are invited to be present. There will be a small charge of five cents, the proceeds going to the Home Economics department.

Mr. Harvey is a member of one of the pioneer families of Garrett county and has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all his life.

DIED.

WILLIAM A. SPIKER

William A. Spiker, aged 50 years, died Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock at his home at Accident following an illness of short duration. He was taken seriously ill on Saturday from which he was unable to rally.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Brethren church, Accident. Interment will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, three sons and three daughters: Foster O., of Oakland; Ross, of Cumberland; Kathryn, student in Western Maryland college; John, student in Blue Ridge college; and Lena and Bernice, at home. The deceased is also a brother of ex-senator Harvey J. Speicher, and Henry M. Speicher, both of Accident.

CONTEST FOR IMPROVING YARDS-GARDENS IS BEGUN

Oakland Civic Club Will Sponsor Contest for Beautifying Properties of Citizens

That a yard and garden improvement contest would be conducted by the Ookland Civie club was announced yesterday by Miss Lottie Loar, president of the club, following a special meeting held Tuesday afternoon. All residents of Oakland will be eligible to compete for prizes for the best garden and the most improvement in their yards during the summer months, it was stated. Mrs. A. L. Lee has been named chairman of the committee in charge.

The contest is being held in the hope that Oakland citizens would improve their properties by planting flowers and shrubbery, and cleaning up their premises. To make Oakland more attractive is the ultimate goal of the club.

All who desire to enter the contest are to notify the Civic club. There will be judges appointed who will visit three times the places to be beautified, once before planting, once during the season, and once at the end of the growing season. The judges will be impartial in their selection of the winners and appropriate prizes will be awarded at the conclusion of the contest.

The contest is being held locally this year, but according to Miss Loar, it will become county-wide in scope next year, and will thereafter become a permanent fixture on the program of the club.

Fifty cents is being offered to any person who sends in a winning slogan to be used in conducting the contest. Anybody is eligible to compete.

Everybody is urged to send in his application, and to start immediately in planting and beautifying.

HEALTH NURSE IS ACTIVE DURING MONTH OF MARCH

127 Visits Are Made—Schools Inspected—Corrections Made

One hundred twenty-seven visits, inspections in eight schools, and arrangements for treatment of a number of cases are listed in the monthly report of Miss Ruth Martin, public health nurse for Garrett county.

Children were inspected in Friendsville, 3 rooms; Mountain Lake Park, 2 rooms; Deer Park, 2 rooms; Rush, Winding Ridge, Rich Hill, Selbysport, and Hutton. Notices were sent to parents of defective children advising them of conditions found.

After examination at Cumberland, two boys from Bear Hill will be provided with glasses through the local Red Cross.

Two small boys of Oakland who were suffering from an inflamation of the eyes were examined by a doctor. One of them was improved by treatment, and the other one will be taken to an occulist to be fitted with glasses.

Arrangements have been made to send a Red House school boy to Johns Hopkins for examination and treatment. Two patients from Friendsville, who have been in Baltimore for treatment, returned home much improved. A four-year old crippled child from Friendsville was sent to Baltimore for examination. This was financed by the local Civie club.

Crellin Children Weighed

Children in the Crellin school have been weighed each month this year. The Parent-Teachers Association is supplying milk to all underweight children in this school.

Classes in "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" are being held at Friendsville and Accident with a total enrollment of twenty-nine. Sixteen lessons were given this month.

A meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association at Grantsville was attended and a talk given on "Health in School and Community."

Dr. J. P. Franklin, deputy State health officer, and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, met with the public health nurse and discussed ways of promoting and improving the health inspection program of the schools.

Arrangements are being made to hold a chest clinic and an orthopedic clinic at Oakland in May.

Improve your yards and gardens.

Plans are progressing for a celebration of Boys' Week in Garrett county, April 27 to May 4, and the Boys' Work committee of the Oakland Rotary club, under whose direction the event is being held, is arranging a complete program for the entire week.

Every boy is expected to be in Sunday School or in Church on Sunday. Pastors are urged to preach a special sermon to the boys and their parents on that day.

A big parade will be held on Sunday afternoon. The largest number in line from an organization or group out of town will be given a prize. M. Harry Cronin, Fairmont, will address the boys and their parents immediately after the parade in the Maryland theatre.

Monday and Tuesday will be Days in School when some member of the Rotary club will speak to the boys in the various schools.

Wednesday will be home day, Thursday, civic day; and on Friday the boys will be guests of the Rotary club at a moving picture. Saturday will be Boys' Day out-of-doors.

MARBLE TOURNAMENT TO BE CONDUCTED IN COUNTY

County Winner Will be Given Free Trip to Ocean City, N. J.

A county-wide marble tournament for boys and girls will be held under the auspices of the Boys' Work committee of the Oakland Rotary club, it has been announced.

Permission has been obtained from F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, to conduct the tournament about the schools of the county. Each school center is to select its champion and the county champion will be selected at the Annual Track and Field Day, to be held at the Fair grounds, Oakland, on May 28.

The county winner will be given a free trip to Ocean City, N. J., where he will represent Garrett County in the nation-wide marble tournament in June. The winner will be accompanied to Ocean City by some responsible escort, it was stated.

The tournament is open to the boys and girls of the county who are under 14 years of age or who become 15 on or before July 1, 1930. A copy of rules will be placed in the hands of every teacher in the county and they must be strictly followed.

Mr. Cheston H. Browning, Candidate for County Treasurer

Mr. Cheston H. Browning, Oakland, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of County Treasurer, which announcement appears in The Republican today.

Mr. Browning until a few years ago conducted successfully a general mercantile business at Deer Park where he held the confidence of the people by his honest business methods. Later he disposed of the business and moved to Oakland where he is now engaged in the gas and service station business, his office being located on Third street.

Thirty Present on Scout Overnight Hike

The largest over-night hike ever taken by Oakland Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, was taken on Saturday evening when 28 scouts, the scoutmaster and Charles Dodge went to the Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake, about nine miles north of Oakland. Cooking was done individually by scouts and the night was spent in the permanent sleeping quarters.

Sunday morning the troop divided and searched along the banks of the lake for the body of William Harvey, supposed to have drowned on April 4. The return to Oakland was made about 3 o'clock.

COMMISSIONERS REDUCE TAX RATE THREE CENTS

Is Third Reduction In As Many Years—County Rate Is $1.80 and State Rate 25 Cents

The third reduction in as many years in the tax rate for Garrett county was made Tuesday by the Board of County Commissioners who declared a county tax rate of $1.80 on each one hundred dollars of assessed property in the county for the year 1930. The reduction this year was three cents, making a total reduction of 19 cents within the past three years. The rate, however, is still above that of 1926, which was $1.77.

Tax rate, 1927	$1.99
Tax rate, 1928	1.90
Tax rate, 1929	1.83
Tax rate, 1930	1.80

The State tax rate this year, fixed by the legislature, is 25 cents per $100, which is 74-100 less than last year.

The basis for the assessment was made on $21,304,594.00, and the total appropriation amounted to $383,482.69, an amount in excess of last year by $11,573.92.

The amount set aside this year in the general road fund is $26,415, and this, added to the special road levy of $44,000, makes the total road levy $66,415 which is slightly less than last year's figures. The contingent fund set aside by the levy was $21,575.00.

Public Schools

Public Schools of the county will receive $143,838.30 for the general running expenses. In addition, however, the schools will receive $50,000 os capital outlay, for new building purposes. Only $25,000 of this, however, was levied in the 1930 levy, Mr. George D. Browning, president of the board, stated. The remaining $25,000 was taken from the balance of the 1929 contingent fund, and given over to the schools to better educational facilities for the children of the county. The money for the schools is divided as follows:

General Control	$ 14,050.00
Instructional Service	266,360.00
Operation of School Plant	19,500.00
Maintenance of School Plant	15,000.00
Auxiliary Agencies	43,500.00
Fixed Charges	4,458.30
Total	$362,868.30
Less estimated receipts from State and other sources other than county levy	$219,030.00
Total amount levied for current expenses	143,838.30
Capital Outlay for new building purposes	50,000.00
Total	$193,838.30
Total amount provided by State and county for the public schools of Garrett County for 1930-1931	$412,868.30

By the Man In The Street

Diregarding the effort of a few reporters to pump gas into the Ritchie fourth term campaign and make their readers believe that there is a great rush for the Ritchie "bandwagon," the opponents of His Excellency are going ahead with their plans to put a new ticket in the field.

The desire, as we understand it, is for an entire new slate so that those who are in favor of rotation in office may have full opportunity to vote in the primary next September. And on top of that there is prospect of two local primary tickets for the same primary, although great efforts are being made to add up and divide without a serious quarrel.

The Ritchie announcement of the fourth term candidacy came after months of preparation, preceded by an advertised list of indorsers, but made nothing more than a dull thud. Gloomy in its terms, it produced more gloom. There was no tumult and no shouting. The thing had become too monotonous to be interesting.

Since then reporters for pliable journals have been writing themselves blue in the face trying to convince their readers that all the insurgents have climbed into the Ritchie "bandwagon," or will climb tomorrow or if not tomorrow then the next day or if not the next day then next week or the week after that or some time between now and the closing of the polls on the evening of the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November next.

But to date no important insurgent has climbed in for their leaders consider the Ritchie vehicle no bandwagon at all but a hearse. They shudder at the idea of going to the polls in a hearse. They recall 1895 and this looks much worse than that did.

Another idea put forth assiduously is that no other candidate will enter the primary against Ritchie. We can't understand where reporters get such information. We don't get it and we get the contrary information.

But if and when a new candidate goes in, the Ritchie fourth term journalistic henchmen may be expected to shout that he is a stalking horse, that he is no good, that his campaign has cracked up, or almost anything else that Ritchie and his henchmen want them to write. For it does seem that with all the improvements and inventions of this age we are to have an old time campaign with all the old time tricks and hokum—and some new things added.

McIntosh Out;
Some Reasons Why

Due notice was given in these columns that the backers of State Senator McIntosh could not get through a primary with their favorite but we thought he would remain in the field until a new anti-Ritchie ticket could be framed. That he did not do so was a tactical mistake which must be blamed on some of his advisers, notably Howard Bruce, who has not yet cut his political wisdom teeth. There was, so far as we can see, no reason why Mr. McIntosh could not have held on another week or ten days to note the reaction to the Ritchie announcement which was scheduled for last Tuesday and was put forth as arranged.

The Ritchie announcement fell as dead as a last year's bird's nest and did not even evoke a cheer from the most frantic of the Governor's henchmen.

The great trouble with Mr. McIntosh was that he was looked upon by so many as a part of the Ritchie administration, while his chief backer, Howard Bruce, has been holding office as a member of the State Roads Commission to save the Ritchie face after a scandal. Thousands of Democrats apparently suspected that it was all a frame-up for the Governor's benefit, that McIntosh was put in to keep others out and the silence of the candidate added force to this suggestion. We understand that the long McIntosh silence was due to the insistence of Howard Bruce, who held to the belief that the Governor would withdraw if he was not attacked. Then the anti-Ritchie people put too much faith in certain Eastern Shore Democratic leaders who, seeming sympathetic, reported that they could not rally their people to the McIntosh support.

It was pointed out that during the so-called State roads investigation at Annapolis, Mr. McIntosh as president of the Senate sat silent when he had a great opportunity to come to the front and demand a real investigation insted of an affair so piloted as to keep respsonsibility away from the door of the Governor where so many thought it belonged.

Furthermore Mr. McIntosh sat there and voted for every Ritchie measure that came along and thus helped to rivet the Ritchie chains on the Democratic party. Thus he was in no position to make a vigorous fight on the Ritchie administration which is now on trial and is in grave danger of being convicted.

But in the face of all this, had Howard Bruce cut loose from the Ritchie administration, taken off his coat and gone to the front for McIntosh much could still have been done for that candidate. But Mr. Bruce did not see fit to do it. He seemed to be satisfied to play the role of an adviser.

Supposed Flurry
Fooled Very Few

According to some of the political journalists there was quite a flurry over the filling out of the fourth term ticket. There was Brooke Lee, his war paint on and his eagle feathers waving in the wind. Brooke wanted Comptroller Gordy pushed aside and his place taken by Henry P. Turner, of Talbot, but Henry, not liking the appearance of the Ritchie so-called "bandwagon," refused to be chosen. Then Brooke switched to J. Enos Ray and did great battle for Enos, thereby defying Frank A. Furst who had weeks ago bestowed his best blessing on Mr. Gordy. There we had it—in the daily papers—Brooke Lee defying Furst. The air was shaken by stage thunder and shop-made lightning was flashing all around. There was to be a crash of the universe as an immovable body came in contact with an irresistible force although at this writing we have not been able to determine which was the irresistible force.

The big excitement lasted for several hours or until Billy Gordy phoned over that he would go in and he hadn't any more than done this when Mr. Ray wirclessed over that he would go out and so Brooke Lee went back to Silver Spring and his land speculations and his law suits and libel cases and other diversions to remain for several days. Frank Furst's blessing seemed to work for the time being and Brooke Lee seemed to have no more effect than an amateur witch doctor. All that Brooke Lee got out of it was that some enthusiastic reporters wrote of him as one of the "big three."

Robinson and Young
Join the Procession

Attorney General Robinson and Appeals Court Clerk Young, liked by the Governor about as much as he adores Mr. Gordy, stayed in the high grass and awaited the results of the Great Battle between Furst and Brooke Lee. After the fake lightning had ceased and the stage smoke had rolled away they came out in the open and confessed that they intended to accompany the Governor into his fourth term adventure and all this too, without getting any more of a blessing from Ritchie than Gordy had received, which was exactly nothing. For Ritchie, his associates say, fears the effort for so much reelection. The boat may be overloaded.

And there you are: Ritchie, Gordy, Robinson, Young, all four in a row. Only one of the four has the Ritchie blessing. That one is Albert C. Ritchie. Others are bearing the Furst blessing alone. For the venerable contractor in the top of the Fidelity Building has said it must be all of the old ticket or none, and Ritchie hadn't the courage to fight.

That Great Petition
For the Fourth Sacrifice

Many were apparently disappointed by the showing of the fourth term spontaneous petition the Governor had his office holders prepare. Weeks were consumed in getting the names. A strong effort was made to get prominent men but there was a fall down. Many of those asked declined to sign, some giving "business reasons" as the cause. And on top of that some names that may do more harm than good got into the list through the stupidity of some of the promoters.

The Johns Hopkins physicians were canvassed thoroughly, and for the measure of success obtained thanks are evidently due to Dr. Hugh H. Young, a fourth term enthusiast. The Johns Hopkins men were used to perfume the scheme just as in his announcement the Governor used the name of Dr. Wm. H. Welch, the distinguished octogenarian who had been the object of a celebration this very week. The Governor has used this amiable scientist just as a cosmetic manufacturer would use the name of a stage or socicty beauty to help sell his wares.

Most of those who signed the petition declaring Ritchie a national figure were and are still unknown to the public. A better petition, under the circumstances would have been no petition at all, say some of the signers themselves.

Mussing It Up
In Baltimore County

It was supposed that former Congressman Wm. P. Cole of Baltimore county, would go along with the Governor and maybe run for a renomination but now there appears on the scene one of the Ritchie shouters in the person of People's Court Justice Herbert L. Grymes who says he will run for Congress in the district to which Baltimore county belongs. No one familiar with political ways would think that Mr. Grymes would make an announcement such as this without the approval of the Governor. And Mr. Grymes is reputedly close to Daniel J. Loden, another Ritchie shouter.

The candidacy of Mr. Grymes will tend to mix things up worse in Baltimore county. Mr. Grymes will be seeking support there and the Governor's backers will be called upon to help him.

Montgomery Fight
Of State-Wide Interest

Citizens in every part of the State are interested or should be interested in the battle that is now raging between the Democratic factions in Montgomery county. There is an insurrection against the reign and the methods of Brooke Lee who has taken command of the element now in control of the offices and is fighting madly to hold on to what he now has.

Most remarkable of all was the spectacle of Lee and several of his henchmen going into the Grand Jury room in a group and presenting their grievances against the leaders of the opposing Democratic factions and asking for their indictment on charges of libel. Not only did they present their grievances but they also gave their own advice to the Grand Jury and then went outside and published this advice at length in their own paper, the Maryland News.

The result has been the indictment of several editors of the Montgomery Independent, the paper that has been leading a crusade against the Lee overlordship of the county with a determination to get rid for once and all of the Silver Spring boss whose domination has produced so much discord that the Democratic party has been brought to the brink of disaster.

The trial of the editors is yet to come. If they are acquitted the laugh will be on Lee and his henchmen. If they should be convicted and made to suffer penalties they will most likely become martyrs and heroes in the eyes of the anti-Lee people of the county.

So far as we can learn the spectacle of a group of politicians going before a Grand Jury together and presenting their grievances against a newspaper has not before been seen in Maryland and we are told that it is not at all likely that any Baltimore City judge would permit such a performance.

And on top of this the Lee controlled paper, the Maryland News, has not hesitated to publish the most scurrilous attacks on others and on account of this there is now pending a damage suit against the publishers of that journal.

Coincident with what has been going on in the county seat, Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson has directed attention to a law which says the members of the Board of County Commissioners cannot patronize themselves in a business way and she asserts that the County Commissioners have recently paid the sum of $6,000 or more to the Maryland News, of which the County Commissioners are stockholders and directors. Mrs. Nicholson asserts that this is a violation of the law while one taxpayer in the county has instituted proceedings to stop the payment of salary to one of the County Commissioners on the ground that he is not legally entitled to the sum he has been receiving.

Meanwhile Brooke Lee has been in Baltimore City several times recently and is said to be trying to stick his fingers into the naming of the local Democratic ticket. Apparently he hasn't sufficient trouble at home. He can get plenty here in Baltimore without hunting for it.

Republicans Moving
With Deliberation

The Republican leaders are making haste slowly. Some of them hold to the view that a late selection of a candidate would be better than an early one. They do not expect a primary fight but do not think it necessary to put a man in the field early and thus, maybe, force a primary.

The best guessers do not pick Mayor Broening. And the indications are that if he had the right sort of encouragement he would have announced himself by this time. He simply sits and thinks while his appointees boost him.

Some usually well informed persons express the opinion that the Republican candidate for Governor has not yet been mentioned in the newspapers.

their LIVES are in YOUR HANDS!

DOWNY LITTLE THINGS... not long out of their shells... how much they must depend on you for the things they need to live and get big. They need a feed filled with nourishment. A feed which will build bones quickly... building muscles strong... change fuzz to feathers in a hurry... all this they demand... and yet their little crops can handle only one tiny thimbleful of feed a day! What a job for feed!

Consider Purina Chick Startena (mash) for this job! In every thimbleful are twelve ingredients! Cod-liver oil... dried buttermilk... alfalfa flour... granulated meat... these and eight others are there... each one with a real job to do. Purina Startena is mixed over and over again... 960 times just to be thorough! And you will find the same care taken with Baby Chick Chow (scratch)... to be fed with Startena.

• Your chicks... what they do for themselves... what they do for you... is entirely in your hands. They eat so little... yet it counts so much... that you can afford to do only one thing... feed Purina Chick Startena!

Ford 4 Sail

(This poem is dedicated to Philip Space.)

One Ford car with a piston ring,
Two rear wheels, one front spring.
Has no fenders, seat or plank,
Burns much gas and is hard to crank;
Carburator busted half-way thru,
Engine missing, hits on two.
Three years old, four in spring.
Shock absorbers'n'everything.
Radiator's busted, sure does leak;
Differential's dry, can hear it squeak;
Two spokes missing, front all bent,
Tires blowed out—ain't worth a cent.
Got lots of speed, runs like the deuce,
Burns either gas or tobacco juice.
Tires all off, been run on the rim,
But a darn good Ford for the shape she's in.

ONE SOLITARY LIFE—

As Easter approaches one is caused to recall the story of the Nazarene, the greatest man of whom we have ever read or heard.

Here is a man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty, and then for three years was an itinerant preacher. He never owned a home, He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put His foot inside a big city. He never traveled two hundred miles from the place where He was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany graetness. He had no credentials but Himself.

While still a young man, the tide of public opinion turned against Him. His friends ran away. One of them denied Him. He was turned over to His enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed upon a cross between two thieves. His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth while He was dying, and that was His coat. When He was dead He was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today He is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

It is far within the mark to say that all the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that were built, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as powerfully as has the One Solitary Life!

An Interesting Fact.

The history of the boundary disputes between Maryland, on the one hand, and William Penn and his heirs, in regard to Pennsylvania; the Duke of York, in regard to Delaware, and with the State of West Virginia, on the other, is too long and too complicated to admit of discussion in this short article.

Bear in mind that when the King of England issued to Lord Baltimore a patent for the Maryland Colony it was provided that the boundaries thereof should start at Watkins Point on the Chesapeake, run due east to the Atlantic Ocean, then follow the shore "unto that part of the Bay of Delaware on the north which lies under the fortieth parallel of north latitude." The northern boundary was to follow the fortieth parallel "unto the true meridian of the first fountain of the Potomac."

Different historians give us different interpretations of the actions of Lord Baltimore and of William Penn. Passing over the questions as to whether Penn was guilty of dissimulation and deceit in his dealings with the Maryland proprietaries, and whether Cecil and Charles Calvert and their heirs were ignorant of the location of the real boundaries, or whether their time was so occupied with other matters here and in England that they were careless, suffice it to say that for some reason it has cost the State of Maryland much valuable territory.

There seems to be no question but that ignorance of the position of fortieth parallel and that no one seemed to know the location of a certain fort referred to in Penn's charter (Susquehannough's Fort) Maryland lost what is now the entire State of Delaware and, likewise, nearly 4,000 square miles of wonderful land in Pennsylvania. Had the fortieth parallel been definitely and correctly fixed, it would take in all of the present site of Philadelphia as far north as the boundary of Fairmount Park.

Again, through lack of accurate, careful and thorough exploration to determine what was "the first fountain of the Potomac" Maryland lost approximately half a million acres of land to the State of West Virginia. It has now been determined that the actual "first fountain of the Potomac" is in Highland county, Virginia, draining into the South Branch of that stream. This latter loss of territory includes the counties of Grant and Mineral, parts of Hampshire, Hardy, Pendleton, Randolph, Tucker and Preston, West Virginia.

All together, lack of actual geological knowledge, or other reasons, cost Maryland nearly 4,250,000 acres of land.

COMMUNITY AND PARENTS UNITED FOR HEALTH DAY

May Day Has Been Proclaimed Child Health Day in Maryland

Governor Ritchie in his proclamation designating May Day as Child Health Day, has called on all Marylanders to give thought and furtherance to the health and welfare of all children in the State, and in connection with the celebration of the day, he has recommended that especial attention be directed to the importance of keeping young children under medical supervision.

The Maryland Committee for Child Health Day consists of the directors of State, city and county departments of health and of education; with representatives of all organizations interested in the health and well-being of the children of the State. The Chairman of the committee is Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health. The program for the observance in Maryland includes in addition to May Day pageants, festivals, athletic contests, health games and exercises in which the children themselves will take the leading parts, conferences and get-together meetings of parents and community leaders on various aspects of child health.

Under the leadership of the Division of Child Hygiene of the State and City Departments of Health and Education, and the State Parent-Teacher Association, the first call has gone out for the spring and summer round-up" and health examinations of the children who are getting ready to enter school in the fall. Last year, in connection with the child health conferences that were held throughout the counties, about one out of every five white children and one out of twelve colored children, who started in to school in September, was given a health examination in preparation for admission to school.

In these examinations, special attention was paid by the physicians in charge to weight, posture, the heart, lungs, throat and nose, hearing, vision, and teeth, and to whether or not the children had been vaccinated against smallpox. When conditions needing correction were discovered, the parents were urged to take the children to their family doctor or dentist for the necessary care, so that the children could enter school without avoidable handicaps. A report of each examination was also sent to the family physician.

By making an early start, it is hoped that a much larger proportion of the children who will enter school next fall, may have the benefit of a similar examination at this year's child health conferences.

Miss Helen Shelby Is Author of Bulletin on Summer Clothes for 4-H Girls

With the coming of spring and warmer weather, a new bulletin, "Summer Clothes for 4-H Giris," which was recently written by Miss Helen Shelby, Clothing Specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, should prove of interest, not only to Maryland girls in 4-H clubs but to all others who are interested in obtaining the latest and best information on this important subject.

The work outlined in the new publication by Miss Shelby is planned to help each girl dress attractively and form the habit of keeping an account of the money she spends for clothes.

Under the following topics the author takes up the more important articles of clothing and the best practices for making them; planning the costume, suitability, color in relation to the type of individual, lines of the person fitted, making the dress, selection of the undergarments, making patterns and construction processes. Under the latter subject Miss Shelby has her bulletin elaborately illustrated with about thirty pictures showing the more common stitches and when best to use each kind.

Oakland High School News

The General Science class hiked to the farm of Mr. Roy Winters, last Friday, where they were shown by demonstration how a farm of that type is operated. From observations, great care is evidently taken to insure pure milk to the people of Oakland by our dairy farms, and we can take great pride in knowing that our farmers have healthful interests at heart.

The science department has several more trips in view, among them a visit to the Kelly Springfield Tire company in Cumberland, and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company of Luke, Md.

Coach Speicher is highly pleased with the baseball material available this year. The staff of pitchers includes Colaw, Maroney, Moore, Michael, and Carskadon. All the positions are now filled except second base and the outfield.

The first year Latin class of Oakland Hi. recently organized a Latin club. Members elected were: president, Kathleen Jessee; secretary, Leona Browning; and treasurer, Richard Glotfelty. The aim of this club is to make a more extensive study of Latin and, also, to study the different types of Latin plays.

The play, "Two Days to Marry", was given Friday afternoon and night. It proved to be a dramatic and financial success. This was the first production given on the new stage. The stage is quite adequate for dramatic and musical performances. The auditorium, too, has a large seating capacity and we are hoping to present in the future numerous high school productions in this splendid hall. About $30.00 was cleared.

The scenery for the play was designed and made by Bernard Gonder. It represented an interior scene including French doors and windows. It was made of inexpensive materials, but the general contour of the scenery when completed was most artistic and appropriate.

Bernard Gonder and Walter Killius are Oakland Hi's artists and both boys have done outstanding work throughout their high school career in drawing and painting and in turning their talent into account for O. H. S's benefit.

Hot Cross Buns

One cup milk, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup fat, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 1 cake yeast, ¼ cup raisins, 3 cups flour, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ lemon rind, ¼ cup currants.

Scald the milk, pour it into a bowl and add the sugar and fat. Stir until the sugar is dissolved and the fat is melted. Mix the yeast with ¼ cup of lukewarm water. When the first mixture is cooled to lukewarm, add the yeast mixture. Stir in one-half the flour, beating vigorously. Set aside in a warm place until mixture is porous. Add beaten egg, salt and flavoring. Then add the cooled fruit which has been previously plumped by bringing to a boil in ¼ cup of water. Beat in the remaining flour and knead the dough until soft and elastic. Place in a covered, greased bowl in a warm place to rise. Let rise until doubled in bulk and shape into balls one-third the size desired for the finished product. Allow the buns to rise until doubled in bulk. Mark criss-cross. Let rise again until thoroughly light. Bake (425 degrees F.) for 5 minutes. Reduce to 375 degrees F. and bake for 10 minutes longer. When buns are nearly done, brush them with milk, or egg white, sprinkle with sugar and return to the oven for a few minutes.

Then add remainder of flour or enough to make a dough, and salt. Knead for 5 miuutes. Place in greased bowl; cover and let rise in warm place for 1½ hours or until doubled in bulk. Care of the Growing Lambs

Lambs begin to eat grain and hay when 8 to 16 days old, and club members should be prepared to satisfy their appetites for such feeds. This is the time when the lambs will make the greatest gains for the amount of feed consumed, and a shepherd should therefore make the most of this period. Until lambs are five or six weeks old, the grain should be ground. After that period whole grain, unless very hard, can be fed.

A Good Ration for Young Lambs

The following grain mixture is recommended for your lambs: ground corn, 2 parts; crushed oats, 2 parts; linseed oil deal, 1 part; and wheat bran, 1 part. A legume hay—clover, alfalfa or soybean—that is clean and bright, is desirable roughage to give with this grain ration.

Lamb Creeps

A lamb creep is an enclosure which the lambs but not the ewes, can pass. Here is placed the feed for the lambs. Troughs may be made to hold both grain and hay. Keep the feed rack clean. If it becomes soiled, scrub it thoroughly.

Dock Lambs When Two Weeks Old

It is best to dock lambs when they are about two weeks old. The reason for docking may be summarized as follows:

1. Filth may collect in the wool on the tail. In warm weather this provides a breeding place for maggots, which burrow under the skin, causing sores, infection and ill-health.

2. The tail is of no use to the animal and a long tail on a ewe may sometimes interfere with mating.

3. When sheep are marketed, buyers favor those that are docked.

Castrate Lambs Early

All grade ram lambs and all but the exceptionally good purebred ram lambs should be castrated. Some of the reasons for castrating are as follows:

1. Wether lambs almost always sell for more per pound than ram lambs.

2. The carcasses of wether lambs are better than those of ram lambs, as they generally show more quality and have more fat.

3. Wether lambs are easier to handle than ram lambs and they need not be separated from the ewe lambs.

TOO MANY FIRES!

PROTECT YOURSELF!

The greatest danger today in any public building is fire and its results.

Did you ever stop to think what might happen should your institution catch afire, what the result might be?

Are you equipped with any means of combating this danger? If not, will you just stop to consider the advantage of a fire-extinguisher, placed in a position easily accessible and constructed to give perfect service at less than a moment's notice.

Do you not consider anything to prevent loss or destruction of property by fire a good investment?

The American La France Extinguisher has proven itself to be one of the best and most perfectly constructed extinguishers on the market today.

Would you be interested to learn more about such an investment as this? Think it over.

Lesson for April 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-35, or Easter Lesson, John 20:1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

In this lesson we have divine instructions as to our behavior in case of such ill treatment.

I. How to Gain an Erring Brother (vv. 15-20).

A sinning brother is lost. To bring him to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship in the church is to gain him. One soul is of greater value than the whole world. The method to be used is:

1. Personal (v. 15).

Go alone and tell him his fault. Personal effort is most vital in winning an erring brother. It is usually an effective method.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16).

"Take with thee one or two more." The presence of one or two comrades helps in making known his fault.

3. Tell it to the church (v. 17).

Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the comrades fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (vv. 18-20).

When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ, and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final.

II. Peter's Question (v. 21).

This question was probably occasioned by the ill treatment which Peter was then experiencing at the hands of his fellow disciples. Christ's confession of Peter brought him into the limelight. The question of the disciples, "Who is greatest in the kingdom?" shows that there was some jealousy of Peter among the disciples. This envy and jealousy was known to Peter. His patience being thus tested, he came to Jesus with a question regarding forgiveness. From the Lord's teaching as to the efforts to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brother and brother, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. Peter, disposed to be gracious, inquired, "till seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brother not three times, but twice three times, and a little over.

III. Jesus's Answer (v. 22).

This answer was an astonishing revelation to Peter. Jesus said, not until seven times, but until seventy times seven, showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless.

IV. The Two Creditors (vv. 23-35).

These two creditors illustrate Christ's principle of forgiveness.

1. The gracious creditor (vv. 23-27).

The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner, any sinner, every sinner—you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten thousand talents are equal to some twelve millions of dollars. To meet this obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imagining that he can pay his debt to God, that by his future good works he can atone for past sins.

2. The cruel creditor (vv. 28-35).

The man who was forgiven so much found a man who owed him a small sum—perhaps seventeen dollars. He shut his ears to this man's entreaty to have patience with him, flew at his throat, and cruelly put him into jail. The great mercy shown the one whose debt had been forgiven did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should not take up some slight consideration against our brothers, but should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others.

(1) We, every one, continue to need every day the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "Forgive us our debt as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of sin held against others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy.

The New Life

The new life will have the reality of religion that comes through putting belief into action, actualizing goodness and brotherliness and all the noble virtues that enrich and beautify life and make it Christlike.—H. B. Grose.

We agree that this should be a strictly local column, but occasionally we like to make believe that it is important enough to warrant a digression. Not that the result will make a particle of difference, but we presume that all of us are interested, or at least curious, about the poll now being taken on the wet and dry sentiment of the country by a certain magazine.

We just want to venture the opinion that all of us will be a good deal older, much greyer and a good deal balder before there is any material change made in the existing amendment or the enforcement laws—except to make them tighter. This prediction is strengthened by the nomination of Ruth Hanna McCormick for the United States Senate on the Republican ticket of Illinois, she having beaten her opponent, Deenen, by a slashing majority. Mrs. McCormick (notwithstanding some pulpit statements) is bone dry and she will run against James Hamilton Lewis, a soaking wet. We will wager a quart of cold water against a doughnut that she will be elected, as she will get the heavy Republican vote in Southern Illinois as well as the solid prohibition vote there and in Chicago.

Mrs. McCormick, a daughter of the late noted Mark Hanna, from all reports has inherited some of her father's fighting blood, and if elected to the United States Senate she will not only vote to prevent any modification of the dry laws, but will be everlastingly against any foreign entanglements by this country, and especially she will be opposed to entering the World Court, a stepping stone to becoming a member of the League of Nations, which, in the opinion of many lovers of peace, will, sooner or later, involve us in another foreign war, of which, God knows, we have had plenty.

Word has been received at the Park of the death of Mr. E. L. Stone, 72, retired business man of Wheeling, at his winter home in Orlando, Florida, one day last week. The body was sent to Wheeling where entombment was made in the mausoleum in Greenwood Cemetery on Saturday. Mr. Stone was noted as a philanthropist who contributed largely of his means to worthy enterprises in his home city and elsewhere. Mr. Stone leaves his wife, one son E. J. Stone, of Wheeling; two brothers, Mr. W. E. Stone and Rev. J. Sumner Stone, and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Talson and Mrs. Abba P. Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Stone have been summer residents of the Park for a number of years and have a very large circle of friends here.

Mr. Otis Harris, son of Mrs. Walter Meyers, who has been making his home in Pittsburgh, Detroit and other cities of the mid-west for the past ten or twelve years, has returned to the Park. Mr. Harris is an expert mechanic and hopes that conditions may justify his remaining with us permanently.

As we mentioned last week, there will be another help-yourself dinner given at the M. E. church in the Park on the evening of the 23rd of this month. Better make a note of it as you will miss something good if you fail to attend.

Mrs. Harry Clayton has opened her cottage for the season after having spent a portion of the winter months at Lewisburg, Pa., where her daughter, Mrs. Harry Showalter, resides.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Speicher, of near Washington, D. C., are spending a few days here with relatives and their many friends.

Did You Ever Cook Dinner at the Bridge Table?

F.O.B. Cooking will help you!

THOUGH the pots and kettles are not steaming in front of you, mentally you are cooking the dinner on the bridge table. Every woman who spends an afternoon away from home has the problem of dinner on her mind, except those fortunate women who have modern ORIOLE Gas Ranges. ✣ These women cook the F.O.B. — the Free of Bother way. They set the Time and Temperature Controls in the morning, put their dinners in the oven, go out and forget dinner. At the proper time, snap—on goes the gas. When the dinner is cooked, snap—off goes the gas. Housewife returns, takes out of the oven the piping hot dinner that has cooked while she was at the bridge table. ✣ In summer your kitchen is as cool as any room in the house, for thickly insulated oven walls keep the heat inside. Self-lighting burners light at a turn of the wrist—no matches. All this sounds too good to be true, but it's very simple. ✣ Come in, let us show you how easy it is to own and operate one of those marvelous New ORIOLE ranges, or return coupon for representative to call.

1 TIME CONTROL, Set it before you leave home and it turns gas on and off while you're miles away.

2 TEMPERATURE REGULATOR, Controls the oven's heat, assuring uniform results every time, without watching, waiting, worrying.

3 SELF-LIGHTING BURNERS, Turn on your burners and they light at once. No matches.

4 INSULATED OVEN, "Roasts the meat and not the cook." Keeps the kitchen as cool and comfortable as any room in the house.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 54. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, APRIL 24, 1930. NUMBER 10.

EVERYBODY INVITED TO MAKE HOMES ATTRACTIVE

Oakland Civic Club Sponsoring Yard and Garden Contest—Entries Must be in by May 10

To give every home in this city more attractive surroundings so that living will be more enjoyable, to create a healthier environment and to improve and beautify in general, the Oakland Civic club last week announced that a Yard and Garden contest would be conducted here.

Every family in the city is invited to enter and help make it a community forward movement. There is no entry fee.

Small home yards and gardens will have an equal chance with the more pretentious grounds in winning one of the several prizes offered, and every entrant will be greatly benefited by joining the movement even if he does not win a prize.

An entry blank is being printed this week in The Republican which all are asked to fill in and mail to Mrs. A. L. Lee, contest chairman. Entries will close on May 10, it was announced.

Outdoor Living Room

An opportunity to create an attractive and enjoyable outdoor living room in place of an uninviting back yard will be given every family taking part in the campaign. Entrants will be shown how easy it is to do this by merely setting out trees, shrubs and flowers. Improved home grounds will provide a family with an ideal environment for growing children as well as more enjoyable living quarters for older people, it was pointed out.

John H. Carter, county agent, will tell people what materials are needed in the different kinds of soil, and will offer information on plants that will grow well in this section of the country.

Read Republican for Advice

From time to time The Republican will publish helpful suggestions on yard beautification and planting. Actual before and after views will be shown of homes so transformed by the inspiration of a yard and garden contest. Ideal outdoor living rooms and model front yards will also be depicted in illustrated articles.

Personal advice on how to beautify your home grounds will also be given by the general committee in charge of the contest which is composed of Mrs. A. L. Lee, Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, Mrs. B. H. Sincell, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, and Mrs. C. A. Shilke.

Each home entered in competition will be personally visited and inspected by the judges. Fifty cents is being offered to any person who sends in a winning slogan to be used in conducting the contest.

Dr. Harriet Jones Named on National Honor Roll

Dr. Harriet B. Jones, of Glen Dale, near Moundsville, W. Va., and well known in Oakland and vicinity, has been chosen recently to have her name placed on the national honor roll of outstanding suffrage leaders. The roll will commemorate the tenth anniversary of Women's suffrage in the United States and will be read at the national league of women voters in Louisville, Ky., April 28 to May 3.

The names will be engraved on a bronze memorial which will be erected in Washington, D. C. Dr. Jones was one of the founders of the Ohio county league of women voters. Wins Airplane Model Contest

James Long, 14, of Clarksburg, W. Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Long and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shaffer, of Oakland, was awarded first place in an airplane model contest staged in Pittsburgh, Pa., last week. Seventy-five youths competed against him.

By virtue of the triumph of his tiny monoplane in the indoor event, Long will participate in the national model contest to be held in Detroit in June. The creation of the West Virginia lad easily outclassed those of other contestants. It soared in the air for five minutes and three seconds, which is considered ramarkable for a model ship. Long will also compete in another contest this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taft and Mr. Frank Welling, of Morgantown, W. Va., spent yesterday afternoon and this morning with relatives in Oakland.

SCHOOL BOARD DISCUSSED MANY PROBLEMS TUESDAY

All Members Are Present at Regular Meeting—County Commissioners Thanked in Letter

The Board of Education of Garrett county held its regular meeting at its office in the Court House last Tuesday afternoon, all members of the Board being present. The Board is composed of H. A. Loraditch, president, John W. McCullough, and Stuart F. Hamill.

Along with other routine business, the Board considered the following subjects:

Returns from the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county upon the Budget of the Board of Education as submitted to the County Commissioners, setting out the financial needs of the schools of the county for the coming school year of 1930-31, as provided for by the County Commissioners in the County Levy of April 15, 1930. In this same connection, the Board of Education instructed the County Superintendent to write the following letter to each of the County Commissioners, the same referring particularly to the amount of $50,000 provided for capital outlay on new school building purposes:

To the Honorable,
The Board of County Commissioners,
Oakland, Maryland.

Gentlemen:—The Board of Education of this county at its meeting held April 22, 1930, instructed me to write you expressing its appreciation for the very satisfactory manner in which you considered the budget of the Board of Education for the financial needs of the schools during the coming school year of 1930-1931.

Your decisions in this connection have been eminently gratifying and will result in very enlarged educational opportunities for the boys and girls of this county.

Sincerely yours,
F. E. RATHBUN,
County Superintendent.

A report was submitted from the State Department of Education setting out that if the State had not provided any money at all for the support or current expenses of the schools during the school year of 1928-1929, in order to conduct the schools of the County as they were conducted during the same year, the very high and prohibitive County Tax rate of $1.46 upon each $100.00 of assessable property would have been mandatory in the county levy of April, 1928. However, with the usual and regular State financial aid that normally is given to the county as a result of State Law, this financial aid being based upon census of children in the county and attendance at school the year before, text books, materials of instruction, office salaries and High school aid, the county tax rate would have been $1.14 but with the Equalization Fund as provided for the year of 1928-1929, which amounted to $112,266.00, the county tax rate for the support of the schools in the Levy of April, 1928, as mandatory in order to meet the requirements of the State School Law, was only 67 cents upon each $100.00 of assessable property in the county.

The County Superintendent submitted a report to the Board, setting out in detail that of the 440 boys and girls who were graduated from the elementary schools of the county in June, 1929, only 214 of them entered High school during the following or this school year for a period of more than 19 days. There were, therefore, 226 boys and girls throughout the county who had completed and been graduated from the elementary school but who did not take up high school education although they were eligible for it. The Board was concerned about those of the number of 226 who may have desired to attend a High school but could not do so owing to the fact that they lived too far away from any such institution. POLITICS IN REVIEW

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

The week-end finds the Democratic party in the State of Maryland still in pretty much of a mess and with no solution in sight. Needed to clear the air somewhat and force a lineup is a new ticket for all the State offices. Steps to get such a ticket in the field have not been lagging, and the situation is undergoing a thorough survey, so that no mistake may be made.

Many Democrats who supported Senator McIntosh to the last are now advocating the nomination of Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, should he agree to make the race against the Governor, now occupying the Democratic field alone. Assurances of support, it is said, have been coming to Mr. Gambrill daily, while on the other hand Ritchie office holders seek to discourage him, as is natural for them.

Mr. Gambrill has been busy with his duties as a member of the House in Washington, and has not yet been able to devote much time to a study of the situation, but he has not told any one that he will not run. Ritchie shouters have from day to day been advancing the statement that Gambrill will under no circumstances enter the field against Ritchie. The argument of the Ritchie crowd is that the Governor "has the nomination sewed up." There are few, however, who claim that he has the election "sewed up." Mention of the election seems to make some fourth term shouters nervous.

Ritchie has now been an open candidate for ten days and yet the McIntosh backers are not getting into his so-called band wagon, despite the efforts of fourth term journalists. There is no rush and no apparent travel at all in that direction. And this is due largely to the situation in Baltimore City where the most influential men in the party are opposed to the Governor and openly say so.

Day after day fourth term advocates make efforts to get ex-Mayor Jackson into line, but there is nothing doing. Mr. Jackson, time after time, replies that the situation can be cleared up in a few minutes by the withdrawal of the Governor. But the latter seemingly continues to think himself bigger than the entire Maryland Democracy—and there you are. One man against the many. The one man is entrenched. The many grow more and more bitter in their opposition as the days go by.

In Baltimore City the Governor is undertaking to be a Mahon and Kelly of this latter day, but he has not been able to marshal the Mahon and Kelly lieutenants. He has some of them, it is true, but there is no one of real importance who when he is speaking privately, but will admit that he wants to see the Governor rolling in the dust. They want to get rid of him and are watching for the chance. If the primary does not pan out right, there's the general election in November. And it is evident that no one can get the warring elements of the city Democracy together so long as Ritchie heads the ticket. Any harmony that may be announced will be a fake harmony.

Reports from the Governor's camp this week represent him as considerably worried over the evidences of the public indifference to the announcement of his fourth candidacy. The efforts to stir up interest have failed and friendly reporters have been unable to dig up anything worth while. The atmosphere in the Democratic party just now reminds one of the interval between a death and the funeral.

Independents May
Plague the Regulars

Unless there is a State-wide contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor the nominee is likely to have an independent Democrat running in the general election, getting on the ticket by petition. That sort of thing has happened before and can easily be made to happen again. Indeed, it is within the bounds of possibility that there may be two such candidates—one wet and one dry, bone dry. This would give relief to Democrats who do not want to vote for a Republican, assuming, of course, that Ritchie is the Democratic nominee.

This would, of course, be a last resort, and will not be seriously discussed until the field is fully canvassed and no primary candidate is agreed upon by the anti-Ritchie forces. But at this time it seems that there will be such a candidate and that if Mr. Gambrill yields to pressure and sidesteps in Ritchie's favor, some one else will come to the front, for there is still ample time to start and carry on a strenuous battle.

And it is not yet too late to hope that the Governor will come to see the situation as it is.

Some Think Parade
Is About To Start

That some Democrats think the Ritchie fourth term parade is about to start is indicated by a spurt of activity about the State Senate in some sections of the city as well as in the counties. And up in Washington county the fourth termers have started a boost for Wm. Preston Lane as a candidate for Congress when we thought he only intended to run for the State Senate. In that district Fuller Barnard has declared himself and it looked like he might have a clear field, for it has not seemed that David J. Lewis would try again.

In the city the fourth termers now appear to be most active in the western and northwestern suburbs where the trees and bushes are the most plentiful. In that section Senator Dan Chambers has been stirring them up—the same Dan Chambers who, according to Harrison Rider, said the Governor would not run for a fourth term but would take a trip around the world. Senator Dan has the boys stirred up right smart and it was in his district that Waldo Newcomer presided over a mass meeting and boosted the fourth term a couple of weeks ago. That section, however, did not do so well for Al Smith in 1928.

Would Coax McIntosh
Into the Parade

A diversion of the week was the effort of some fourth termers, inspired by ex-Senator Bruce, to coax Senator David G. McIntosh into the Ritchie parade, now so sadly in need of recruits, by suggesting him as a candidate for Congress in the Second District. This was supposed to mollify McIntosh and make him forget the Ritchie hostility to his candidacy for Governor, so lately terminated under pressure of the Ritchie machine.

This was put forward too, after the Governor had let it be known that he was favorable to the nomination of former Congressman Wm. P. Cole and was doing nothing much for Herbert L. Grymes, who has jumped in after having a talk with His Excellency.

We predict that McIntosh will not be caught by such a transparent scheme.

Candidates Plenty
In the Counties

In most of the counties there are plenty of candidates in the field for the primaries and the end is not yet by any means. In some of the counties the most desired office is that of sheriff—it seems to be considered a cinch.

In Worcester county Senator Crockett has announced his intention to retire and Milton L. Veasey, from the same town of Pocomoke, is in the field for the Senate to compete with Horace Davis of Berlin. Worcester is such a strongly Democratic county that a nomination is usually equivalent to an election, so we may expect a hard battle—and then Mayor Bill McCabe, of Ocean City, may get into it and cause complications.

Trying Petition
System on Broening

Down in Somerset county Harry Phoebus and his band of sooner Republicans are preparing to try Governor Ritchie's spontaneous petition system on Mayor Broening to force him to make announcement of his candidacy for Governor. Harry Phoebus has noted the almost magical effect of such a system when used on the Governor who to date has not failed to respond. So Mr. Phoebus, who is an admirer of the Mayor, is moving around for signers, but the Mayor, say some of his friends, is shy on following the Ritchie method.

National Committeeman Jackson gives it out that he is backing no candidate for Governor, which is true, and no one can say who may be the favorite of Senator Goldsborough, now at the top of the political heap. The latter moves with deliberation and continues to see no need for haste in agreeing on a candidate. Many seem to think that th aspirants will be reduced in number until there are only two left, Mayor Broening and ex-Senator Robb of Allegany.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE 90 DAYS MAKE!

TODAY A TODDLING CHICK . . . in 90 days a proud pullet about to lay. There's something to think about! Tiny bones and little muscles have grown several times in size . . . a delicate fuzz has sprouted into hundreds of feathers . . . a chick weighing grams has grown into a pullet weighing pounds . . . all in 90 short days!

A wonderful change . . . and only one thing can do it . . . good feed! This year consider Purina Startena Chow (mash) and Purina Chick Chow (scratch) or All-Mash Startena Chow for the first six weeks . . . and then Purina Growena and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow until your pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

Put these Chows before your chicks. You will see pullets that are built right . . . pullets that will lay eggs aplenty in fall and winter when eggs are always worth good money.

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' QUESTION BOX ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. What makes the poison in a snake's fang?
2. Does a fish drink?
3. Why does iron feel colder than wood?

1. In the first place a snake's fang is an eye-tooth, very much like the sharp pointed teeth that we have at the corners of the jaw between the front teeth and the back teeth. But in the case of snakes this tooth has a little channel in it through which the poison can run when the snake bites. The glands in a snake which produce poison correspond to the glands which we have that produce saliva. Now in the snake the gland which corresponds to the one we have in front of the ear, the one which gets so painful when we have mumps, produces the poison. It runs along a little tube from the glands on each side of the mouth to the poison teeth, and when the snake bites the muscles of the jaw squeeze upon the glands in these tubes and forces a little of the poison through the channel in the eye tooth or fang.

2. All living things must drink in one way or another. So, of course, fishes drink, and those that live in salt water must drink salt water. When we watch fish in a bowl, it looks as though they were just gulping water and must be very thirsty. But when we see them acting that way, they are not drinking but breathing by passing water through their gills, which serve them for lungs, the water passing through the gills, yielding up to the blood, the oxygen which is dissolved in the water. When a fish drinks, it takes water in its mouth as we do.

3. The marble on the wash stand and the towel beside it are both the same temperature, but the marble feels much colder to the touch. Our feeling depends entirely on the rate at which the thing we touch takes heat from our fingers. Iron and marble take heat quickly from our fingers, while wood and cotton do not. In other words marble and iron are good conductors of heat while wood and cotton are bad conductors, therefore, the heat passes more quickly from our fingers when they touch iron or marble than it does when we touch cotton or wood.

Did You Ever Cook Dinner at the Bridge Table?

F.O.B. Cooking will help you!

THOUGH the pots and kettles are not steaming in front of yon, mentally yon are cooking the dinner on the bridge table. Every woman who spends an afternoon away from home has the problem of dinner on her mind, except those fortunate women who have modern ORIOLE Gas Ranges. ✢ These women cook the F.O.B. — the Free of Bother way. They set the Time and Temperature Controls in the morning, put their dinners in the oven, go out and forget dinner. At the proper time, snap — on goes the gas. When the dinner is cooked, snap — off goes the gas. Housewife returns, takes out of the oven the piping hot dinner that has cooked while she was at the bridge table. ✢ In summer your kitchen is as cool as any room in the house, for thickly insulated oven walls keep the heat inside. Self-lighting burners light at a turn of the wrist — no matches. All this sounds too good to be true, but it's very simple. ✢ Come in, let us show yon how easy it is to own and operate one of those marvelous New ORIOLE ranges, or return conpon for representative to call.

1 TIME CONTROL, Set it before you leave home and it turns gas on and off while yoo're miles awey.

2 TEMPERATURE REGULATOR, Controls the ovee's heat, assuring nniform results every time, without watching, waiting, worrying.

3 SELF-LIGHTING BURNERS, Tern on yoor burners and they light at once. No matches.

4 INSULATED OVEN: "Roasts the meat and not the cook." Keeps the kitchen as cool and comfortable as any room in the house.

YARD-GARDEN CONTEST—

The Republican announced last week that the Oakland Civic club would sponsor a Yard and Garden contest. The motive—and the only motive—is to make Oakland a city beautiful. The Republican is back of this movement because it believes it is a newspaper's duty to do worthwhile things for the community in which it thrives.

If the citizens of Oakland will rally to this plan of the Civic club and The Republican, our city this summer will truly become a city beautiful. You will see grassy yards everywhere. You will see neat back yards and alleys.

The Republican wishes to encourage people throughout the city to improve and beautify their homes. Once they have done it men and women and children will begin to enjoy the out of doors, to spend more of their time there, to live more of the day in the open air and sunshine.

The cost of planting trees, shrubs and flowers is not great. A tiny package of seeds alone will do wonders. You win if you lose, for if you do not win any of the prizes you will profit in a more beautiful home, a happier environment, and if you are practical you will have enhanced the actual value of your property in dollars and cents.

Entering the Oakland Yard and Garden contest will not be all work. It will be play. Let's enter the contest now.

The Swelling Gasoline Tax

Gasoline taxation has come to the fore as one of the greatest of the problems affecting the American pocket-book. Last year the tax reached almost $450,000,000. This year an authorative estimate forecasts a total of $550,000,000.

This estimate is based almost entirely on the expected gain in gasoline consumption. It does not include the recent tax increase of a cent a gallon in Idaho, or proposed higher rates in Mississippi, New York, New Jersey, Texas, Massachusetts, North Dakota, Kansas, Louisana and other states. It is said that Missouri and California alone have displayed no tendancy toward a higher tax rate.

At the end of 1930, when the $550,000,000 has been collected, American motorists will have paid a total of $1,744,400,000 in five years, over six times the total of the preceding five years.

Few people have any fault to find with a fair gasoline tax when all the revenue is used for road purposes. In many states, however, the tax has grown out of all proportion to the retail price of gasoline, and some of the revenue has been diverted to schools, state departments, state debts and general funds. And the tendency toward still higher taxes continues with increasing force.

Unless American motorists use their power to discourage exorbitant gas taxation, it is forecast that ten cent tax rates may be anticipated in the near future.

A Maryland-Floridian Uses The Republican's Columns To Convey a Message To His Garrett County Friends, And He Made a Wise Choice In The Local Newspaper Field.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I can think of a few hundred of my friends in and about Garrett county I would like to write to, but that takes too much time and expense, so why not send tbis communication to The Republican is my thought, as most of them are subscribers.

We have had a remakable winter in Florida. Many of the nation's most famous people, from President Hoover, the Coolidges, and on down to the most humble have been here. They did not come to speculate in lands and lots as they did five years ago. Property was then selling at several times its real worth, but now after many millions have been spent on roads and other internal improvements, land sales are few and prices low.

March was a month of cool weather with much rain—not the kind of weather Florida is famous for.

The early vegetable growers whose ranks I tried to enter, had a hard time of it. However, the weather has been fine since April 1st and we are now harvesting the following crops: Peas, beans, celery, cabbage, beets, cucumbers, potatoes, etc., while tomatoes, corn on the cob and melons will soon arrive.

Harvest time here is planting time in Maryland, and while produce is plentiful at this season of the year, the vegetables that are common with we Marylanders in August and September will be taken from tin cans here at that time.

So taking everything into consideration, people living in the mountains of Western Maryland are about as well located as anywhere, and we shall return to our old home there as usual this summer.

Six Garrett County Students are Winners in "Who's Who" Contest at Frostburg Normal

Enthusiasm for the "Who's Who" contest, conducted at the State Normal School, Frostburg, has reigned for two weeks and the climax was reached last week with the announcement of the results in the "Frontline," official publication of the school.

Out of twenty celebrity titles to be voted on, six Garrett county students were chosen as winners. They were:

Best looking boy, Herbert Buckel; biggest nuisance, Arthur Friend; biggest and best line, Olin Kesner, Rubie Fike; best sports, Ann Dilgard, Hannah Callis; quietest person, Herbert Buckel; best girl athlete, Ann Dilgard.

Herbert Buckel, an Accident Junior, besides being honored in this contest with two choices, has been active in both his curriculum and extra-activity or club work since his entrance in the school last autumn.

Although Arthur Friend, a Friendsville Junior, is full of life and indulges in many wholesome capers, we believe his newly won title is slightly a misnomer for him. However, it is not as severe as it may seem at first blush.

Olin Kesner, president of the Junior Class, and Rubie Fike, a Friendsville Senior, were both selected as having the biggest and best line in school. Both Mr. Kesner and Miss Fike are members of the Normal Dramatic Club, one of the most popular organizations of the school, and have received many previous campus honors.

In order to thoroughly understand that Ann Dilgard and Hannah Callis are really the "best sports" on the campus, they must be placed for a moment in the "spotlight." Miss Dilgard, coming from the Bayard High School as an accomplished athlete, played star forward on the Normal basketball team last season. She was recently elected captain of the team for next year. Miss Callis, an Accident Senior, has been active in numerous student organizations and activities. Besides playing basketball she is president of the student government organization in the dormitory and holds various minor offices in other clubs.

The contest proved to be most successful and interesting. It has rightly been termed "Much Ado About Something!" A STUDENT.

Where Only Good Dogs Go

We must shed a tear for Colonel Bell
His dog "moonshine" has gone to—well,
To tell the story won't take long;
Alongside the wheels of a car he ran
Barking his worst at a traveling man.
First he slipped and then he fell,
Now he lies cold and stiffer than—you'd expect.

Seoop tenders his condolences.

Col. Bell's Moonshine

Funeral services for Col. Bell's dog, "Moonshine", were held Monday afternoon, following his death. Joniper Cropp, sliding elder, delivered the sermon at the resting place on Gobler's Knob. The pallbearers were Jimmie Fazzalari, Pop Loraditch, Albert Markley, Whitey Townshend, Jesse Ashby and Bill Shaffer.

Col. Bell still claims the dog had more sense than the man who killed him.

Livestock Sanitary Service

Whereas: It has come to the attention of this board that a number of states are now prohibiting the importation of dairy or breeding cattle that have given positive or suspicious reaction to the test for Bang diseases, and Whercas: It is clearly the duty of this Board to protect Maryland Dairymen and Breeders against the importation of such diseased cattle as are not eligible for entry into other states.

Therefore be it resolved, by the State Board of Agriculture of the State of Maryland, that on and after April 30, 1930 no dairy or breeding animal shall be permitted to enter the State of Maryland that has given positive or suspicious reaction to the test for Bang disease; nor shall a dairy or breeding animal be permitted to enter the State of Maryland that has received an injection of any of the so-called vaccine purporting to give immunity against Bang disease.

Exceptions:

1. Cattle may be consigned to public stock yards for immediate slaughter.

2. Cattle for exhibition purposes when accompanied by a permit from the Maryland State Board of Agriculture.

Litter Contest for 1930 is On!

Entries have been coming in for the 1930 Maryland 150-Day 1500-pound Litter Contest. It is hoped that this Contest will be the best contest thus far held. The enrollment has increased each year, with some new high figures set for future contestants to try to beat. No one knows just how heavy a litter may be made at 150 days of age, but at least one Maryland litter reached a weight of 2423 pounds at this age. It may be that some litter will go far beyond that weight during the present year. Entries are now receivable, and may be made until July 15, but must be made before the litters are more than four weeks of age. The handsome silver cup that is offered, and the $800 in cash prizes again offered by the Wm. Schluerberg —T. J. Kurdle Co., should encourage many owners of good litters to enter them in the 1930 contest. Some good litter will win $125 and a silver cup for one year. Every County should be represented, and the 1930 contest should be by far the best one yet staged in Maryland. If there is anything about the requirements that is not clear, let us hear from you. If you do not have a litter of your own to enter, perhaps someone in the neighborhood can make an entry that will bring a substantial prize to your county. Interesting developments are expected. The contest is under wayl

Wool Quotations Disappointing

Sheepmen are not pleased with the 1930 wool market prospeets. A "Weekly Review of the Wool Market" from the United States Department of Agriculture under date of April 12 indicates that Boston prices for "48s, 50s" formerly known as "¼ blooded" and "⅜ blooded," respectively, are from 29 to 33 cents, the highest prices being for the longer or "coming" wool.

It will be a mistake for sheepmen to become careless about methods of handling their wool crop. In times of depressed prices some producers may feel that not much is to be gained by putting their wool up for market in an attractive way. Whatever price, the product which is carefully produced and prepared will be first to attract the attention of the buyer, and the price should be better than for wool which is not carefully shorn and prepared for market. Unsatisfactory wool prices may be further depressed for individual clips by a little carelessness on the part of the wool grower. Even at present prices, wool is a valuable commodity and should be handled as such.

Vo-Ag Field Day

Preparations are being made, according to H. F. Cotterman, associate dean of the College of Education, to put on a showing and fitting demonstration by members of the Livestock Club, in addition to poultry and public speaking contests which will feature Vocational Agriculture Field Day at the University of Maryland, May 3. Prizes in first, second and third places will be awarded in the judging and public speaking contests.

This year a new feature has been added in that visiting students and stockmen will have an opportunity to inspect the experimental work under way with cull market lambs and with spring lambs of Hampshire, Dorset X Merino, and Southdown X Dorset-Merino breeding; and take part in the spring lamb judging contest for Maryland stockmen. Several agricultural students from Garrett county will attend.

TOO MANY FIRES!

PROTECT YOURSELF!

The greatest danger today in any public building is fire and its results.

Did you ever stop to think what might happen should your institution catch afire, what the result might be?

Are you equipped with any means of combating this danger? If not, will you just stop to consider the advantage of a fire-extinguisher, placed in a position easily accessible and constructed to give perfect service at less than a moment's notice.

Do you not consider anything to prevent loss or destruction of property by fire a good investment?

The American La France Extinguisher has proven itself to be one of the best and most perfectly constructed extinguishers on the market today.

Would you be interested to learn more about such an investment as this? Think it over,

FRED CROPP, Agent,
American La France Manufacturing Company.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(©, 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 27

GIVING UP ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 19:16-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Shall We Use Our Money?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Possessions.

The lesson title is likely to be misunderstood and the teaching misapplied. Christ did not directly, nor by implication teach that eternal life could be obtained by parting with possessions.

I. A Certain Young Man (v. 16).

For a full view of the characteristics of this man, see Mark 10:17-30 and Luke 18:18-30.

1. His virtues.

(1) Courageous (Mark 10:7). He was of high standing—a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23). To come to Jesus at this time might mean ostracism, but with manly courage he came. (2) Earnest (Mark 10:17). He knelt before Jesus, thus showing earnestness and sincerity. (3) High aspirations (v. 16). He wanted eternal life. Though taken up with the things of his present life, he felt the need of preparing for a life beyond. (4) Pious and moral (v. 20). From his youth he had conformed to God's moral law. (5) He believed that Christ could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life.

2. His errors.

(1) About Christ (v. 16). He esteemed Jesus to be good, but did not apprehend Him as God; otherwise he would have known Him not merely as one who did good, but as one who is essentially good; that is, God. (2) Concerning himself. He thought he was good and that he could do something good. (3) Concerning eternal life. He thought that it could be obtained by good works. He did not know that the only way to gain eternal life was to receive it as a gift from God (Rom. 6:23).

II. The Lord's Dealing With Him (vv. 17-22).

Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors.

1. His question—"Why callest thou me good?" (v. 17).

Before giving him a chance to answer He declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good, and therefore God." He was God manifest in the flesh, and repudiated the thought of being known merely as a good man.

2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20).

"If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Christ met him here on his own ground, namely, that of the law. He took the young man's level that the young man's real worth might be revealed (Rom. 3:19, 20).

3. Christ's command (vv. 21, 22).

Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law, the young man asserted that he had kept them from his youth. Yet in his inner conscience he knew that there was something lacking. When he had to make the supreme decision between Jesus and his possessions, he chose wealth.

III. The Relationship of the Rich to the Kingdom (vv. 23-26).

This teaching concerning the peril of riches was most timely. Covetousness was fast taking hold of the people.

1. It is difficult for the rich to enter into the kingdom (vv. 23, 24). This difficulty lies not in the possession of riches, for a man may possess great riches and be an heir of the kingdom. Money in itself is essentially good. It will help the poor and help bring the gospel to the lost. The difficulty lies in trusting in riches.

2. Entrance into the kingdom, though difficult, is possible (vv. 25, 26).

(1) It is possible for the grace of God to sanctify riches, to open a man's eyes that he may see his downward course and repent, to change a man from self-seeking to self-sacrificing.

IV. Rewards for Following Christ (vv. 27-30).

Those who turn their backs upon their kindred and possessions for the sake of Christ shall receive an hundredfold in this life, and eternal life in the world to come.

Obedience

Obedience is the secret. Not slavish obedience, but sympathetic, loving eager obedience. "His delight is in the law of the Lord." May the law of holiness be to me welcome as the light, sweet as the flowers, more to be desired than much fine gold.—W. L. Watkinson.

In Company With Jesus

Get into sympathy with Jesus. Seek His presence, seek His help. And walking through the world in His company, you will be as balm in the bleakest weather, a benediction in the wildest scene.—James Hamilton.

The Duty of Friendship

The only duty of friendship is that we and our friends should live at our highest and best when together. Having achieved that, we have fulfilled the law.—Randolph Bourne.

GRANTSVILLE

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold a social at the high school Friday night, April 25.

The marriage of Mr. James R. Jarboe and Miss Billy Knots, both of Jacksonville, Fla., has been announced, the ceremony having taken place at St. Augustine, Fla., on April 10. The groom is in the employe of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway company as a telegraph operator at Jacksonville, and is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Arnold of the Park.

Garrett Camp, No. 44, Woodmen of the World, held a very interesting meeting last Monday evening, which was attended by a large number. District manager Albert Markley, of Oakland, was present and delivered the principal address. Refreshments were served and a smoker enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Bittinger entertained at dinner Easter Sunday in honor of their sister, Miss Nellie Bittinger, of Parkersburg, who has been their guest for the past two weeks. In addition to the honor guest there were present Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Biggs, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Biggs, of Gormania; Mr. Harvey Bittinger of Kempton; and Mr. O. A. Bittinger, of Crellin.

Mr. John Morgan, of near Pittsburgh, spent Easter with his home folk.

Mr. Heath Martin, New York City, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Oswell for a few days has returned to his home.

Mr. Wiley W. Welling, who is employed near Grafton, spent Easter with his family.

Mr. W. W. Welling, Jr., Miss Eva Welling, and Mr. Franklin Cook, all of Cumberland, spent Easter with Mr. and Mrs. Welling.

On next Tuesday evening, the 29th, the ladies of the U. B. church will hold a social and refreshment sale in the Aid Hall. A short program will be rendered.

Misses Helen and Elizabeth Gibson were in Washington over the Easter holidays.

Mr. J. E. Kesner is in Baltimore this week as the Representative of Oak Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F.

Miss Marguerite Jenkins and Miss Wilma Moomaw spent the Easter vacation at Kitzmiller, the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Hudson.

The Moomaw residence facing the lake will be one of the beauty-spots of the Park when the Rhododendron, massed in groups around the grounds, are in bloom.

Frequent comments are heard concerning the work done under the direction of Mr. Moomaw last fall and this spring cleaning up the glade and other unsightly places about the Park.

The Lenten season as observed here was a real helpful time to each one in attendance at the special services held from Monday evening until Friday evening at which time Dr. A. Moore preached a splendid sermon in the M. E. church. Two were received into membership and three children were baptised. The special Easter service was finely rendered and was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Much credit is due those who trained the young people who took a prominent part in the program.

Mr. F. R. Utterbeck spent last week in New York City but was here with his family on Easter.

BOYS GAINING ON GIRLS IN SCHOOLS OF COUNTIES

Report of State Board of Education Shows Greater Percentage of Graduations

Boys are gaining numerically on the girls in Maryland's county high school graduating classes, according to figures released by the State Board of Education.

They show that during the last ten years boy graduates have increased 316 per cent., while the number of girls graduating annually gained 200 per cent. They also show that, whereas there were 2.1 girls for every boy in the 1919 graduating classes, ten years later this ration had dropped to 1.5 girls for every boy.

In Prince George's county last year girl graduates were outnumbered by the boys.

Four hundred and two more diplomas were handed out to county white school graduates in 1929 than in 1928, the report states, pointing out that this is the largest increase scored in ten years. Boy graduates showed a gain of 18 per cent., girl graduates one of 10 per cent.

The increase for boys, both for the ten-year period and for the last year, the State Board finds "encouraging." It presents figures to show that graduating classes have increased steadily from a total of 1,004 students in 1919 to 3,395 last year. In 1919 diplomas were awarded to 323 boys and 681 girls. Last June 1,348 boys and 2,047 girls completed four-year courses.

All counties contributed to the increase last year except Talbot, Worcester and Washington, which showed decreases, and Queen Anne's and Carroll, where no change was shown, the report points out. Calvert, issuing twenty-four diplomas, had the smallest class, Allegany the largest with 404.

Only forty-five per cent. of the students who entered the county white high schools as freshmen in September, 1925, remained to receive diplomas four years later, the report shows. A little more than half the girls persisted, but only 38.2 per cent. of the boys. High school matriculates are far more persistent in Charles county than in any other, seventy-nine per cent. of the entering classes remaining for the full four years. In Prince George's, Garrett and Wicomico only a little more than thirty-seven per cent. stick it out.

Persistence through high school to graduation in the various counties, is shown by the following compilation of percentages by the State Board of Education:

County	Total	Boys	Girls
County average	45.0	38.2	50.9
Charles	79.0	65.9	94.6
Kent	59.2	58.1	60.2
Cecil	52.0	36.6	65.9
Allegany	51.4	43.8	57.6
Talbot	50.0	48.1	51.6
Washington	49.2	46.7	51.2
Worcester	49.1	45.3	52.0
Carroll	48.6	41.0	56.3
Montgomery	48.4	38.4	59.5
Harford	45.6	36.3	53.4
Caroline	44.7	31.1	55.7
Queen Anne's	44.5	25.9	58.2
Somerset	44.3	40.7	46.4
Anne Arundel	44.1	37.1	51.2
Frederick	43.7	35.0	52.1
Calvert	43.6	20.8	61.3
St. Mary's	41.3	34.5	47.1
Dorchester	40.2	37.1	42.9
Baltimore	38.6	30.0	46.9
Howard	38.5	33.7	43.3
Prince George's	37.7	41.9	34.1
Garrett	37.5	28.3	45.4
Wicomico	37.3	31.8	41.7

Prince George's the above table shows, scores again for masculinity, it being the only county where boys are more persistent in their pursuits of a diploma than are girls. Only Washington and Garrett counties had a lower persistence record for both boys and girls last year than the year before.

Cecil, Frederick, Queen Anne's, Calvert and St. Mary's had a lower persistence for boys in 1929 than in 1928; Allegany, Worcester, Talbot, Baltimore, Prince George's, Somerset and Wicomico had relatively fewer girls staying on to graduate than the year previous.

SCHOOL BOARD DISCUSSES MANY PROBLEMS TUESDAY

terest upon the part of the Board in this situation, grew out of its endeavors to assist the State in furthering the Educational program of Maryland in providing equal educational opportunities for all boys and girls in the county.

The Board took under consideration the construction of an addition to the Grantsville school building, as also the construction of a two-room school building at Shallmar, near Kitzmiller. Shallmar, at the present time, has a school of three teachers and during its 13 years of coal operation there has been no school building at Shallmar. The children have been housed most anywhere, in deserted Dodson, for instance, in almost any type of unsatisfactory buildings, which were practically donated. The Board also took under advisement the construction of a building of two or more rooms at some point in the central southern section of the county in which advanced educational opportunities would be provided through its being a graded or centralized school for several one-teacher schools, the pupils of which would be transported thereto.

The report was made that Health Day would be observed among the schools of the county upon June 5th and 6th under the supervision of Miss Ruth N. Martin, public health nurse, who is also planning for a clinic of pre-school age children.

An Interesting Fact.

In our day when there is a great outcry concerning the constantly increasing number of criminal cases clogging the dockets of both the State and Federal Courts, when extremists are urging more severe penalties and others urging the abolition of the death penalty, it is interesting to glance back over our history and note some of the penalties inflicted by our forefathers in Maryland.

For instance, in 1780, in Frederick county, a plan was hatched to release British prisoners held in that county and in Virginia. Seven Tories, leaders in the enterprise, were arrested, tried and found guilty, and the sentence of Judge Alexander Hanson was "that they be hanged, cut down while alive, drawn and quartered, and the four quarters of each body exposed to public view."

Prior to that, in 1663, the Assembly by an Act provided for the construction of a temporary prison at St. Mary's, with pillory stocks and ducking stool and each county of the state, at the same time, was required to provide branding irons for the burning of malefactors, especially the burning of the letter "H" on the shoulder of any person convicted of the second offense of stealing his neighbor's hogs.

Drunkenness, which was defined as "drinking with excess to notable perturbation of any organ of sense or motion," was made punishable by fines or whippings. The fine was set at thirty pounds of tobacco, or five shillings.

"Servile labor upon the Lord's Day" was absolutely prohibited, as was also "eating flesh in time of Lent or on other days (Wednesdays excepted) wherein it is prohibited by the law of England", and were punishable offenses.

While it is true that the harsh English laws against debtors whereby honest, but unfortunate men, were thrown into prison with malefactors of all kinds, were somewhat relaxed, yet as late as 1733, the law, which was considered (and was) a very forward step, provided that "where there is no sufficient distresse of goods, the party himself, or any of his servants attached, shall either be sold at on outcry, or otherwise his services valued and appraised by the month as before, and delivered in execution to the party or parties recovering, until the execution be satisfied"—that is the debt paid in services rendered by the creditor.

It was not until the administration of Governor Charles Goldsborough (1818-1819) that the law which countenanced imprisonment for debt, was repealed.

HARVEY BODY DISCOVERED ON LAKE TUESDAY BY BOY

Frostburg Man Found Floating on Lake Surface 300 Yards Above Glendale Bridge

MISSING SINCE APRIL 4

Floating face downward on the surface of Deep Creek Lake, in Garrett county, the body of City Engineer William Harvey, 50, of Frostburg, who had been missing since April 4, was found shortly after 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, about 300 yards above the Glendale Bridge, upon which his automobile was discovered the day he disappeared.

Sherman Friend, 17, and his sister, Mabel, 13, who live near the lake, were fishing along the bank when they discovered the body, which was floating about four feet from the shore. The youth notified residents of the neighborhood, who summoned Garrett county authorities before the body was removed from the water.

Although the body had been in the water more than three weeks, it was in fair condition, probably because of the low temperature of the lake, which is fed by mountain springs. There were no marks on the body and no indication that he had met with foul play, according to Garrett county officers, who said an inquest was not necessary.

State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger, Sheriff William D. Casteel, Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith, and Justice of the Peace W. A. Gonder, of Oakland, conducted an investigation after being notified of the discovery of the body, and gave permission for its removal to Frostburg. Sheriff William R. Harvey, Cumberland, a nephew of the dead man, aided the Garrett county authorities in the investigation. Dr. N. I. Broadwater, examined the body.

Harvey was fully clothed, except for his hat and overcoat. A small amount of money, his watch, a razor and some papers were found in his pockets. Harvey's overcoat was found in his abandoned car on the day he disappeared, together with his pocketbook, containing a large sum of money, a number of blue-prints and other papers.

The search for Harvey's body was continued by relatives and friends, after efforts during the first few days after his disappearance had failed. Allegany county officers and scores of volunteers aided Garrett county authorities in dragging the lake and using large quantities of dynamite in an attempt to locate the body.

Two deep-sea divers, secured by Frostburg lodge of Elks, of which Harvey was a member, were brought to the lake from Baltimore, but they were unable to find the body, after searching for two days.

Reports that Harvey was seen at various points after his car was found on the bridge, caused much speculation in this section, but relatives and friends of the missing man were convinced that his body was in Deep Creek Lake. He was said to have been worried in recent months, because of ill health, and had been in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, for examination.

Harvey appeared to be in good spirits when he left his home at 7 o'clock Friday morning, April 4, according to members of his family. He transacted business in Oakland later in the morning, and ate his luncheon with his brother, John Harvey, at the National Hotel in Grantsville. His abandoned car was found at 3:30 o'clock on the Glendale Bridge, about ten miles from this city.

Harvey was always considered a man of rugged health and steady nerve. He resided on Broadway, Frostburg, with his wife and three young sons, William, Jr., Robert, and Allen. He also leaves five brothers and two sisters.

Harvey was born in Frostburg, in 1880, the son of Robert Harvey. He graduated from Beall High school in 1896, and the West Virginia University at Morgantown in 1901. For many years he was superintendent of construction of the Cumberland and Westernport Electric Railway and was county surveyor of Allegany county for two years. He was appointed city engineer in 1904 and intermittently has held office up to the time he disappeared. His term would have expired May 5.

Funeral Wednesday Afternoon

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home, with the Rev. Lewis B. Browne, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, officiating. Interment was in Philos Cemetery, Westernport. The service at the cemetery was in charge of the Frostburg lodge of Elks, and the pallbearers were members of that organization.

MEETING HELD TO DECIDE ON NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Plans Are Designed for a New Building for Grantsville

Members of the Board of Education of Garrett county, the County Commissioners and several business men of Grantsville held a meeting at the Grantsville High school building on Friday afternoon in the interest of a proposed new school building for Grantsville.

Plans were designed to start a new building in units of three, the first unit to be built on the east side of the present old building but entirely separate with suitable connections until the other units can be added.

Fifteen thousand dollars has been appropriated by the Commissioners for this part of a new school building with three additional class rooms and an assembly hall. The work will be started very soon so as to be ready for the opening of school in September.

A number of schools are being transported to Grantsville which makes the present building crowded to its capacity and with a new building more pupils can be accommodated and Grantsville school made a center for high school students in that section of the county.

GARRETT COUNTY FARMER HELD ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Waives Hearing and Will Be Tried at June Term of Court

Charged with assault upon Clara E. Broadwater. of Midland, Allegany county, Fred. Green, Garrett county farmer, residing near Lonaconing, through his attorney. A. T. Matthews, of Oakland, acting for Saul Praeger, Cumberland attorney, waived a hearing Monday morning before Magistrate Edward I. West at Oakland. His case will be tried at the June Term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county. Bond in the sum of $800 was fixed by the magistrate.

Green, according to Garrett county officers, has a police record, and was arrested shortly after the alleged assault on the evening of April 5 on Savage Mountain, near Frostburg. Two other youths of Lonaconing, whose homes are also in Garrett county, are being sought by local officers, following a brutal attack on another girl of Gilmore, Allegany county, on the same evening.

According to officials, the girls in question accepted a ride to Frostburg with the men, where they were going to attend a dance. When they reached Frostburg, it is alleged, they refused to allow the girls to leave the automobile, but continued on into Garrett county, stopping the vehicle on Savage Mountain where the crime is alleged to have been committed.

The Gilmore girl is alleged to have been attacked by two of the men who are charged with having feloniously assaulted her.

Scouts Receive Merit Badge Awards—Monthly Inspection to be on Friday

Three merit badges were awarded at the regular meeting of the Court of honor of the Boy Scouts of America, on Monday evening. Schell Hoye and James Treacy were awarded the badge in electricity, and John McIntire was awarded the badge in personal health.

The monthly inspection of the troop will be held at its meeting tomorrow evening. Delbert Davis, president of the Oakland Rotary club, will be present and give a short talk to the scouts concerning Boys' Week.

Fifteen scouts were present on the all-day hike to Herrington Manor, the State forest, on Saturday and assisted in planting approximately 1,100 trees on a space allotted to the Oakland Civic club for a tree-planting project. Those assisting were W. Tillett, Bob Altstetter, Jack Treacy, James Treacy, Kenneth Lawton, Lewis Lawton, Elvin Iman, James Nordeck, Harley Dawson, John McIntire, Lewis Jones, Donald Stemple, George Kerins, Joseph Sollars, Howard Rathbun.

ALL HOME OWNERS PROFIT IF THEY ENTER CONTEST

Opportunities are Great to Make Homes Attractive by Trees, Shrubs and Flowers

Every family in Oakland will profit by entering the Yard and Garden contest, being sponsored by the Oakland Civic club, Mrs. A. L. Lee, chairman of the big beautification campaign, has pointed out. Entries for this contest will not be received after May 10, and all are urged to get theirs in as soon as possible. No entry fee is charged.

The opportunity to make homes attractive by setting out trees, shrubs and flowers is the first direct benefit that comes to each family joining the contest, Mrs. Lee stated. The spirit of competition, furnishes people with an incentive and after the start is once made it is easy to improve and beautify the home lot.

A fine chance to create an outdoor living room is presented each family as they begin to make their grounds more attractive, and they can be made on any size lot and with very little expense.

One of the most valuable results is the ideal environment for growing children which is provided on every home lot improved and beautified. Beautiful surroundings are always an influence for good. They leave a lasting impression on boys and girls in strong and healthy bodies, clean minds and happy dispositions.

In addition to this there is the increase in real estate value which planting the home grounds always brings, the chairman pointed out. Then too, every home has an equal chance to win one of the valuable prizes which will be given at the close of the contest, as the homes will be judged on the improvement made.

A clean city will impress the strangers, tourists and visitors among us constantly, and the character of the people in Oakland will be judged by the pride they take in their home and property. "You win if you lose," Mrs. Lee concluded, "so be sure to mail your entry as soon as possible."

Civic Club Officers Are Re-elected at Meeting

All officers of the Oakland Civic club were unanimously re-elected at the regular monthly meeting of that organization held on Tuesday afternoon at the Court House. Those re-elected are Miss Lottie Loar, president; Mrs. Arthur Naylor, first vice-president; Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, second vice-president; Mrs. Townshend Naylor, secretary; Mrs. Julius Littman, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. W. Grant, treasurer.

Mrs. Milton Sincell gave a report of the Northern District meeting at Frederick. It was pointed out that ideas gained from these meetings are a great inspiration to the clubs in small communities.

A report on the forestry program of the club was given by Miss Loar. Last Saturday fifteen boy scouts, under the supervision of their scoutmasetr, Mr. A. L. Sines, and Hr. H. C. Buckingham, planted approximately 1100 red pine trees on the Herrington Manor forest.

The club is cooperating with the town council in its clean-up campaign, to be held sometime in May. A donation of $50 was received by the club from Mr. Lawson Loar, to be used for orthopedic work.

To Place Registered Bulls In Garrett County

Mr. C. J. Stauber, in charge of the United States Bureau of Dairying at Beltsville, Md., and J. A. Conover, dairy specialist of the University of Maryland Extension division, will be in the county on May 8 to visit farmers in company with John H. Carter, county agent, in the interest of improving the Jersey breed of cattle here.

Five Jersey bulls from the dairy farm at Beltsville will be loaned to farmers of Garrett county desiring them, and who pass the necessary requirements of showing that they are equipped to take care of them properly. All five bulls come from high producing dams, and will be loaned for the purpose of improving the Jersey breed in the county.

In connection with the loan of these animals a Herd Improvement Association will be organized in the near future by County Agent Carter.

REPORT OF CENSUS SHOWS OAKLAND IS INCREASING

Preliminary Returns Show Oakland Has Gained a Total of 298 in Past Ten Years

That the city of Oakland had gained a total of 298 in population since the census in 1920, was reported this morning by John J. Stump, Cumberland, supervisor of the 1930 Census for this district. Oakland now has a population of 1573, as compared with 1275 listed in 1920.

The figures are tentative and subject to correction. This is the fourth town in Garrett county which has reported an increase in population, last week's preliminary figures giving Grantsville, Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park a greater population than in 1920. Kitzmiller and Loch Lynn Heights were two towns listed as having decreased.

The first six towns enumerated in the county show a net gain of 266 over the figures of ten years ago.

In order that no person in the county will be missed, a blank is being printed in this issue of The Republican asking whether or not an enumerator has called to take the census, and if not this blank is to be filled in and mailed to the census supervisor. In Morgantown and Fairmont, W. Va., several hundred additional names were found by this method.

In election district No. 11, of this county, known as The Elbow, the population is 300, as compared with 510 in 1920. This loss was partly due to a new election district, Avilton, formed since the last census. There were fifty-nine farms enumerated in this area.

Oakland High Baseball Team Wins Two Games

The Oakland High School baseball team opened the season with two straight victories over opponents, the first being on Friday afternoon when they defeated Kitzmiller High by the score of 14-2, and the second being on Tuesday afternoon when they smothered Friendsville 34 to 7.

The first game was the most decisive beating an Oakland High team has given Kitzmiller in a number of years. The game was featured by the fine pitching and long range hitting of Don Colaw, Oakland right hander, who struck out 15 Kitzmiller men and allowed but 3 hits in seven innings. The entire Oakland team functioned smoothly.

In the Friendsville encounter 37 hits were amassed from three Friendsville pitchers, and a total of 34 runs. Carskadon pitched a nice game, allowing only 9 hits and 7 runs in six innings. Perry Dawson and Colaw led the Oakland batting attack, each getting six hits out of seven times at bat.

Mr. C. M. Railey, Republican Candidate For Sheriff

Mr. C. M. Railey, of McHenry, District No. 6, announces himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of Sheriff in today's issue of The Republican. Mr. Railey has been engaged in various lines of business, first as a farmer; then a merchant and at present engaged in farming at McHenry. In all these enterprises he has been more or less successful owing to his energy and foresightedness. Mr. Railey is well thought of wherever known and has the ability to administer the office of sheriff should he be nominated and elected.

Preliminary Report Given on Marriage and Divorces in 1929

The department of commerce at Washington, D. C., announced that there were 25,124 marriages performed in Maryland during the year 1929, as compared with 24,226 in 1928, an increase of 898 or 3.7 percent. In 1916 there were 20,397 marriages performed.

During 1929, 2,111 divorces were granted in the state as compared with 1,976 in 1928, an increase of 135 or 6.8 percent. Six marriages were annulled in 1929 as compared with 26 in 1928.

Garrett county is listed as having issued 1,243 licenses in 1929, and granting 10 divorces as compared with 1,215 licenses in 1928 with 10 divorces. There were no annulments either in 1919 or 1928. The figures for 1929 are preliminary and subject to correction.

DAIRY SIRE TRAIN TO BE HERE WEDNESDAY, MAY 14

Will be on Baltimore and Ohio Siding 8:30 Until 12 O'clock

A Better Dairy Sire special train, to be known as the Cream Can Special, will stop in Oakland at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station on Wednesday, May 14, at 8:30 o'clock, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced.

The train is being run under the auspices of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and in cooperation with the West Virginia University extension service. Oakland will be the only stop made in Maryland and will be on the sidetrack in rear of the station from 8:30 until about 12 o'clock noon.

J. A. Conover, dairy specialist of the University of Maryland, will be present and deliver a talk, and other features have been arranged by County Agent Carter which will be announced next week. All farmers interested in the production of cream and whole milk are urged to attend.

The train will carry a number of purebred Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein bulls, some of which will be for sale. All bulls will range from 10 to 18 months in age, and will sell for prices ranging from $100 to $250. All bulls are from dams of 400 lbs, of butterfat or over, it was stated.

MAPLE SUGAR PRODUCERS ENJOY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Twenty Producers of Maple Products Association Have Yield Federal-State Inspected

SEASON ABOVE AVERAGE

The first year for the organization of the Garrett County Maple Products Association has ended successfully, according to members and F. B. Trenk, extension forester, as well as the season for the entire maple sugar and syrup industry in Garrett county.

During the first season for the organization it is found that twenty producers have had Federal-State inspection of their syrup, and that approximately 2,500 gallons of syrup have passed inspection and have been, or are being, sold under the "Crest O' the Highlands" name as fancy grade and prime grade. It is estimated that there are over 120 maple syrup producers in the county and that there were between 60,000 and 75,000 gallons of syrup produced by them.

Practically all producers experienced a season above the average, and particularly members of the association who were able to get a high price for their syrup when sold under the Association's name and label.

One of the largest shipments to be made from the county was 45 steel drums, or 4,000 gallons, which was shipped from Gormania by Jacob Dilgard to St. Albans, Vermont, there to be labeled Vermont Maple Syrup.

The vast amount of syrup produced in the county compared with the result of the first year's work of the Maple Products Association, shows the possibilities for the future welfare of that organization if they continue to expand. A series of meetings is to be conducted for the producers which will be held in different sections of the county. A meeting of the Board of Directors of the association is scheduled for May 1, when F. B. Trenk, extension forester, will be present and discuss the problem of further developments.

Many inquiries have been received from other states asking about graded syrup, according to County Agent Carter, and it is felt that the reputation of the association will be widespread within the next few years.

The Garrett County Maple Products association was organized in December, 1929, with the assistance of the Maryland department of forestry and the University of Maryland extension service, and was formed for the purpose of encouraging production of a better quality of products and aiding the producers to find a better market.

Tomorrow afternoon the boys of Oakland will be guests of the Rotary club at a moving picture in the Maryland theatre. Saturday will conclude Boys' Week, and will be known as boys' day out-of-doors.

Mr. George D. Browning, of Oakland, who has been a member of the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county for a number of years, announces his candidacy for renomination in this issue of The Republican, subject to the result of the Republican primary election.

His determination to seek renomination and reelection, should he be successful at the primary, gives his friends in all parts of the county real pleasure.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimre)

Opponents of the fourth term candidacy of the Governor are expecting to have a new State ticket in the field before the end of another week.

Strong support has been concentrated behind Representative Stephen W. Gambrill and it is expected that he will shy his hat into the ring without much further delay.

Ever since the retirement of Senator McIntosh the opponents of the fourth term have been busy night and day sounding sntiment in the counties as well as in the city. All along the line the report is that the announcement of the Governor's candidacy has fallen flat and the prediction of his defeat (if nominated) grow in volume.

Many of the Governor's backers have evidently been under the impression that the McIntosh withdrawal and the Ritchie announcement would settle everything, but it has seemingly settled nothing at all. The Ritchie opposition is strongest among the non-politcal people—those who get nothing out of politics.

The strength of the tide against the Governor has encouraged his opponents to greater activity and they have lost no time, while the fourth term advocates have been shouting that there will be no opposition in the primary and that the nomination is "all sewed up."

As long as the Governor occupies the Democrtic field alone there will be more and more inquiry as to the probable Republican nominee for Governor —this because so many thousands of Democrats will not vote for Ritchie again. Many say he is making a hog of himself, to put it plainly, and therefore they have turned against him. And so it is that until they see a candidate they can vote for in the Democratic primary these Democrats will be making persistent inquiry as to what the Republicans are going to do.

Ritchie People Admit
Gambrill Is Strong

It is by no means a secret that in the Ritchie camp the Democrat most feared is Mr. Gambrill. Ever since last autumn the Governor has been manifesting uneasiness whenever the Gambrill name has been mentioned and this is so well known that even the Republican leaders have been commenting on it.

It has been the Ritchie policy from the day he entered the first term as Governor to do all in his power to dispose of all those who might in the future become his rivals. It was probably with this idea in mind that the Governor advocated the nomination of Mr. Gambrill for Congress as the successor to the late Sydney E. Mudd, Jr. Mr. Gambrill was nominated, but before the election came off it got noised around Anne Arundel County that Ritchie did not want Mr. Gambrill elected, and that he had him put up in a normally Republican district just to have him defeated and laid on the shelf where he would do no harm. But the effect of this report in Anne Arundel was to arouse the interest of what is known as the "Progressive" element among the Democrats and they stirred up enough votes to put Gambrill over.

Once in the office, Mr. Gambrill made himself most useful to his constituents so that the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District have come to look upon him as a fixture, much to their chagrin. As a result of his attention to the duties of his position, Mr. Gambrill is said to have won many Republican votes in his last campaign.

Senator McIntosh
Doesn't Lack Spunk

It is apparent that Senator McIntosh, recently retired as a primary election opponent of Governor Ritchie, hasn't exhaused his supply of spunk. Approached with the proffered "support" of Ritchie people for the Congressional nomination he lets it be known that he isn't ready to let them soft soap him. It was the right sort of reply to make and a message that should put some courage in the weaker kneed of the fourth term opponents. For it seems to be the belief of the fourth termers that having gotten away with nearly everything except murder, they can now fool almost every and anybody.

Congress Muss
Has Them Stirred

The entry of Major Herbert Grymes as a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Second District has stirred up the various clements of the party and many see in it the hand of William Curran. It had been given out that the Governor and his crowd would back ex-Congressman Cole and the entry of Grymes, backed by Squire Ranft, a Ritchie appointee, has had the effect of causing some political bewilderment. Then there is Yewell Dillehunt, who is not a Ritchie man, making his entry for the same honor while Senator Dan Chambers waits to see whether his friends will force him in regardless.

And still there is room for more—in the city sections of the Second District or from the three counties which fill out the bailiwick.

Mr. Cole must be feeling a bit funny about it by this time and he is probably wondering what that Ritchie support amounts to if one appointee of the Governor can go in and get the endorsement of another appointee.

Mr. Dillehunt, we hear, is not only hostile to the Governor's fourth term pretensions but has been active in rounding up support for Congressman Gambrill as the Ritchie opponent in September.

The more we hear about candidates the more apparent it becomes that the fourth term candidacy is mixing things up for the regular Democrats.

Dr. Sperry Pays
Some Money Back

The most interesting event in the war between the Democratic factions in Montgomery county is the action of Dr. Benjamin Perry, one of the Brooke Lee lieutenants, in paying back into the county trcasury money he had received for services as member of the Board of County Commissioners.

A taxpayer had filed a bill to stop the payment of a certain extra salary to Dr. Perry which was provided for such an official when he devoted all of his time to his job. It was undisputed that Dr. Perry pursued the practice of his profession from day to day as a physician and thus he had no good defense. Therefore, in replying to the biil filed by the taxpayer Dr. Perry gave notice that he had returned the extra money he had drawn and did not propose to draw it in the future. This was certainly a substantial victory for the opponents of Brooke Lee.

Alcazar to Ring
With Democratic Shouts

The Stonewall Jackson Democratic Ciub, otherwise known as South Baltimore's Fort Ritchie, it to hold its second annual ball at the Alcazar on next Tuesday night and the way the tickets are being sold the affair should be very well attended. His Excellency, the Governor, will be expected and one of the sights of the evening will be the Governor and President Gil Dailey dancing an Irish jig together—some time after the third act.

The receipt of tickets at these headquarters indicates that non-fourth termers wili be permitted to attend if they see fit to take the risk. But we must all remember that it has not been much more than a fortnight since a Democratic club in South Baltimore threw out its president because he expressed the opinion that it was time to bring about a change of administration at Annapolis.

In any event we hope that the Stone wall Club's blowout will not be marred by any unhappy event precipitated by advocates of the nomination of Representative Gambrill or any other non-fourth termer.

Republicans Watching
Democratic Contest

Just now there is more newspaper excitement among the Republicans than among thc Democrats. Many of the Republicans have been deceived by the Ritchie propaganda and have been thinking the Governor would be renominated without a contest. It may require several days to convince them to the contrary and when they are become so convinced they may begin to stir themselves.

The fight over the confirmation of Judge Parker to the Supreme Court bench has mussed things up. All along it was considered a sure thing and that Judge Soper would be moved up to the place vacated by Judge Parker. Now Judge Parker may fail. Then no promotion for Judge Soper. Then no new judge to take Soper's place, and as it was considered that U. S. Attorney Woodcock was in line with National Committeeman Jackson's indorsement for the local judgeship he would be out of the running for Governor.

Woodcock is a Jackson man and Jackson is a Woodcock man. So it may be that the big chieftains will have to consider Woodcock for Governor after they had thought him shelved by his judicial candidacy.

Meanwhile Mayor Broening remains cooler than the political reporters. He doesn't get excited about running. He never does. And, in a way, that strengthens his position.

GOOD ROADS PAY FOR THEMSELVES

A recent survey claims the average cost of operation for all motor vehicles in the United States has gone down to 6.43 cents per mile; including insurance, depreciation, tires, fuel and maintenance. On a high type road the average is but 5.44 cents; on low type, 7.5 cents. Thus good, smooth, long-wearing pavements pay for themselves in lowered automobile costs.

At present, the need of good roads is especially apparent in rural districts. Trunk highways are laid out to go from city to city by the shortest possible route. As a result, the majority of farmers, who it is estimated pay seven percent of the total road tax, live on unimproved, dirt roads which are totally impassable during many months of the year.

Modern, yet inexpensive, hard surfaced farm-to-market or feeder roads give the farmer all-year-'round contact with his markets and adjacent towns. They help relieve traffic congestion on main highways and stimulate social and economic relations.

A number of states, notably New York, has adopted a rural road program which should be emulated thruout the nation. For every mile of main highway built, between five and fifteen miles of feeder highway should be built at the same time. In this way can progress be served.

A PLAN FOR USING OUR ABANDONED FARMS

We hear a great deal of discussion nowadays as to what we ought to do to help the farmer. Another problem is what ought to be done with our abandoned farms. Col Richard Lieber, Director of Conservation for the State of Indiana, in an interesting article in the current issue of the National Republic suggests that we plant our abandoned farms wherever practicable, and take up a great deal of our "poor" farm land, by planting the acreage in trees, thus safeguarding our vanishing lumber supply. In part, Mr. Lieber says:

"While thus older countries have been aroused to the necessity of rebuilding the forest resources, America has failed to profit from preceding history.

"The lumbering wave swept down from the New England States to New York and Pennsylvania, then northwest through the Lake states, and onward through the Central States and into the great cypress and pine States and into the great cypress and pine forests of the South. Today the great virgin forests are making their last stand in the Pacific northwest. In the next three or four decades this great store of Nature will have almost entirely disappeared.

"One cannot condemn the use of the forest products for they have gone into homes, transportation, industry, warmth and even art and beauty. We do stand, however, guilty before present and unborn generations for the destruction of the recurring possibilities of forestry and agriculture upon the lands we have laid waste.

"Why are there millions of acres of potential forest land in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania standing as idle as barren deserts? This land once supported heavy stands of timber stocked with all sorts of game and wild life. The answer is human carelessness. Where once grew magnificent trees we find forest fires have robbed the next generation of that wood supply which means as much to us. There fires have taken away time after time the soil cover and fertility needed to sustain new growth. Over vast areas it will be two centuries before this humus can be rebuilt by successive types of smaller vegetation to the point where the land will again sustain a forest stand.

"Why are the small woodlots which are so precious to every farm through the agricultural states like Illinois, Indiana and Ohio neglected and ignored both by the landowner and the agricultural leader as a potential crop and therefore a part of farm management? The answer is lack of vision which permits grazing animals to eat up the young trees on the forest floor so necessary to perpetual species and link one crop of timber with the next one. While busily engaged in building up the quality of grain and animal crops through careful selection and breeding and by eliminating the "border" individual, we have been permitting the lumber man to haul away only the best timber, leaving the cull and overmature trees to occupy the site and perpetuate their own inferior kind.

"We should ask ourselves another question. Why do the deforested states east of the Great Plains import millions of dollars worth of lumber and other forest products each year when the millions of acres of idle and eroding hill lands in each of these states increase at an appalling rate?

"Take for example the rough unglaciated hill lands of southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Once the cradle of these states they stand today as a great economic problem in land use. As the pioneers came down the Ohio River they pushed northward through the hills. It was necessary to occupy high ground because the low, flat lands were undrained and unfit for healthy livelihood. The forests were cleared away and the plough was taken to the hills to turn under the protecting leaves and humus.

"The loose soil was exposed to erosion. The fertility was quickly leached away because the lime and nitrates which are basic plant food are readily soluble in the rain.

"Then came dredging machinery and tile to transfer lowlands into fertile grain fields. Government projects of expansion in agriculture caused the deserts to produce. Each acre of new soil with its virgin fertility placed several acres of older hill land on a marginal producing basis."

An Interesting Fact.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Even with the evident desire of authors to record historical events with accuracy, misstatements and errors, somehow or other, creep in, and for many years are taken and accepted for verities. One such was thus accepted for many years, and was in connection with the writing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key.

In many general histories and even in pamphlets in connection with the recent bi-centenial celebration of the founding of the city of Baltimore, it was recorded that Mr. Key wrote the immortal poem while confined below decks of the British ship Minden, during the time the enemy was bombarding Ft. McHenry in the war of 1812. More recent investigations have shown that this is an error, as shown by James E. Hancock, president of the Society of the War of 1812.

The now accepted version of the traditional story is based in part at least, on a letter written by Chief Justice Taney, brother-in-law of Key, in the year 1856, approximately forty years after the event.

It appears that a Dr. Beanes had been captured by the British as they were returning to their ships after the burning of Washington and Key undertook a mission to effect his release. During the bombardment of the fort Key was quartered on the British ship "Surprise", where he was treated kindly by Sir Thomas Cochrane, until the fleet reached the Patapsco, when Mr. Key and his companion were sent on board their own vessel, which was anchored in a position which enabled them to see distinctly the flag on Fort McHenry. Key remained on deck during the night watching every shell from the moment it was fired until it fell, and as long as the bombardment continued he knew the fort was safe. Finally it suddenly ceased just before dawn. Key was anxious. He was uncertain, but when light came he saw that "our flag was still there."

Justice Taney wrote that Key told him that "under the excitement of the time, he had written a song." He said "he commenced it on the deck of the vessel, in the fervor of the moment" when the enemy was retreating and he saw the flag on the fort.

It is therefore clear that the song was written on an American vessel. The fact is the story that it had been composed on the British ship Minden did not come into existence until fifty years after the episode and correspondence with the British Admiralty some years ago revealed that the Minden was serving at another place and was not at the bombardment of Ft. McHenry.

One of the finest lawns to be seen in Oakland is that of merchant Arthur Townshend, Alder street. It was put in shape by the "old reliable," Arthur Campbell.

Married April 17, 1890, by Rev. J. DeWitt, at residence of Abel DeWitt, Mr. George Thayer, and Miss Eliza J. Smith.

Oakland was visited by a small-sized cyclone last Sunday afternoon. It caught a pile of heavy timber near the railroad track and scattered it in every direction, and converted the water of Little Yough into a miniature water spout.

Ben. Sincell, foreman of the Preston County Journal, Kingwood, W. Va., visited his mother Sunday. Ben. very rarely comes to Oakland now, and we understand the excuse he gives is that there is a powerful magnet in Kingwood in the person of a beautiful young lady that refuses to allow him to leave her even for one Sabbath.

INTER-CITY ROTARY MEET WAS HELD AT TERRA ALTA

Many Members of Clubs From Four Towns in Section Present

The inter-city meeting of Rotary Clubs, held at Terra Alta, West Va., last Thursday evening was a most successful and pleasing event. Representatives from the Terra Alta, Morgantown, Kingwood and Oakland Clubs were present to the number of approximately one hundred, and all heartily cooperated to put the meeting over in a big way.

Delbert Davis, as master of ceremonies, from the first tap of the bell until the last and the reading of telegrams relating to certain stock investments of George D. Sprague and others, kept the wheel revolving so there was not a dull moment during the entire evening.

Aside from the address made by Mr. Ignatius Bjorlee, Governor of the Thirty-fourth District, followed by the very pertinent remarks of Mr. F. Roy Yoke, former Governor of the Twenty-fourth District, any statement of the outstanding event of the evening would be hazardous, as the entire program was so well rounded and interesting and handled in such a pleasing and capable manner by the men in charge, that every number was thoroughly enjoyed.

Governor Bjorlee, in his address, took for his chief theme "Biggotry," and in a very easy and happy manner, by apt illustrations and pointed stories, developed his subject along lines somewhat new and entirely different from the usual, stereotyped after-dinner address. He convincingly demonstrated that among true Rotarians there was no room for biggotry.

The Governor then briefly addressed himself to the Rotarian motto: "He profits most who serves best," clearly showing that while all mottos are more or less idealistic, yet, taken in conjunction with the objects of Rotary, are practical and are of decided benefit, not only to the members of the organization themselves, but to the several communities. Mr. Bjorlee emphasized the fact that even in competition there should be constructive cooperation, and that the profits from individual efforts were not alone monetary. All the objects of Rotary, according to the speaker, including that of international goodwill, are practical—not idealistic solely.

Mr. F. Roy Yoke, of Morgantown, former Governor of the Twenty-fourth District, then followed in his usual happy manner. Basing the main part of his discourse on the statement that bigotry was in all cases the result of hate and ignorance and therefore destructive to the real objects of Rotary, Mr. Yoke demonstrated that the organization had been the instrument whereby petty jealousies and petty rivalries between states and communities had been wiped out and that boundary lines in Rotary had disappeared. Mr. Yoke is quite favorably known as a Rotarian and as a speaker in this as well as in his own district.

Reeves Blandford was never in better voice than at this meeting. His rendition of "Love, Your Spell is Everywhere," "Cryin' for the Carolinas," and other solos, was received with approbation and enthusiastic applause of the entire assemblage.

Bill Gibson was the pianist, and when Bill plays this instrument the folks within a block or two all know it. He is a prime favorite wherever he appears.

The story telling contest by representatives of each club, in charge of Secretary Davis of the Oakland club, brought forth some very clever anecdotes and stories. This feature was handled ably by the members of the several clubs called upon. The prize for the best story went to Mr. Yoke, of the Morgantown club. Jim Evans, of the Terra Alta club, received a very appropriate prize for the worst story.

Called upon unexpectedly Mr. F. E. Rathbun, in a brief but convincing and well-rounded address epitomized the thoughts of the evening, particularly stressing the duty of good citizenship in the approaching Statewide political campaign.

BOOKLET GIVES RECIPES ON MAPLE SUGAR AND SYRUP

Garrett County Maple Products Association Offers Booklet

The Garrett County Maple Products Association, in cooperation with the Extension Service of the University of Maryland, has just issued a very useful and interesting booklet entitled, "Thirteen Delicious Maple Sugar and Syrup Recipes." The new publication, which is part of a plan to bring a superior grade of Maryland grown maple products before the public, may be obtained from the Secretary of the Garrett County Maple Products Association, Oakland, Md.

The thirteen recipes offered in the booklet were prepared and tested by Miss Margaret McPheeters, Nutrition Specialist, Extension Service, University of Maryland, and Miss Elsie Benthien, Home Demonstration Agent, Garrett county. Many of the home makers of Garrett county have known and used some of these recipes for a great many years.

The Garrett County Maple Products Association, which was organized in December, 1929, was established for the purpose of encouraging production of a better quality product, and to aid producers in finding better market. As a result, twenty odd producers of Garrett county had their syrup Federal-State inspected and two thousand gallons were sold under the Association name, "Crest O' the Highlands." This was considered a good record for the first year of the Association's existence.

Lesson for May 4

PROMOTION IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:17-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Become Great.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Become Great.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Greatness Through Self-Denying Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ's Standard of Greatness.

I. The King Foretells His Death and Resurrection (vv. 17-19).

1. The King on His way to Jerusalem (v. 17).

This is His last journey to the beloved city. He took the twelve disciples aside from the traveling pilgrims to make known unto them what was before them. As they journeyed, be went ahead of the disciples. The courage thns shown hy the Lord amazed the disciples who were following in fear (Mark 10:32).

2. The betrayal and death foretold (vv. 18, 19).

He went forward, fully conscious of the awful tragedy of the cross. He for the third time since the transfiguration tells the disciples of His approaching sufferings and death. But they are so filled with their ambitious schemes that they do not understand Him. The treachery of Judas, the fierce persecutions hy the chief priests and scribes, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mockery, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross, the hanging between two malefactors, the nails, the spear—all were spread before His mind like a picture! Though He knew all this, He pressed on, not of necessity, hut deliberately. The joyous outlook upon the victory which would be accomplished by the shedding of His hlood led Him forward. He went courageously, for He knew the time had come for the accomplishment of His Father's will.

3. The resurrection foretold (v. 19).

Truly, this would have been a dark picture bad the resurrection not been made known. The resurrection life beyond is always seen as the issue of the cross. The blessedness of the life beyond this "vale of tears" should indnce us to press on. Christ is the grand example. (Heb. 12:2).

II. The Ambitious Request of James and John (vv. 20-23).

1. The request (vv. 20, 21).

This request was made by their mother. The request was for a place of prominence in the kingdom. It is not wrong for mothers to be ambitious for their boys, but they should know that life's pinnacles are exceedingly dangerous. It is desirable that parents should get places for their children near to Jesus, hut the vain ambition of the world should not occupy their minds.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 22, 23).

He spoke directly to the men, not to their mother, declaring that they knew not what they were asking. He showed them that the way to this position of glory was through suffering. The cup which they were to drink was of great agony. The way to the places of glory in the kingdom of Christ is by the path of lowly and self-forgetting service.

III. How to Be Truly Exalted (vv. 24-28).

1. The angry disciples (v. 24).

When the ten heard of the request of James and John, they were filled with indignation against them. Their displeasure did not arise from the fact that they were free from the same selfish spirit, but that these two had thrust themselves to the front.

2. Greatness among the heathen (v. 25).

The rule of the world has always been by the strong hand. The standards have not been moral excellence, but worth, station, and power.

3. Greatness among Christ's disciples (vv. 26, 27).

The standard here is in sharp contrast. The way to the place of prominence in Christ's kingdom is the way of self-abasement. To give is greater than to receive. To be serving some one is much better than to be served. There will be degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom, but this rank will be character, not position, or authority. The spirit of Christ substitutes "the greatness of love for the love of greatness."

4. Christ is the supreme example of greatness (v. 28).

All who will be great should study and imitate Christ. Let them forget self and serve others, even to the giving of their lives.

Courage, Unspotted Life

Then said Mr. Holy-man, there are two things that they have need to possess who go on pilgrimage: courage and an unspotted life. If they have not courage, they can never hold on their way; and if their lives be loose, they will make the very name of a pilgrim stink.—John Bunyan.

Being Satisfied

To be satisfied with what yon have, but never with what you are, means growth and joy.—Young People.

EVERY HOME CAN NOW HAVE AN OUTDOOR LIVING ROOM

BEFORE AND AFTER PLANTING

An outdoor living room which adds so much to the joy of living can be built on practically every city lot, the scores of entrants in the Yard and Garden contest are discovering. The size of your premises make no difference. There always seems to be a place out of doors, which you can turn into an attractive private area by merely planting some trees, shrubs and flowers.

With growing things such as trees and taller shrubs, a hedge instead of a fence, perhaps a vine or two, the welcome atmosphere of privacy is attained. These plantings furnish walls of green for your outdoor living room. The center area is left in open lawn—your velvet carpet.

Around the border of this beautiful retreat your flowers are placed. As they burst into bloom your decorations blossom forth in all the harmonious colors of Nature. These flowers charm you with their fragrance too, every time you step out of doors. And above is the blue sky, your ceiling. How restful to drop down on a cool bench in such a place! How refreshing it is to spend your leisure moments in this outdoor living room.

Mexican Meat Roll

Mix one pound of chopped beef, ¼ pound of salt pork, ¼ pound of veal with 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 of grated onion, 2 of melted butter, and one chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, ½ cup soft bread crumbs. Make into loaf and bake in the greased Dutch oven, cover on, for about 45 minutes. Put the Dutch oven inside a portable or range oven, for best results. Ten minutes before done, place peeled bananas, halved lengthwise, about the meat, and strips of bacon on top. Serve on hot platter with Parsley.

Barbecued Ham

Slice the ham about ½ inch thick and in pieces for serving. Brown it in hot skillet. Slice cold boiled sweet potatoes around this; add few round slices of apples, cored but not pared; let brown a little. Sprinkle paprika on potatoes, sugar on apples—put on skillet cover and leave it all to cook gently, the ham flavor permeating the potatoes and apples in most tempting way. Make corn pones by adding pinch of salt to two cups yellow or white Indian meal, 1 tablespoon melted lard and enough boiling water to moisten. Make in rolls. Soon as ham and apples are tender, arrange them on hot platter, put corn rolls in fat in skillet, under the cover. Cook 10 minutes. Arrange round the ham, with parsley. Make gravy by adding generous pinch of mustard, pepper, heaping tablespoon flour to fat in skillet. Stir till cooks gently. Pour in gradually 1½ cups milk, let simmer till thick. Serve separately.

Swiss Steak

Swiss steak is simply an inexpensive round steak made wonderfully delicious; To make it, pound flour into about two and a half pounds of the round cut thick. Poud in all it will take, a whole cupful if possible; and use the rim of a stout saucer so you won't break up the fibres of the meat. Then lay the steak on two or three slices of sizzling bacon in a skillet, pour half a cup of hot water, stock, or tomato juice around it, drop in a medium sized onion in which you have placed one clove, add the tiniest bit of bay leaf. Use self-basting cover on skillet and let the steak simmer for an hour. Then mix one-fourth teaspoonful of dry mustard in one-half cupful of water or tomato juice, pour it into the skillet, dash in a little celery salt and a tablespoonful of walnut or tamoto catsup, and let the meat simmer under cover for a half hour or an hour longer—when it will be tender, savory, and ready to serve. For gravy, simply strain the juices that are around this steak—no additional thickening or seasoning is necessary.

Potato Growers Warned About Inferior "Certified" Seed

Potato growers in the State are warned by Dr. R. A. Jehle, specialist in pathology for the University of Maryland Extension Service, to be extremely careful in buying seed, since it has been brought to his attention during the past few weeks that certain unscrupulous dealers are selling an inferior product for the certified. While this situation has existed for some time it is steadily becoming worse because growers are demanding more certified seed and some dealers are taking advantage of this demand by substituting other than the officially certified product.

Seed, in order to be officially certified, must be inspected twice in the field and once after the potatoes have been dug, according to Dr. Jehle. Also, the seed must meet certain standards set by seed officials in the State. The inspection must be made under the direction of the State Department of Agriculture, the State Agricultural Experiment Station, or Agricultural College. Moreover, the fact that such an inspection has been made must be stated on the tag. Only seed inspected in this manner is "Officially Certified Seed."

Growers are, therefore, warned against any tags marked "Certified Seed" only, or which bear, in addition, statements to the effect that the seed was grown in a certain locality or that it was sprayed with a particular spray. Such tags are valueless as far as protecting the grower from mixtures or destructive, seed-borne potato diseases, it is pointed out.

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' QUESTION BOX ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. Does a plant eat?
2. How can grasshoppers breathe, having no lungs?
3. What is the Will-O'-The Wisp, or Jack-O Lantern?

1. To this question we must answer "yes", as some of the sensative plants are so cleverly constructed that they can tell when an insect touches them. These plants grow wild in Scotland, the United States, and other places. The leaf of the plant is covered with very small, sticky things that look like short hairs, and if a small insect touches it, it is caught by the sticky stuff on the hairs, and the leaf quickly rolls up and catches it. The insect dies and the plant digests its dead body and eats, or rather absorbes it. These are called flesh-eating plants.

2. It is most marvelous the manner in which the needs of all living creatures are provided for. For instances, grasshoppers have no lungs, as we think about those organs in humans. Yet they are able to live and use the oxygen from the air, so essential to life, by means of hair-like air tubes penetrating into parts of the insect's body, through which the air passes.

3. There is a particular kind of gas produced from decaying vegetables in marshy water, called marsh-gas. This is made of carbon and hydrogen, and is capable of being burnt. At one time it was thought that the light that is sometimes seen might be caused by tiny insects hovering over the marsh that gave off a faint light. But this was found to be not true. As the gas is produced it slowly burns and shares in the general movement of the air currents, and therefore the light seems to be dancing about. Hence its name—ignis fatuus, or Jack-o-lantern.

DIED

MRS. SARAH LAWTON DAVIS

Mrs. Sarah Lawton Davis, widow of the late Charles S. Davis, Wilson st., Oakland, died suddenly at her home on Sunday evening about 7 o'clock.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, Rev. B. T. Trevey, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. B. Workman, of Mannington, W. Va., and Rev. Bernard Gibbs, of Terra Alta, W. Va., both former pastors of St. Paul's M. E. church. Interment was made in the family plot in Oakland cemetery.

In reviewing the life of Mrs. Davis, Rev. Trevey said:

Sarah Lawton Davis was born at Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa., March 28, 1860, and died April 27, 1930, aged 70 years and 30 days.

She came to Oakland with her parents in the year 1867, and from that time spent her life here. She married Charles Spriggs Davis December 28 1882. Mr. Davis, an influential and leading man in the church and community, was called to his reward December 23, 1925. To this happy union four children were born—three girls and one boy. Ruth Eleanor died on March 12 at the early age of eight years. The living children are Mrs. C. H. Echard, of Akron, Ohio; Wilbur L. Davis, Oakland, and Mrs. I. C. Howard, of Marion, Ohio.

Three sister, Mrs. D. L. Trenton, Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. Winfield Shaffer, Glenmore, Pa., and Miss Julia Lawton, of Oakland, and one brother, Mr. A. L. Lawton, also of Oakland, survive. The grandchildren are Anna Mae Jenks, Cuyhago Falls, O.; Eleanor Beige, Akron, O., and Richard, Charles and Virginia Davis, of Oakland. She also has two great-grandchildren, Robert Ennis Beige and Norman Richard Jenks.

Mrs. Davis has mothered and brought up Mrs. Paul J. Ott, a niece whose mother died when she was but sixteen months old, and three grandchildren, Richard, Charles and Virginia Davis since their mother's death eleven years ago.

Mrs. Davis was converted and became a member of St. Paul's M. E. church in early childhood. It has been said by many that St. Paul's church never had a more faithful and loyal member. She was probably one of the organizers of the Ladies' Aid Society and served the organization as president, as secretary and as treasurer. She was also an active member of the Women's Home Missionary Society. Truly she loved her church and loved to be in its service.

Mother Davis—"Mother" is your name. Mother of your own children, your own flesh and blood; mother of your nicce from the time she was a helpless babe of sixteen months; mother of these three grandchildren from the time they were motherless eleven years ago. Active mother until your last day on earth. Plain, honest, true, wise, good and deeply religious, you are gone, but your motherly influence remains to comfort and to bless us.

Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past,
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last.

MT. LAKE PARK

While there are a few properties belonging to summer residents that still need a spring cleaning, yet as a general thing the Park presents a better appearance this year at this time than for several years past. The tennis courts are receiving attention under the direction of H. Weber & Sons, which ought to put them in prime condition for this summer. With the proposed painting of the club house, that portion of the Park will present an attractive appearance.

It is with much regret that friends learn that it was found necessary to remove Mr. S. C. Mosser to the Cumberland hospital for treatment and a possible operation. He has been quite ill for a number of days and he was removed to Cumberland Saturday with the hope that hospitilization would relieve his suffering.

A large force of men made quick work of laying a section of new steel on the B. & O. just above the old tower. The new brick tower just west of the station is nearing completion.

Mrs. T. A. Deveney, Miss Mary Deveney and Messrs. John and June Devcney were visitors at the Park one day last week.

Rather extensivc repairs have been completed on the Maxwell property, just above the Tennis Club House, under the direction of Messrs. Echard and Miller.

Mr. Wiley W. Welling, Sr., who has been engaged in remodeling a residence near Grafton, having completed the work, arrived home Saturday.

The trimming of the barbery hedge around the property of Mrs. Isobel Hill has added much to the beauty of the property.

Mr. C. A. Oswell is in Washington for a few days on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Wildman and family spent the Easter holidays visiting friends and relative in Marion county, West Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Horner Davis were at the Park for a short time Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy motored to the Park, Sunday.

Mr. Okey Schooley, who has been quite ill at his home for several months, remains about the same.

To Avoid Disappointment.

Our allotment of 30 Eastman Cameras to be given to boys and girls arriving at the age of 12 years in 1930, was exhausted in 30 minutes after our store opened this morning.

Of course many were disappointed, so we have decided to give away two Eastman Stock Cameras—one to a boy and one to a girl—absolutely free during the week of May 2nd to May 10th. Each boy and girl of 12 years during the year 1930, who failed to receive an Anniversary Camera must come to our store, register and receive a ticket bearing a number. These will be drawn on May 10th, and the holder of the winning tickets—one boy and one girl—will each receive a camera and a roll of film. Both Cameras in colors.

BOYS CONDUCT COUNCIL MEETING LAST THURSDAY

High School Youths Learn Parliamentary Procedure in Boys' Week Celebration

SHOW UNUSUAL INTEREST

Conducting the business affairs of the city and lessons m parliamentary procedure were learned by a group of high school boys last Thursday evening at the City hall, Oakland, in accordance with the Boys' Week program which was sponsored by the Oakland Rotary club Boys' Work committee.

Decisions as to erection of buildings, street lights, and repairs of streets were made by the council as if its members were really conducting the governmental affairs of the town.

The meeting was called to order by Elvin Iman, president of the council. Mayor Thomas Gonder, Jr., made the complaint that more light was needed on Green and Fifth streets. Street committee instructed to attend to matter.

Grover Stemple applied for permit to cut down trees on Second street and erect a filling station between homes of H. L. Jones and Loar's. Council refused to grant it.

R. R. Gilbert wanted permission to lay a small gas line on Third street between Alder and Oak, and from Oak to Fourth. Council decided that town didn't have authority to grant such permission.

Donald Stemple gave report of the water system. Everything was satisfactory. Richard Davis, tax collector, gave amounts of money on hand and amounts due. Finances of the town were O. K.

Arthur Lawton, chief of police, reported no violations. James Nordeck, town magistrate, gave amounts of fines received. Cheston Browning, weighmaster, turned in amount of money received.

R. R. Gilbert wanted to know if a permission and license were needed for a street carnival or show on Second street. The council decided that license would be necessary and that a tax must be paid to the town.

Rev. J. B. Workman gave a talk to the members of the boy council on some of the essentials of town government. Meeting adjourned. Lewis Lawton acted as town clerk.

Members of the council were Bernard Gonder, Jr., Edward Hinebaugh, Elvin Iman, Robert Lohr, Joseph Sollars, Richard Stemple.

Unusual interest was shown by the boys, according to those present, and it was felt that the effort had been well worth while.

The rest of the week was celebrated by the boys of the community when they attended the Maryland Theatre Friday afternoon as guests of the Rotary club, and in spending Saturday out of doors as much as possible.

TO HOLD THREE CLINICS IN COUNTY DURING MONTH

Chest, Orthopedic, Pre-School Examinations Are Arranged

Three clinics, a chest clinic, orthopedic clinic, and a pre-school clinic, will be held during May, according to an announcement of Miss Ruth Martin, public health nurse.

Chest Clinic

A free chest clinic, sponsored by the Maryland Tuberculosis association, will be held at the office of the Public Health nurse, court house, Oakland, on Thursday, May 15, at 10 a. m. Any persons complaining of cough, expectoration of blood, tired feeling, loss of weight and appetite, indigestion or hoarseness, are invited to attend, and also persons who have been in contact with tuberculosis.

Orthopedic Clinic

On Saturday, May 17, at 10 a. m., the Maryland League for Crippled Children will hold a free clinic at the office of the public health nurse.

Any person who is crippled from infantil paralysis or any other cause is invited to attend. The cases which occurred in the summer of 1928 are especially urged to attend for a reexamination. All crippled school and pre-school children who have not been examined are also wanted at this clinic.

Pre-School Clinics

All parents are asked to take advantage of the opportunity to have their pre-school children examined. It has been found that no child who is not well can be properly instructed. Good health makes education easier for child and teacher, Miss Martin stated.

A report of the examination will be sent to the family physician. The schedule for clinics for northern Garrett county, which are free to all children who will enter school for the first time this fall, is as follows:

May 20, 10 a. m., Crellin; 2 p. m., Grantsville.

May 21, 10 a. m., Jennings; 2 p. m., Long Stretch.

May 23, 2 p. m., Oakland.

May 27, 10 a. m., Hoyes; 2 p. m., Accident.

May 28, 10 a. m., Friendsville; 2 p. m., Mt. Lake Park.

May 29, 10 a. m., Swanton.

The schedule for clinics for southern Garrett county will be announced later. The county board of education and the county and state departments of health are cooperating in making these clinics a success.

OVER 200 PERSONS ENTER YARD-GARDEN CONTEST

Entries Close on Saturday—Judges Being Selected Who Will Inspect Properties

Approximately 200 persons have entered the Oakland Yard and Garden contest for the purpose of beautifying Oakland and improving their property, Mrs. Albert L. Lee, chairman, has announced. The contest, entries for which close on Saturday, May 10, is being conducted under the auspices of the Oakland Civic club in cooperation with The Republican, and the number of interested parties far exceed all expectations, according to the chairman.

Judges in the contest are being selected and they will inspect properties of entrants before starting their improvements, once during the growing season, and once at the conclusion of the campaign.

Those who have already entered the contest realize that it is an opportunity to make Oakland a more enjoyable place in which to live and also a chance to add actual dollars to the value of their properties, and gives greater personal satisfaction that always comes from living in attractive surroundings. Others are urged to get their entry mailed before midnight of May 10, so that they may be included in the campaign.

There will be special prizes to children entering the contest, it has been announced.

The yard and garden contest will result in a general cleanup of home grounds, vacant lots, streets and alleys, eliminating fire hazards and eradicating breeding places of disease.

Bare and uninviting yards can be made attractive and livable just by setting out some trees, shrubs and flowers. Such an environment is beneficial to both grown-ups and youngsters and will greatly enhance the public health, it was stated.

MARYLAND'S BIRTH RATE SHOWS MARKED DECREASE

Lowest Since 1916 When State was Admitted to Registration

The birth rate for Maryland during the first quarter of the year is the lowest rate since the State was admitted to the United States birth registration area in 1916, according to the monthly report of the State Health. Department, announced Monday. At the same time the death rate for the State was the highest since 1920, with the exception of two years.

Despite the low birth rate of the State and the high mortality figures the infant mortality rate of 69 per 1,000 was the lowest ever recorded in Maryland.

During the first three months of the year, 7,813 births were recorded as compared with 7,857 for the same period in 1929. The death rate for the State was 14.2 per 1,000, based on an estimated population of 842,800 in Baltimore and 797,200 in the counties.

The six leading causes of death in the State during the first quarter were diseases of the heart, pneumonia, acute and chronic nephritis, cerebral hemorrhage, tuberculosis and cancer.

Clean Up! Paint Up!

TO GIVE AWAY ARTICLES AT DAIRY SIRE SPECIAL

Train Will Be on B. and O. Siding From 8 A. M. Until 12 O'clock Next Wednesday

Every farmer who attends the special dairy sire train, to be on the Baltimore and Ohio siding at the Oakland station from 8 a. m. until 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, May 14, will have a chance to obtain a 5-galion cream can, a fishmouth milk pail or a Horn milk strainer free of charge, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced. These articles are to be given away during the program arranged by Mr. Carter.

The train is being run under the auspices of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and in cooperation with the West Virginia University extension division. Oakland will be the only stop in Maryland.

Farmers who are interested in better pastures, growing legumes, and in improving dairying conditions, should attend the "Cream Can Special," and hear the educational program which has been arranged. J. A. Conover, dairy specialist of the University of Maryland, will be present and give a short talk. Farmers are requested to bring their soil improvement, pasture and hay problems to the Special and discuss them with Mr. Conover.

"More money from fewer cows" is the slogan of the special train, and the program will feature talks and exhibits pointing to the value of the motto.

It is a known fact that during 1929, 219,000 so-called dairy cows in West Virginia did not produce as much milk, cream and butter as 100,000 ordinarily good dairy cows will produce.

The special will carry and offer for sale at very reasonable prices several good high quality purebred dairy bulls of the Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein breeds. In addition to selling bulls, there will be offered at the train an educational program stressing better breeding, culling of unprofitable animals, and the raising of more legumes.

Barn At Grantsville Is Consumed By Fire

The large barn opposite the Dixie Tavern just outside of Grantsville belonging to Edward Stanton, burned Friday afternoon causing a loss and damage of hay, grain and farm implements amounting to about $3,000. The barn was packed to capacity with hay. Several small outbuildings were also destroyed.

The Frostburg Fire department was called and the Grantsville and Salisbury fire departments also aided in abating the flames and preventing them from burning the Stanton residence. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Blooming Rose Barn Burned Saturday Morning

Early on Saturday morning, the bank barn on the farm of Mr. Jefferson Burch, located at Keeler's Glade, on Blooming Rose, was burned with its contents, consisting of hay, straw and some grain, along with various farm implements. Mr. Burch places his net loss at $2,000, $1,000 in insurance being carried on the property.

Mr. Burch was not at home at the time of the fire, having come to Oakland Friday afternoon and in returning his car broke down at McHenry where he remained during the night and until repairs were made on it the next morning.

The advisability of using half-gallon cans next year was discussed and it was decided to have a maple sugar exhibit at the Garrett County Fair this fall.

The annual meeting of the association will be held in Oakland on November 20, John H. Carter, County Agent, announced.

Mr. Otho S. Fike Becomes Candidate for House of Delegates

Mr. Otho S. Fike, of Election District No. 15, who retired from the office of County Commissioner several years ago upon the expiration of his term, announces his candidacy in today's Republican for the nomination for the House of Delegates, which is done, Mr. Fike states, at the request of a number of his friends.

As a former Commissioner Mr. Fike made a good record according to those who are in a position to judge and as a member of the Lower House, should he be successful at the polls, there is reason to believe that he will make a like record for efficiency.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From the Observer, Baltimore.)

The week end finds the Ritchie fourth term crowd growing panicky over the prospect of a desperate primary election fight with Representative Stephen W. Gambrill as the opposing candidate for Governor.

The Ritchie panic is shown in the mad efforts to discourage Gambrill, to convince him that he is about to "wreck the party," that he would be committing suicide to run and all that sort of hokum which has time and again been used by the same greedy gang to intimidate.

For months and months it has been known that the one man greatly feared by the Ritchie gang was Gambrill. They have feared him because he is a strong campaigner and makes himself heard on the stump—is not a pussyfooter.

So long as McIntosh stayed in the race the Ritchie gang did little or nothing to get him out as they felt confident that he could not win. And even at that they got nervous over the Eastern Shore. But they were safe in letting McIntosh wear himself out in a pussyfooting campaign in which hetook the advice of aome of his supposed friends to keep his mouth shut.

Nobody who knows Gambrill can be deluded with the idea that he will keep his mouth shut—hence the near panic of the Ritchie gang at the prospect of Gambrill's announcement of his candidacy for the place now held by Ritchie.

It is safe to say that every hour from now until he makes his announcement of his candidacy Mr. Gambrill will be besieged by Ritchie's henchmen in every part of the State, and men who have gathered money under the Ritchic regime that they might not otherwise be able to gather, to scare Gambrill off. They want to scare him off because they have the fear that in the primary he will sweep Ritchie and his gang of beneficiaries off the political map.

Everywhe e one goes in the city there is the same talk about the situation. The talk is that Gambrill is sure to receive a big vote in Baltimore City and that it would not be surprising to see him get a majority of the legislative districts notwithstanding the efforts of the Ritchie machine.

The fact is that some of the Ritchie lieutenants are already showing signs of weakness and the near panic that has seized the chief Ritchie backers over the report of the Gambrill candidacy has extended to them. This feeling should grow rapidly after the Gambrill announcement is made. Many admit that the Ritchie house in this city is built largely of straw and not a great deal will be required to demolish it. Democrat after Democrat expresses himself as tired of voting for him and the need of a new leader is more and more manifest every day.

Apparently it was not until Thursday that it seeped into the Ritchie head that there was real danger of the Gambrill candidacy. Up to that time Ritchie seems to have been surrounded by an atmosphere of security that did not fit in with the facts. And the old Wet Blanket, running true to its latter day, post-Abell form, has been helping to give him comfort. Even as late as Friday morning the old Blanket was dishing out such stuff as:

"Leaders are cold to Gambrill boom."

"It is reported in Democratic circles yesterday that Representative Stephen W. Gambrill had met with little success in obtaining backing for his proposed candidacy for the Gubernatorial nomination.

"He called at the office of John M. Dennis . . . and was informed that Mr. Dennis had climbed aboard the Ritchie bandwagon.

"Leaders also believe that organized opposition to the Governor is rapidly vanishing with Howard Bruce on the verge of making a public statement in favor of the Governor's renomination.

"Howard W. Jackson assumes a disinterested attitude."

Nearly all of which statements are simply lies, plain lies concoted for the purpose of misleading tne readers of the old Wet Blankct which since the Abelis were divested of control can be made the tool of the ravenous gang that has the State of Maryland by the throat.

Primary Campaign
Should Be a Hummer

With Representative Gambrill doing battle for the Gubernatorial nomination the campaign should be a hummer. From end to end of the State the Ritchie administration is under fire and the Ritchie campaign must be a campaign of apology and defense. If Ritchie disclaims responsibility for what went wrong in one department of the State Government under his administration he will be debarred from claiming credit for what went right in another. He cannot fairly sing two different tunes. And Mr. Gambrill has never been close enough to the Ritchie administration to be blamed for any of the things that went wrong. He had no part in the Ritchie log rolling road bill and other purely political place grabbing measures of the last Legislature, nor had he ever been one of those favorites frequently fed at the table of the Executive Mansion. The Governor has seemingly never cared for him—except when Ritchie wanted help in an election.

Republicans Continue to Wait and Wait

Backers of Mayor Broening appear much disappointed over his refusal to announce himself a candidate for Governor. The Mayor is not given to rushing in. He did not rush into the nomination for Mayor three years ago. On the contrary, he looked it over for a long time. He wants to be sure he has the approval of the political powers that be. It is not like him to run amuck in his party. He is not that sort of a Republican.

The belief grows that Senator Goldsborough will not warm up to him. The latter is said to feel that the Mayor is not so strong as he was three years ago and that a better vote getter can be had.

And then many Republicans say there is no use of putting up a wet to oppose a wet Democrat, it being conceded that the Democratic nominee will be more or less soaked. It is argued that a dry candidate will bring to the polls many thousands of persons who have been remaining at home since 1920.

Ex-Senator Robb of Allegany, was in the city again this week but revealed nothing of his plans. He hinted that there might be a primary fight—a hint we understand based on the possibility of the Broening candidacy. Yet few Republicans expect a primary fight in the party. They will be content to watch the Democrats.

The State leaders continue to counsel delay in selecting a candidate. National Committeeman Wm. P. Jackson sticks to Senator Goldsborough, and Chairman Tait is never far away. Friends of the Mayor seem to think that Mr. Jackson owes Broening a great deal for help given in the election of a State Central Committee in 1928, but that is a matter of the past. Senator Goldsborough has a voice in the distribution of Federal offices and the Mayor has none. That makes a big difference.

Political Pot
Begins to Steam

Early in the week, somehow, the local reporters began to scent something in the wind Indicating that their prophecies of Ritchie getting the nomination for a fourth term without a contest were all wrong. Ever since the withdrawal of Senator McIntosh the idea that there would be no other candidate to contest with Ritchie had been sedulously cultivated and some reporters swallowed this stuff with such eagerness that they failed to look in other directions.

It is not strange that the younger reporters have become affected by the Ritchie propaganda machine which has been built up through ten years of effort and which labors ceaselessly. The idea put forth was that everybody was afraid of Ritchie, that this prospective candidate was hog-tied this way and the other one was hobbled that way until Ritchie had become supreme in his field like a king or an emperor.

Nearly all of the reporters who knew Ritchie before he became Governor have passed out of the picture. Some are dead, some are in other occupations, and some have been shunted into newspaper jobs where they can do no appreciable harm to the would-be fourth termer.

Still, it seems strange that it took so many days for the seeping through of the fact that a new slate was being fixed up despite the efforts of the Governor and his henchmen to stop it. So different from years ago when such a movement would have been mentioned in the newspapers within twenty-four hours. But in the old days we did not have the comic strips to amuse us and we needed more about the doings of the statesmen from day to day.

A Mountain-Top Experience

By Miss Ruth McCray

Note: Miss McCray, the author of this article, is a senior in the high school at Weston, West Virginia, and teacher of the Intermediate girls of the West United Brethren church and president of the Otterbein Guild chapter of that church. Miss McCray attended the School of Missions at Camp Gleam as a representative of the Otterbein Guild girls. We are glad to pass on to Watchword readers the account of her experience at that camp.—Editor.

A mountain top is an ideal place for a soul-thriiling experience. Some of the most wonderful events of history occurred on an elevated peak where man seems nearer the Omnipotent. One of the greatest sermons ever uttered was preached by Jesus on the mount; Christ was transfigured on the mountain top; Moses received the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai; and it was on Mount Olivet, about ten days before the Christian church came into being that Jesus gave to his disciples that command which has reverberated down through the ages and finally is ringing in our ears today, "Go ye—tarry ye." This, in itself, sounds contradictory, but as we interpret it in Christian service it is not. It means that we who can go are to go to the mission field, and that those who cannot go are to stay at home and support those who have gone by being a missionary in their home, in the church and community, and by praying and paying for their success.

To the girls of the West Virginia Branch who made it possible for me to have a mountain-top experience, I heartily say "I thank you." I wish that many girls might have the opportunity of attending The Mountain Lake Summer School of Missions.

Now I am going to tell you about Camp Gleam, for that is where the girls stayed. It is a large, three-story, twenty-two room house, conveniently furnished, and under the direction of Miss Hicks. The meals were delicious—fried chicken and huge dishes of ice cream were the Sunday surprise.

The camp leader is Miss Mary A. Collins, of Muncie, Indiana. Miss Collins was a mother to us and, at night, just as we were going to bed she came around to see if we wanted anything, or if we were sick; sometimes she brought a medicine glass with her. Miss Collins was delightfully companionable. Each morning before breakfast and the last thing before going to our rooms at night we gathered in the big parlor and listened to her as she read a passage from the Holy Scriptures and explained to us what things should enter into our lives. She talked so directly and so quietly that she won for herself and for God a place in our hearts. She loved each girl almost as if she had been her own daughter.

I would not forget to tell you of Miss Gilbert, our general secretary of Otterbein Guild. She spent part of her vacation in camp with us. To know Miss Gilbert is to love her. She is a young woman, pure, sweet, and, oh, so very sincere. She has a quiet little smile and she is so friendly, companionable, and a good sport. Her presence was always demanded and our attention was hers. We loved her. We trusted her because we could tell by gazing into her eyes that her soul and body had been both surrendered unconditionally into the hands of her Master.

To tell you of all the good things there were to enjoy at Mountain Lake Park Summer School of Missions would be impossible, at least on paper. There were many interesting and impressive pageants given. We practiced for these between eight and eight-thirty every morning. At nine o'clock we went over to the tabernacle for Bible study, which was under the direction of Doctor Schermerhorn. Miss Lowery gave us a stirring address on the migrant situation in America. "Tiny babies," said she, "are given black coffee; whole families live and sleep in one little room. The young girls, as they grow up and are taught by the migrant workers, desire to live as we live. They want friends, clean amusements, and encouragement. They ask the teachers sometimes if we know Jesus. They can't understand why we act toward the foreigners and poverty-stricken as we do if we know Jesus as they know him." Yet, girls, we do know Him. He is our Christ as well as theirs. They know Him as the dear loving Saviour who "though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor"; they know Him as the Master who commanded His disciples to "Go into all the world and preach His gospel to every creature." Dear girls, they are conscious of the fact that we have been called, even though we do not want to heed the call. They are expecting something of us.

Miss Gilbert said in her address, "Even though Miss Metzger is in the Philippines we must hold the ropes. She is counting on us for help, prayer and for money to carry on her work."

There were many good sermons. One I remember especially, by Bishop Welch, in which he said, "Christ was not a soldier, a millionaire, an earthly king, an author, an organizer, or an advertiser, but he was the living Son of God come to save mankind. His method was diffusion by contact. His agents were truth and love."

Mrs. Bruere, an elderly missionary, talked to us about India. She has returned to the United States to plead with us to support a school for the boys. Unless they can have scientific study their fear of the old religion will not be destroyed and they will not accept the Christian doctrine of a God of love. Mrs. Johnson, chairman of the meeting, said she thought we were a set of "dirty lows" to allow her to offer her life service for India and then force her to come beck here and ask for money to carry on her work.

Another thing about which I must tell you is the vesper service on Table Rock. One evening, after an early summer supper, we drove out there just as the sun was setting. All was quiet and the mountain coolness pervaded the atmosphere. We were almost at the top of a high mountain and when we walked to the edge of the rock it seemed almost a precipice. After a very impressive service we closed it by turning our faces to the mountain ranges, topped with forests.

Now I want to tell you of the things which appeal strongly to the average, healthy girl who is a true sport. On the first night in camp we were usually free to do as we pleased. Sometimes we went swimming, boat-riding on the lake, or played tennis. At other times we went on hikes and had roasts. One day we dressed in gypsy costumes and set out in groups to find and follow the trail which led to the place where a large box of marshmallows awaited us beside a bed of glowing coals.

On another day, immediately after classe at noon, we went out to Swallow Falls on a hay-ride. When we got there we found a roaring fire, lots of weiners, long forks, and quantities of everything possible to get in a picnic dinner.

I have not mentioned our classes. Since it was a school of missions, of course, we had classes. The text books were "Blind Spots", and "All in a Day's Work." These were both taught by missionaries. The latter explains the many and varied tasks of a missionary. Teaching and preaching isn't all there is to do. The people must be taught the meaning of health, how to live and prosper. But "Blind Spots"—I wonder what Blind Spots are? Have you any? We'll see. Do you say "Japs," "Chinks," "Niggers," etc.? Do act as courtesly toward the Negroes as you do toward the people of your own race? Would you shake hands with them, sit by them, or have them in your home? If not, why? Is it because they were once subject to slavery? Well, so were your ancestors, my friends. There isn't a race under the sun today but what has at some time or other been subject to servitude. Please do not bring up that "Would you want your daughter to marry—" question. Of course, you would not want your daughter to marry a Negro, but the plain fact of the matter is there are several white men you wouldn't want her to marry. I heartily recommend to you "Blind Spots" as a good text book for mission-study classes and one especially good as the home-mission book in your required reading.

I have tricd to tell you the best parts of my "Mountain Top Experience." The fellowship with the girls was splendid. The spirit of good fellowship was wonderful. It was only in the last few days that we really came to know each other and, on the morning when we parted, it was with the hope that we would all be reunited at Camp Gleam next year.

As we were about to leave one of the most popular girls there remarked, "Oh Miss Collins, it is so easy to be good up here on the mountain where everybody is good, everything is clean, and the environment is perfect; but when we go down in the valley again we can't do it."

Right here and now I want to take exception to that attitude, because it can be done. At least, it is easier to do for having had such a wonderful experience. I received a vision at Camp Gleam which I shall never forget. I think it will forever spur me onward. It was a vision of lost humanity! I saw its needs. I saw people dying in their sins. I realized it was not a question of whether they could be saved if they knew not of our God, but a question of whether I could be saved if I did not take the gospel message to them. I heard the voice of the Master say, "Go ye therefore into all the world and preach my gospel to every creature." I heard the words of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane when he said, "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

I am resolved to answer that call for the challenge holds good today.

In Illinois federal authorities are attempting to confiscate two farms on which stills have been seized, under that portion of the act which provides for the seizure of all property used in connection with the operation of a still.

Mr. Geo. Williams was a victim of constipation

Mr. Geo. Williams

"For four years I suffered from a sour stomach and constipation," said Mr. George A. Williams, 26 Orchard St., Cumberland, Md. to one of the Dreco Experts. My tongue was coated and I always felt tired out.

"My only relief came when I tried the Dreco treatment. Since I've taken the treatment I have almost forgotten what it is to feel badly.

"Dreco Ill-speed tablets regulated my bowels and did away with that tired worn out feeling."

MOTHER

"Backward, turn backward,
Oh time, in your flight,
Make me a child again,
Just for tonight."

Many times we have wished we could shut out the cares of the world and like tired children when the day is done lay our tired head in Mother's loving arms and pour forth as in babyhood our perplexities of the day, then kneel by her side, feel her hand on our head as we pray: "Now I lay me down to sleep."

"Mother," that dearest of all names to our lips—a name all have the right to utter, as we have all had mothers, and we love her best of all. Why not? Her love was ours before we were born. She planned, sacrificed and suffered as we who have become mothers only can realize.

We love our babies. We never grow weary of caring for them and as we work we dream of their future and plan and save, giving up our social pleasures—sacrificing everything so that our children will be well cared for and happy.

We watch and fear as the little toddling feet go so uncertainly about and they stumble and fall. Then as they come to young manhood and young womanhood we fear the more for their safety, for there are so many snares for the youth of today.

They don't realize that mother knows best. So we pray and plead and do all the more to protect and shield them from harm.

Pity, oh, pity that mother who fails and broken-hearted goes to her grave, but blessing and comfort to the mother who wins and who in her declinging years can look with pride and joy on her children who have proven true and loyal to "Mother."

A MOTHER.

An Interesting Fact.

The Baltimore Bank Riot

Unrestrained and ill-advised expansion, whether individual or state, is usually followed by disaster. Here is an instance in Maryland:

Following the disastrous failure of the Bank of Maryland in 1835, attended by what is known as "the Baltimore bank riot," beginning on August 6, 1835, there seems to have been an orgy of extravagance in State-sanctioned and State-aided enterprises.

To illustrate: The General Assembly in 1835 passed a measure which became known as the "eight million bill," which authorized subscriptions to the capital stock of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company of $3,000,000; Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, $3,000,000; Eastern Shore Railroad Company, $1,000,000; the Maryland Canal Company, $500,000 and so on, forgetting, apparently, that money would have to be forthcoming to meet the interest charges on this huge debt to say nothing of the principal.

In 1837 there was a widespread suspension among the banks of the United States, engendering suspicion and distrust, to allay which and to aid in this difficult time, the Maryland Ascembly passed a law to the effect that all creditors should be paid in gold or silver or its equivalent, with respect to internal improvements. About this time the State became embarrased, and, therefore, compelled to forego interest payments, and this, coupled with the great loss upon the merchants of Baltimore by reason of the failure of the United States Bank in Philadelphia in 1837, caused a great many citizens to be in favor of repudiation of the State debts rather than the passage of legislation imposing extraordinary taxes on the people. But owing to the firm stand of Governor William Grayson (1839-1841) that the debt had been "contracted and confirmed by successive legislation" and that "it is impossible to question the validity of the debt," and by Governor Pratt (1845-1848) interest payments were resumed.

And although prior to 1841 the highest amount collected by direct taxation in Maryland for any one year was $60,818, yet, under the administration of Pratt and other Governors, sufficient taxes were collected, which together with the resumption of normal business conditions, saved the State from the odium of having repudiated a debt honestly contracted.

THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' QUESTION BOX

They're So Simple That Anybody Can Ask Them—
But— Can You Answer Them?

1. What causes rust, and how does rust affect life?

2. If oxygen and hydrogen combine to make fire, why will water, composed of those two elements, quench fire?

3. Why do we shiver when we are cold, and does shivering help make us warm?

1. The oxygen of the air acts upon iron, especially if water be present, forming what is known as oxide of Iron, which we call rust. This process is very vital to life and without this rust, or oxide of iron, we could not exist, nor would any green plant. It is iron that gives the earth its brown color and makes ruby the color it is. It is this rust, dissolved in the water, that forms food for plants and gives them the color of green. By this rust we get iron in our blood which gives us our red color.

2. In the first place, the oxygen and hydrogen of water are already burned up with each other and consequently can be burned no more. But there are two good reasons why water puts out fire. First, when anything is covered with water the oxygen of the air cannot get at it to burn it. Second, and most important, water has a great capacity for absorbing heat and it takes so much heat into itself so quickly that when put on a fire it so lowers the hotness of temperature of the coal or wood that is burning so much that it can not longer burn.

3. Well, shivering, in a sense, serves the purposes of the body just as hunger does. When we are hungry, our brain causes a feeling of "goneness" in our bread basket. So, when we are cold, the brain telegraphs that fact to the small muscles and nerves which sets them to work. Shivering consists of small, quick, to and fro movements of most or all the muscles of the body. Now, whenever the muscles work heat is produced, and, in fact, a great deal of the heat of the body is produced by muscles. So, while so shivering, often makes us aware that we are cold, it really helps to keep us warm, for all these little muscular movements produce heat.

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Children's Praise Song.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Christ Our King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Christ Our King.

I. The Preparation (vv. 1-6).

1. The sending of the disciples for the ass (vv. 1-3).

Christ told them just where to go to find it and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly Jesus knows our ways. The providing of the animal was not man's plan, but according to Christ's foreknowledge.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (vv. 4, 5).

Some five hundred years before this, Zechariah had made this prediction (Zech. 9:9). Christ's coming in this way was in exact fulfillment of Zechariah's prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand as yet unfulfilled prophecy. If the predictions of His first coming were thus literally fulfilled, there is no alternative but to believe that those of His second coming will likewise be literally fulfilled.

3. The obedience of the disciples (v. 6).

The request may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they obeyed.

II. The Entrance of the King (vv. 7-11).

1. The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord thereon (v. 7).

This act showed that they recognized Him as their King (II Kings 9:13).

2. The multitude (vv. 8, 9).

Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare, cut down branches and did the same with them.

3. The city awakened (vv. 10, 11).

It was a stirring time, but a more stirring time is to come. This will be when the Lord comes in power and glory.

III. The King Rejected (vv. 12-16).

The immediate occasion of this rejection was the cleansing of the temple. To sell oxen and sheep and doves was legitimate, as well as to exchange money in doing it, but doing it for gain was wrong. As soon as the spirit of avarice enters, the house of prayer becomes a den of thieves.

IV. The Nation Rejected by the King (vv. 17-46).

Having shown their unwillingness to receive Christ as King when officially presented to them, Christ now turns from them and makes known their awful condition in the following parables:

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 17-22).

It was on the morrow after his official presentation as He was returning from Jerusalem that Jesus observed the unfruitful fig tree. The barren fig tree is a type of Israel. With its leaves, it gave a show of life, but being destitute of fruit, it had no right to cumber the ground.

2. The parable of the two sons (vv. 28-32).

Both sons were told by the father to work in the vineyard. The one refused outright to obey, but afterwards repented and went. The other pretended a willingness to obey, but in reality did not. The first one represents the publicans and harlots. The second the proud and self-righteous Pharisees—priests and elders.

3. The parable of the householder (vv. 30-40).

(1) This was God Himself. (2) The vineyard. This means Israel (Isa. 5:1-7, Jer. 2:21, Ps. 80:9). The Lord went to particular pains to gather out this nation and make it separate, bestowing peculiar favors upon it. This vineyard so well kept and provided for, did not bear fruit. (3) The husbandmen. These were the spiritual guides—the rulers and teachers of Israel. (4) The servants were sent for the fruit of the vineyard. These were the various prophets whom God sent to the nation. They were beaten and killed. (5) The Lord Jesus Christ, God's only and beloved Son, came into their midst. They knew Him to be the Son, but did not show Him reverence. They not only rejected the kingdom, but the king who was the Son.

A Great Will

Look at a great life, and you will find a great will behind it. But it is not self-will; it is a will attuned to that of God. Therefore it goes forward on the road of victory.—Young People.

Believing in God

There is nothing, in fact, that you can undertake with so great hopefulness and assurance as a victory over yourselves if only you can believe in God.—Horace Bushnell.

CONTEST WILL ADD DOLLARS TO VALUE OF YOUR HOME

Before and After Planting

That even a fine new modern house falls short of being a real home until the grounds about it have been attractively planted is a fact forcibly presented by the Oakland Yard and Garden contest.

What a wonderful transformation can be made in the appearance of a residential property by setting out trees, shrubs and flowers is strikingly shown in the illustration. Looking at these two views, one can scarcely believe that they are photograph of the same place.

The trees not only provide pleasing shade but they also enframe the most attractive features of the home. The necessary privacy is also furnished by these trees as their foliage screens out to the required degree the view of the public and of the neighborhood.

Shrubs in the foundation planting join the house harmoniously to the grounds about it. The open expanse of lawn with a profusion of flowers massed about the borders completes the pleasing picture. What a contrast to its bare and uninviting appearance before planting. One easily realizes how greatly the value of this home has been increased through the inspiration of a yard and garden contest.

Ornamental Gardening Notes by W. R. Ballard, Extension Horticulturist

Feed The Lawn—Most lawn soils which are lacking in nitrogen and lawn grasses respond to applications of nitrogenous fertilizers. R. A. Oakley, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, recommends the annual application of two or three pounds of ammonium sulphate to 1000 square feet of lawn applied in a water solution or mixed with sand or loam and then well watered in after application in early spring. One or two pounds should be similarly applied in late spring and a similar quantity in early fall. "This treatment, if consistently followed, should benefit the lawn greatly," said Mr. Oakley.

Try This Poppy

A few gardners have had excellent results with the Hunnemannia fumariaefolia, variously called Giant Yellow Tulip Poppy, Santa Barbara Poppy, and Bush Eschscholtzia. It is one of the best poppies for cutting as it remains in good condition for several days. It is closely related to the California Poppy, and is a native of Mexico. While a perennial it is usually handled as an annual. Seeds sown early in May will produce blooming plants in July. The plants stand about two feet in height, are bushy in habit and have beautiful, feathery glucous foliage. Plants are covered with large yellow flowers until hard frosts.

A Good Summer Flowering Vine

If one is looking for a strong growing, hardy vine blooming in midsummer, he should not overlook the Silver Lace vine, Polygonum auberti. Notwithstanding its relation to the common smartweed, it is a highly ornamental and desirable plant. This vine eventually reaches a height of twenty-five or more feet and produces through the summer and fall great masses of foamy sprays of white flowers. It gives a wonderful mass of bloom over a comparatively long period. It is perfectly hardy and is adapted to a wide range of conditions.

HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN OF MARYLAND TO BUILD ON NEW SITE

Has Served 96,000 Patients In Half-Century, Of Which 12,000 Were From Counties—Only Hospital Of Its Kind In State.

The Hospital for the Women of Maryland has decided to build an entirely new hospital plant on a new site in the immediate neighborhood of Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore.

For this purpose a Semi-Centennial Appeal is to be conducted throughout Maryland for a minimum of $1,500,000, though the full needs of the Hospital require a sum nearer $2,500,000. The extra million dollars is needed as an endowment to enable the Hospital to continue and to increase its large amount of free and part-free work, which in recent years has exceeded 50 percent.

It is the only general hospital exclusively for women in the State, or south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Serves Entire State

The Hospital for Women of Maryland is truly a State institution. Of the 96,000 patients served by the Hospital, from twelve to fifteen thousand have come from Maryland communities outside of Baltimore.

The decision to move near Union Memorial Hospital is regarded by the leading physicians and surgeons of Baltimore as one of the most significant hospital developments for many years. Dr. J. M. T. Finney has pronounced it the biggest forward-looking constructive hospital project of the last several decades in the State.

The significance of the move lies in the possibility of cooperation between the Women's Hospital and the Union Memorial Hospital, which should yield invaluable benefits to patients, the State, internes and nurses and the two institutions themselves. Dr. Finney prophesied at a recent organization meeting that it was the first step toward the development of a great Medical Center in Baltimore.

Building a new Women's Hospital with the capacity for greater service and developing a new Medical Center in Baltimore is of direct interest to everyone in the State of Maryland, according to Dr. Edward H. Richardson, General Chairman of the Campaign.

Cared For 96,000 Women

"Throughout the half century of its existence," Dr. Richardson said, "the Women's Hospital has been giving invaluable service to the entire State of Maryland. It is the only general hospital for women in the State. More than 96,000 women have come under its healing care and from twelve to fifteen thousand of these were Maryland women outside of Baltimore.

"It has given highly specialized training to 74 internes and 49 resident physicians in the last half century, many of whom are practicing in Maryland communities today. It has graduated 184 nurses since the opening of the training school in 1914, and these nurses are scattered through the State. It has afforded opportunities for special work, which has aided materially in the advancement of medical science in its relation to women."

About 2500 volunteer workers are being organized for the campaign in Baltimore under Mrs. John W. Marshall, Honorary Chairman; Dr. Richardson, General Chairman; Mrs. Henry Lay Duer, Chairman of the Women's Committee; Clarence K. Bowie, Chairman of the Special Gifts Committee; Dr. Walter A. Baetjer, Dr. Dewitt B. Casler and Mr. John W. Marshall.

State Organization Also

A State organization will be also be developed, with Campaign Committees covering various sections. The campaign is scheduled to be held from May 16th to 26th.

The Honorary Directors of the Hospital from the counties are as follows:

Mrs. Robert Moss, Annapolis Anne Arundel County; Mrs. Roberdeau Annan, Cumberland, Allegany County; Mrs. W. Kennedy Cromwell, Lake Roland, Baltimore County; Mrs. John P. Briscoe, Prince Frederick, Calvert County; Mrs. George Beaseman, Sykesville, Carroll County; Mrs. Adrian Posey, La Plata, Charles County; Mrs. C. E. Edelin, Bryantown, Charles County; Mrs. E. Buchanan Smith, Frederick, Frederick County; Mrs. D. E. Offutt, Oakland, Garrett County; Mrs. Stevenson A. Williams, Belair, Harford County; Mrs. Edwin W. Webster, Belair, Harford County; Mrs. Murray Vandiver, Havre de Grace, Harford County; Mrs. Howard Bruce, Elkridge, Howard County; Mrs. Hal B. C. Claggett, Western, Upper Marlboro, Prince George's County; Mrs. Elwin Brown, Centerville, Queen Anne's County; Mrs. A. Dana Hodgdon, Leonardtown, St. Mary's County; Mrs. Teakle Jacob Smith, Princess Anne, Somerset County; Mrs. Charles Tilghman, Easton, Talbot County; Mrs. E. E. Jackson, Salisbury, Wicomico County; Mrs. William F. Johnson, Snow Hill, Worcester County.

The Hospital Committee has spent about eighteen months in studying the most modern hospital construction, especially the arrangement of departments. This committee consists of:

Mr. A. E. Duncan, Mrs. John W. Marshall, Dr. DeWitt B. Casler, Dr. Walter A. Baetjer, Dr. R. H. Follis, Mrs. J. Marshall H. Bruce, Mrs. J. Crosan Cooper, Mrs. A. E. Duncan, Mrs. Henry L. Duer, Miss Amelia deFau Fowler, Mrs. E. Everett Gibbs, Dr. Edward H. Richardson (Chairman).

Every facility necessary for the efficient operation of the medical, surgical and obstetrical departments will be provided, according to Dr. Richardson. Every unit of each department will be arranged for the utmost convenience to patients and for the greatest economy of operation. In fact, the committee hopes that the new plant will mark a new era in hospital construction. Of course, it will be absolutely fireproof.

According to present plans the new hospital will include six stories and a basement. It will be stately in appearance, built of ornamental brick in the style of the Italian Renaissance, but not a dollar will be needlessly spent, according to Dr. Richardson. Three wings will surround an open court, the two side wings being joined by a two-story entrance.

Capacity 50 Per Cent. Greater

The capacity of the hospital will be increased about fifty percent., as the present plant has been inadequate for several years. But the Board is anxious to retain the home-like atmosphere which has been one of the chief characteristics of the hospital from the beginning. There also will be several new departments in the new hospital and the old departments will be enlarged.

These new departments will enable the hospital to organize a complete resident medical staff, parallel to the present surgical staff.

The general and administrative departments will all be on the first floor, together with the nurses' cafeteria, the dining rooms for doctors and hospital officials, and living quarters for internes and white hospital employees.

The maternity department will occupy the second floor. In addition to the birth-room units it will contain two general nurseries, a constant temperature nursery, an isolation nursery, a sun parlor and all the regular utility rooms.

The third floor will be entirely for free and part-free patients, with two large ward units, several smaller wards and many private rooms, with two sun porches.

The fourth and fifth floors will be for private patients.

The sixth floor will contain two large operating rooms and a smaller operating room, a surgical supply department and the Special Treatment Department, which includes three laboratories and the Alpine Lamp, Cystoscopic, Electro-Cardiograph, Fluoroscopic and Radiographic rooms.

The basement will contain a complete dispensary unit with an operating room, apothecary room, drug stores room and vault, waiting room, sterilizing room, supply room, recovery room, history room and six examing rooms. It also includes a kitchen department with butcher shop, refrigerating rooms, bakery, special diet kitchen and dining rooms for employees, storage rooms, locker rooms, special offices.

Many Memorial Opportunities

An exceptionally large number of memorials will, it is expected, be established in the new hospital, according to Clarence K. Bowie, Chairman of the Special Gifts Committee. These memorials will range in price from $1,800 and lower for individual rooms to $160,000 for entire floors. In fact, it is hoped that the money raised for at least one memorial will be sufficient to build an entire wing of the hospital.

Among the many departments and special units are the operating department, which can be established as a memorial for $70,000; the special treatment department, which can be established for $35,000; the dispensary memorial—which is practically a complete emergency hospital in itself—and the twenty-four-bed ward, which can be established for $25,000 each; and the babies' memorial, including two general nurseries and two special nurseries, which can be established for $15,000.

There are also a large number of bedrooms, dict kitchen, sun porches, laboratories and special units of the different departments which may be established as memorials for sums ranging from $6,000 to $1,800 and lower.

MT. LAKE PARK

Word has been received by Mrs. M. C. Clayton of the death of her aunt, Miss Ellen D. Harn, at her home in Kenesaw, Nebraska, at the age of 101 years. The death of Miss Harn makes another break in the trio of devoted sisters whose ages have figured about the century mark for the past several years. Mrs. Corilla Shearer, a sister, died about a year ago at the age of 99, and Mrs. M. J. Grove, now residing at Fairmont with her daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Manley, recently celebrated her 99th birthday anniversary.

Miss Harn passed her 101st birthday last January. On reaching the century mark, she was given a joyous celebration by her townsfolk and a few years previous to that she took her first airplane ride.

Miss Harn was a native of Frederick county, Maryland, and descended from a nearly historic family. Sh taught school for 35 years and u until a year or so before her death worked about her house and flower gardens.

Mr. Frank E. Baker, superintendent of the Park Association, is here for a business visit, having arrived Sunday night.

Mountain Lake Park never looked better at this season of the year than at the present time. Each week brings added beauty to the glade and as the foliage and grass takes on a deeper green, the improvements heretofore noted made last fall and this spring under the direction of Mr. Moomaw are more apparent.

Mrs. Sallie Burch, of Washington, accompanied by Master Billy Burch, arrived Monday and has opened her summer home. They have as their house guest Mr. Harry Wycoff, of Washington, D. C.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr, after being in California during the winter months, arrived at their home here by motor from Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Mrs. A. A. Richards, wh ospent the winter at Long Beach, Cal., and Tulsa, Oklahoma, arrived in the Park yesterday and is superintending the opening of her hospitable home here for the summer.

Dr. Richards, who spent the winter in Washington, has arrived at the Park, and will be joined by Mrs. Richards in a few days, she having stopped en route at Cumberland to visit her two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Camden are home after spending some time in Uniontown and Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Hood and children, of Clarksburg, West Va., are occupying the Horner Davis property for a few weeks.

Mr. Jack Grimes and family, of Morgantown, W. Va., spent the weekend at their cottage in the Park.

Mr. William Edgar has purchased the property lately owned and occupied by Wm. McRobie and family and which adjoins the Edgar property on the Oakland road.

Clean-up Day for the Park is May 15th. All that the community asks you to do is to gather the rubbish on your premises, place it at a convenient place where it can be easily loaded on a truck and it will be carted away free of cost.

SWANTON

The following pupils of Swanton school made perfect attendance for April: Billy Burk, Edgar Rhodes, Frank Murphy, Elmer Wilt, Harold Green, Billy Simons, James Weicht, Ellis Wilt, Lelah Rhodes, Freda Rhodes, Mary Sweitzer, Helen Murphy, Margaret Wilt, Olive Reckner, Nancy Sheckells, Pauline Wilt, Mary J. Custer.

Several state and county officials visited the Swanton school last week, including State Superintendent Albert S. Cook, and Assistant State Superintendent, Miss Simpson.

A social and entertainment will be given by the pupils of Swanton school on Saturday, May 31. All patrons are cordially invited.

Everett Bray and Thomas Rhodes were calling on S. B. Friend, Sunday.

Those who were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. J. G. Friend were, Mr. and Mrs. Heyward Custer and family, L. F. Friend and family, A. G. Friend and family and W. J. Friend.

Mr. Hale Wright and Miss Mae Sharpless, of this place, were united in marriage April 19.

Rev. Barnhouse is conducting a revival here in the U. B. church. Many interesting sermons have been delivered.

Mrs. A. G. Friend will open a lunch room to the public Saturday, May 3.

C. C. Mason's sawmill is in full operation now.

Mrs. Jerry Sweitzer was visiting her sister, Miss Mollie Friend, Sunday.

This is the season for Cleaning Up and Painting Up. And according to the Civic Club, it is the season for planting. Join the Yard and Garden contest.

Many Moons Ago

The following story might relate to most any of the Garrett county Moons. Scoop was moonstruck when he wrote it, but not full of moonshine. He'll tell the moon-eyed world he wasn't.

Once upon a time there was a Mr. Moon. He, of course, was the old Moon. His wife gave birth to a baby boy, who became the new Moon. The proud father secured a little corn whiskey and decided to celebrate, becoming the full Moon. While he was in a drunken stupor, his wife went through his trousers and took 25 cents, that being the last quarter. Later he got into trouble with his mother-in-law, and she crowned him with a rolling pin, which was a total eclipse. He was buried in the dark of the moon.

Pass the Apples

When every pool in Eden was a mirror,
That unto Eve her dainty charms proclaimed,
She went undraped, without a thought of fear,
That she would ever need to be ashamed.

'Twas only when she'd eaten of the apple
That she became inclined to be a prude,
And found she'd ever have to grapple
The all debated problem of the nude.

Reaction came about in fashions recent,
And girls conceal so little from the men,
It would seem in the name of all that's decent
Someone ought to pass the apples 'round again.

The forgoing was sent to Scoop by Jim Kerins after sitting on Sincell's bench for an afternoon, watching the spring parade go by.

INSPECTION OF YARDS IS BEGUN BY LOCAL JUDGES

250 Persons Are Entered In the Contest—Horticultural Specialist Will Be Here On May 27

Inspection of properties of all entrants in the Oakland Yard and Garden contest is now being made by jdges selected by the Oakland Civic club under whose auspices the contest is being conducted, and they will be busy for the next several days in viewing the lots as they appear before the beautification begins.

Early this morning it was announced that 250 were entered in the contest, a number far in excess of the highest expectations. These 250 entrants are now keeping their lawns carefully raked. Grass is clipped short and neat. Dead and injured branches are being removed from trees and shrubs. Lawns and plants are kept watered and provided with plant food.

Weeds and noxious grasses are being removed from lawn areas and flower beds and borders are being kept neatly edged.

Judges Instructed

Judges have been instructed to take into consideration in looking over each yard the results accomplished to the means available. Where unfavorable conditions and exceptional handicaps have been overcome the entrant will be given a higher score than if circumstances were all favorable to the development of a beautiful place. Where naturally favorable conditions were not taken advantage of, the yard will of course be scored against. The basic scale is the degree of beautification of the home grounds through planting.

Horticulturist to be Here

Mr. W. R. Ballard, extension horticulturist of the University of Maryland, will be in Oakland on May 27, and will give suggestions and inspect properties of all who notify Mrs. A. L. Lee, chairman, or Miss Lottie Loar, president of the Oakland Civic club.

A great Improvement in the beauty of Oakland can already be noted, Miss Loar stated. Participation in the yard and garden contest will make Oakland known far and wide as a beautiful city and the various families who have entered have already determined to let people know what a difference a few trees, shrubs and flowers make.

F. E. RATHBUN WILL AGAIN HEAD GARRETT'S SCHOOLS

Chosen Yesterday for 4-Year Term as Superintendent—Mr. Loraditch, President of Board

Yesterday morning, with the new member of the Board, Mr. Stuart F. Hamill, in attendance, the Garrett County Board of Education organized with the election of H. A. Loraditch president, and John W. McCullough, vice-president.

In the election of a County Superintendent the name of the present officer, Mr. F. E. Rathbun, was presented as the only applicant and he was chosen by the Board during his absence from the board meeting. His term of office, under the ruling and school law will begin on August 1, 1930, and expire on July 31, 1934.

Other matters considered by the board were of more or less importance to the various school communities.

Trustees in the rural sections were reappointed as recommended by the patrons of these schools, and in the larger school centers the same trustees serving last year were continued.

The purchase of additional land adjacent to the Grantsville school, was taken under advisement. The school building at Grantsville is to be enlarged within the next few months and in order that outdoor activities of the students may not be hampered it has become necessary that additional land be purchased.

Mr. Rathbun was first appointed to the Superintendency in May, 1912, for a term of two years. Later his term of office was extended to four years by legislative enactment, hence his appointment yesterday makes his seventh consecutive appointment to the office.

CHILD IS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR SUNDAY

Mae Orm Whipkey Suffering from Concussion of Brain

Mae Orm Whipkey, aged 7 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton D. Whipkey, of Oakland, is in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, suffering from a concussion as a result of being hit by a car Sunday evening at the Oakland Flying Field, just south of town, as she attempted to cross the road.

Cars were lined along the road for considerable distance, and the little girl suddenly darted out on the highway just as Joseph V. Gibson, Kingwood, W. Va., was passing in his automobile. She was knocked to roadbed, striking her head, and was unconscious for several hours.

She was brought to Oakland where medical aid was rendered, and was taken to Cumberland later that evening. She was able to recognize and talk to her mother on Monday morning, but her condition is still considered dangerous by physicians.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED IN ACT OF FIRING FOREST

"Sugar Bill" Wagner, Swanton, Fire Bug Suspect, Arrested as He was In Act of Firing Woods

Just as he was setting a fire calculated to burn over a considerable scope of country on the mountainside south of Swanton Monday afternoon, "Sugar Bill" Wagner, aged about 57 years, was placed under arrest by Constable Shartzer and brought to Oakland where he was lodged in jail and on Tuesday he was given a hearing before Justice Teats, who fined him $25 and eosts and sentenced him to serve six months in the Garrett County Jail.

The officer had been instructed to arrest Wagner upon information of a resident of Swanton district who had a warrant issued for his apprehension on a charge of firing the forest on a previous occasion about a week prior to Monday. Armed with the warrant Constable Shartzer was on his way to Wagner's shack on the side of the mountain to take him into custody when he surprised him busily engaged in setting another fire. This the officer put out and then placed the man under arrest.

Wagner, some years ago, set himself up as a sugar king by advertising granulated sugar at three cents per pound, cash to accompany the order. If the order was for a small quantity it was immediately shipped, but if for a quantity exceeding ten or fifteen pounds, the customer failed to receive the goods, the impression being that Wagner pocketed the money and then forgot all about the order, hence the name, "Sugar Bill."

Later Wagner was arrested after being indicted for issuing bad chesks and was sent to the Maryland Penitentiary where he served a term of two years. His method of operation was to deposit a small sum in some bank located at a distant point, secure a check book and write checks until his supply was exhausted. It is said that he deposited a sum of less than $10 in a Garrett county bank and drew checks in excess of a thousand dollars.

The train was composed of four cars of purebred bulls, an exhibit car containing models of barns, milkhouses and literature on feeding, etc., and a lecture car. O. K. POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore

The Democrats who are weary of the present State administration and seek to bring about a change through a fight in the primary have been kept suspended between heaven and earth, as it were, all week by Representative Stephen W. Gambrill.

A little more than a week ago it seemed that Mr. Gambrill was all set to announce himself and then he suddenly cooled off. There was no clear explanation of it but it is supposed that Mr. Gambrill's hesitation was brought about by the importunities of the Governor's office holders and other beneficiaries who want to be let alone at the public crib.

It is no secret that the Ritchie people have taken advantage of the Gambrill hesitancy by bombarding him with communications containing free advice. This advice, of course, has been that he should not disturb a "happy situation" in the Democratic party by precipitating a contest for the Gubernatorial nomination.

Mr. Gambrill came to Baltimore on Wednesday and spent the day looking over accumulated mail and calling on acquaintances to talk the situation over. He has not been at all disposed to go into a contest blindly even tho he would very much like to be Governor and does not hesitate to say so.

Meanwhile the fourth term supporters have been shouting that they had Gambrill stopped, that he would not go in and antagonize the Governor but would run again for Congress. Commenting privately on these reports, Mr. Gambrill has given assurance that he has said nothing on which they could justly be based.

Of course Mr. Gambrill is experienced in politics and wants to see where his support is to come from. He has, it appears, a pretty good line on the city but wants to know more about the counties and especially the Eastern Shore where some of the party leaders do not seem to know whether they are going or coming. Governor Ritchie has been over on the Shore this week in an effort to revive his failing fortunes but the predictions as to what will be the result if he is nominated continues very gloomy.

If Mr. Gambrill decides to run—and he is expected to reach a decision within a few days at most—State Senator Edward J. Coglan, Jr., is expected to file as a candidate for H. Robinson. It is well known that Ritchies does not care to have Robinson on the ticket again and therefore his friends would not come near breaking their necks to nominate him. Mr. Coglan, while residing in Baltimore, originally came from Harford county, the home of Attorney General Robinson. Many of Mr. Coglan's friends express the view that he could beat Mr. Robinson in a primary, as the latter is handicapped instead of helped by his long association with the Ritchie administration.

While some of the Governor's supporters are loudly declaring that it is too late to start a primary fight, many of the opposition hold a different view. They point out that most campaigns have started later than this and that a well organized fight with a lively candidate might dispose of the Ritchie administration in a contest of two months which means a start right after the Fourth of July. For even if Mr. Gambrill decides to enter the real fighting would not begin before that date.

Curran vs. Ennis?
Is It Real?

Local Democrats are manifesting some curiosity over the situation in the Fifth Legislative District where Billy Curran is taking an active part in shaping a ticket while Robert B. Ennis, Election Supervisor, is said to be expressing dissatisfaction about it. Some there are who see a serious disagreement between Curran and Ennis, long closely associated in political enterprises, while some others think the apparent hostility between the two over the making of tickets is more pretended than real. These latter prophets predict that when the primaries are over the two former partners will be found working together as before the gloomy days of May, 1927, when the Mayoralty went wrong along with the Ennis predictions.

The fact is that in recent days Curran has been very active without any blowing of trumpets and his activity is devoted to the shaping of a local ticket for the city as well as the Legislature. In this task Curran has taken the lead and left Billy Norris, Gilbert A. Dailey, Ambrose Kennedy and a number of others well in the rear. While those mentioned have been busy admiring the Governor, Curran, who seems no longer to be enamored of His Excellency, has been making his political hay and the problem now is to find a means of overtaking him. Curran wants to have his friends in the Legislature no matter what may happen to the Governorship—if the Governor should be renominated. And we have no doubt at all that Curran well knows what may happen this year.

There is a curiosity as to what ex-Mayor Jackson is doing while Curran is at work on a local ticket. And there is still greater curiosity as to what sort of a ticket Curran proposes to prepare for the places in the Court House, one of which carries with it at least one hundred and fifty subordinate positions. Some of the clerks over there have been in office a long time—like the Governor—and this may be the year for an overturn all along the line, but nobody wants to be overturned with the Governor and it now seems to be the case of every man for himself.

Certainly almost everyone is now hearing the talk that the most important thing is to save the court house jobs and the Legislature, and on top of this to get the Mayoralty next May .Many are not so concerned over Ritchie, should he get the nomination. Some say he can look out for himself. And further, a Republican Governor with a Democratic Legislature might not be so bad—or even if not so good, certainly bearable for four years. In 1911 the head of the State ticket went down while the others got through, and this can happen again through the disorganized condition of the Democratic party in the city.

Some Cast Eye
On Linthicum Seat

J. Charles Linthicum has been in Congress so long that some are casting eyes at his seat. This very week we have heard of two possible candidates—looking around to see what support they can get. An idea seems to prevail that this year will be the time for a great many changes and that the fellows who have been in for a long time are liable to be shaken up—or out.

Some say that Ambrose Kennedy, State Parole Commissioner, would like to succeed Linthicum, while Sidney E. Traub has been casting an eye at the place. But much depends on the turn to be taken by the Gubernatorial fight. That contest may mix things up a great deal. It may make some while it unmakes others.

But the Second District takes the cake. State Senator Chambers hesitates to go in. He is so close to the Governor that he may be taking advice from that quarter. Probably the Governor thinks too many of his friends are already in the field.

Luncheon Club Women
Entertained by Linthicum

Members of the Democratic Women's Luncheon Club went to Washington the other day to hold their meeting and make quite a round of visits, winding up with a luncheon given by Representative Linthicum at the Capitol building.

The national headquarters of the party were visited and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, of Wyoming, former Governor of that State, gave them a talk and there was also a sort of explanation of Democratic weaknesses by Director Michelson of the National Committee's publicity bureau, while Vice Chairman Jouett Shouse also extended a welcome.

GRANTSVILLE

Mrs. Richard Younkin was hostess to the Women's Community Club on Wednesday afternoon. Thirteen members answered the roll call, "Their Favorite Dress Material." After the regular business meeting, which was conducted by Miss Winterburg, demonstrations on making icings for cakes were given by Mrs. Marshall Beachy and Miss Elsie Benthien. Cards were given those who expect to attend the Rural Woman's Short Course to be given at the University of Maryland June 16 to 21. Twenty-five club members from the county are expected to attend.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland. Md.

Arrangements have been made whereby Maryland wool growers may participate in the benefits of the new National Wool Marketing Corporation which has just been set up by the Federal Farm Board. Membership in this National Organization is limited to Cooperative Associations that meet the requirements of the Capper-Volstaed Cooperative Marketing Act, and Associations applying for membership must sign a definite agreement to handle at least 500,000 pounds of wool. As the State of Maryland only produces 300,000 pounds, and the same situation exists in a number of other states in this section, it was found necessary to form a regional Wool Association to be known as the United Wool Growers' Association, Inc., which will take care of the smaller producing States.

This Association is being incorporated under the cooperative laws of the State of Maryland, and by reason of such laws, Maryland will have two directors on the Board.

The Maryland Farm Bureau Wool Pool, as the cooperative agency in this State will be called, will be a member of the United Wool Growers' Association and will be the Maryland agency to assemble wool for the regional and national association. Definite membership contracts, approved by attorneys of the Federal Farm Board, will be presented to the growers and are open to all farmers, whether or not they are members of the Farm Bureau.

Charges for assembling, grading, storing and selling will be held down to the minimum and, it is stated, should not exceed four and a half cents a pound, not including freight.

Aside from the fact that the farmer will receive, through this State and national set-up, the best possible price for his wool, one of the greatest advantages of the present is that the national Corporation expects to have under its control one-third of the total clip of the country. By reason of this control it is expected that the National Corporation will have more of an influence on the market and should be able to secure a better price for the farmer.

The Federal Government will advance through its cooperative agency 90 per cent of the market value of the wool at the time of delivery at the warehouse. The grower will retain an equity in his wool until it is sold and the balance due will be paid as early as practicable after sales are completed.

Meetings will be held in the individual counties in the State to explain the workings of the Corporation. Those who have been active in arranging for Maryland farmers to participate in the new wool marketing movement anticipate that practically all of them will take advantage of the opportunity.

The Republican Commercial Printing Department is the best equipped printery you could care to inspect.

A Greater Poppy Sale

When the people of America go to the cemeteries on Memorial Day this year they will find more than 25,000 soliers' graves which were not there the year before. For the last year World War veterans have been dying at the average rate of 70 a day, a large part of them from the results of their war service. These men are just as truly victims of the war as those who were killed in battle and the poppies which we wear on Poppy Day will honor them as well as all the other Americans who sacrificed their lives for their country.

It is estimated that 75 per cent of the veterans who have died in the last year left families, averaging two children to the family. This means that nearly 40,000 dependent children have been added in the last year to the thousands whose welfare must be safeguarded by the Legion and Auxiliary. In addition to the children of the dead, there are the children of the disabled. An average of 5,900 veterans entered the government hospitals each month during 1929, very many of them leaving dependent families at home. These facts explain why the welfare work of the Legion and Auxiliary is increasing steadily and why we must sell more poppies this year.

As every Auxiliary member knows, the funds from the poppy sale are the principal means of support for our vast program of relief and rehabilitation work. Without the dimes, quarters and dollars which come to us through the poppy sale we would be forced to watch helplessly the distress of the disabled veterans, the struggles and privations of the families of the dead and disabled, and the sufferings of little children deprived of their father's support by the war. The poppy sale gives Auxiliary Units an opportunity to build up their relief funds against the demands of the year ahead. On the success of the sale depends much of the success of the Units' work in child welfare and rehabilitation.

The primary purpose of the poppy sale, of course, is to pay tribute to the World War dead. The wearing of the poppy is a beautiful custom. There is no finer way of showing that the people of America still remember and honor the service and sacrifices of the men who gave their lives for the country. We want every person possible to have this little red symbol of sacrifice on his coat on Poppy Day.

When we realize that the poppy sale is not only a means of paying honor to our war dead but also a means of helping the living victims of the war, the double incentive for giving our best to the effort comes home to us.

WHAT THE LEAGUE DOESN'T DO

An interesting sidelight on what the League of Nations is doing, and again is failing to accomplish, is contained in a recent editorial in the newspaper LaPrensa, published at Buenos Aires, in the Argentine. The South American newspaper declares that the League has been a failure so far as pursuing world policies is concerned, that it has been sidetracking major problems and contenting itself with minor affairs.

The newspaper declares that the League has been a failure in any efforts to bring the nations of the world closer together and that it has not only failed to help but has even aggravated difficulties between Europe and the countries of the Old World to such an extent that the nations of Latin America no longer send delegates regularly to the principal conferences held under the auspices of the League. When such delegates are sent, and the American viewpoint is presented, LaPrensa continues, the discussions are such that international relations are hurt rather than helped so far as an understanding between Europe and America is concerned.

It is declared that as a result, various nations are compelled to make agreements among themselves and there is no longer any hope of getting agreements as to tariff or disarmament through the League. That august body, if it desires to continue as a world institute, must find new means of increasing the international spirit of amity among the nations.

All of which is interesting in that it gives us the South American viewpoint, or at least one South American viewpoint. It is true, however, that the League very likely owes its continued existence to the fact that it has not attempted a settlement of the problems among nations. As a matter of fact the League is made up of so many different nations of various races, colors and viewpoints, to say nothing of national traditions and national ethics, that it would be impossible for it to accomplish anything effective in an international way and continue its existence. The very fact that it is a League of Nations makes it so cosmopolitan an affair that it cannot accomplish the things which its originator hoped it might accomplish.

So far as the United States is concerned we have no desire that the League or the League Court have anything to do with tariffs, especially our tariffs which we are capable of handling for ourselves. That is one big reason why we have been careful in making international agreements.

Roads and the Panama Canal

The Panama Canal cost $370,000,000, according to an article in the Weekly News Letter of the American Farm Bureau Federation. We have been spending, each year, half this amount for road building. Yet 95 per cent of American farmers still live on dirt roads and there are 2,484,822 miles of unimproved roads in the country.

This situation retards farm progress and is a menace to agricultural prosperity. According to new figures prepared from records in the state of New York, the farmer on a dirt road uses his truck 20 per cent, or 725 miles, less each year than the farmer who lives on a hard surfaced road, and his automobile 1,100 miles less.

Agriculture, though it carries a large share of the national tax bill, has not been accorded its share of good roads. Billions of dollars have been spent on trunk highways which go from city to city by the shortest possible route, leaving rural areas untouched. It has only recently been recognized, in progressive states, that for every mile of main highway, eight, ten or twelve miles of feeder or farm-to-market roads should be constructed at the same time.

Inexpensive, yet efficient, modern surfaces make it possible to construct year-round, long-wearing, waterproof rural highways at a low cost. As long as an overwhelming majority of American farmers live on roads which are impassable during many months of the year one outstanding agricultural problem will remain unsettled.

Scoop is Just an Ordinary American Boy with the Idea that the World is a Great Big Playground—And He Did Buy a Dog—But as for Love! Ain't It Grand?

To the Boss Editor of The Republican.

Your last issue indicated that Scoop had been all broken out with the rash, and although they had doped him with boneset and sassafras, it evidently went in on him and developed a bad case of poetry. Or was it a case of bad poetry ? Shades of Willie Shakespeare! Scoop a poet! Tell us, boss, IS Scoop in love? If he is so afflicted, then may we expect him to take his lyre (he being a newspaper man, should we change the spelling?) hie himself to the maiden's bower and in the outpouring of his poetic soul give to a long waiting world a new balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet. To show our appreciation of his immortal genius, why not place him on the county ticket as the sole candidate for the post of Poet Laureate of Garrett county? Of course, our Constitution does not provide for such an office, BUT, in the experience of the past ten or twelve years, what is the Constitution among friends?

There is a point, however, that must be first settled. Now, boss, answer truly: DID SCOOP BUY A DOG? And is it a hound dog? Did he imitate Amos? If not, then why does he scratch his head so much as though in deep thought?

Answer truly; let there be no evasion. Remember the guilty FLEA. The last one will make him scratch.

An Interesting Fact.

"The Original Disappearing Gun."

History records that political corruption is not confined to the present day. Our limited space precludes any lengthy discussion, hence we shall be content with but a single instance.

It was in November, 1844, that the beginnings of an "American Republican" or "Native American" political party was announced in a Baltimore newspaper, a convention of which organization or party was held in Baltimore on March 5, 1845. This afterwards became known as the Know Nothing party, which became in effect a secret society, with passwords, grips and degrees. When members of the party were asked concerning the principles of the party, they would answer, "I know nothing." Hence the name. The party played an important part in Maryland politics and affairs.

With the rise of the party by succeeding successes, both in the City of Baltimore and throughout the State, it seems to have disregarded all rules as to order and decency, as shown in the municipal election in Baltimore in the fall of 1857. Many of the clubs rejoiced in such names as "Red Necks," "Rip Raps," "Black Snakes," "Blood Tubs" and "Plug Uglies."

It was then that the shoemaker's awl was most effectively used for a purpose for which it was not originally intendtd.

Banners were carried through the streets having printed thereon such sentiments as "The awl is useful in the hands of an artist," "Come up and vote; there is room for awl," and "The Third Ward is awl right." These had their significance. Those who went to the polls with Know Nothing tickets were allowed to pass with cries of "Make way for the voters," but when the citizen who had selected an unmarked ticket approached the voting place the cry of "Meet him on the ice" was one of the signals for the "gang" to rush the prospective voter and bring into play the shoemaker's awl, which was plunged into his anatomy. This, we surmise, was a very potent argument and tended to make the voter "see the light" and vote in accordance with the wishes of the party in control of the voting places.

This awl has been designated the "original disappearing gun" for the reason that it was attached to a rubber band and promptly vanished up the sleeve after it had served its purpose on the anatomy of the enemy voter approaching the polls.

Oakland High School News

Mr. Joseph Stayman, president of Potomac State school, Keyser, visited Oakland High school Tuesday, May 13, and addressed the Senior class.

The V. H. E. Club of O. H. S. held an interesting business program on May 8. The main subject discussed was the project of furnishing a rest room in one of the vacant rooms of O. H. S. Another subject of discussion was getting a suitable screen for the dressing room in the Home Economics Laboratory. The comimttee in charge is Oma DeBerry, Glenda Smith, and Helen Schlossnagle.

Team Wins and Loses One

On Friday the baseball team journeyed to Friendsville where they defeated the Friendsville High school team by a score of 11-7 in seven innings.

The Friendsville team got off to a 7-3 lead in the first two innings but the O. H. S. boys staged a sensational rally which put the game in the victory column.

Dennis Colaw, who relieved Carskadon in the third, did not allow a hit in the last four innings and in addition to this got 3 hits in 4 times at bat. G. N. Fike got a home run for Friendsville in the 2nd inning with two men on base.

Tuesday afternoon the O. H. S. boys lost their first game of the season when the strong Thomas High school team defeated them by a score of 7-5.

Although the O. H. S. boys out-hit Thomas the hits were scattered except in the 7th inning when we came near pulling the game out of the fire by staging a four run rally which came 2 runs short of tying the score.

Thomas scored 7 runs in the first 2 innings as a result of several hits, 2 bases on balls, 2 errors and a wild pitch.

Next Friday we go to Thomas to play a return game and the boys are anxious to avenge their lone defeat of the present season.

"My Visit to the West Virginia Pulp And Paper Mill"

Monday, May 12, the Seniors and a few best General Science students of Oakland High School were given the privilege of a trip to Cumberland to go through the Kelly Springfield Tire Plant and also to Luke to go through the pulp and paper mill. The trip was very enjoyable as well as educational. There were 48 of us and we made the journey in Mr. Ramsey's new bus. Miss Kochenderfer and Mr. Smith were our chaperones and they had no objections to our laughing, singing and having a grand time.

On arriving at Luke a guide was assigned to each group of twelve people and these guides, especially our own, were very efficient and pleasant about explaining to us the process that is undergone to produce a finished sheet of paper.

Paper is a mixture of fibers (cellulose) and clay. The fibers are obtained chiefly from wood, rags, grass, and reclaimed old papers. They are secured from the raw materials either by rubbing or grinding against a revolving rough stone.

The soda proccss is used in cooking the hard and soft woods.

In preparing the wood to be cooked, it is first unloaded from the railroad cars and conveyed to a clipper, a large steel wheel with knives that slice it into discs which are in turn broken into smaller pieces or chips.

In cooking, the digester is filled with chips and the proper amount of caustic soda solution added and a pressure maintained from 6 to 10 hours. At the end of this time the chips have been reduced to pulp which is blown out through a valve into a porous bottom pan where the spent soda liquor drains off and the pulp is washed with water. The washed fibers or pulps, now a tan color, are then passed through screens to remove any uncooked pieces or foreign materials, washed again and bleached white to free it of any bleach residues, then dried to be stored or sent in the slush (wet) form to the paper mill for immediate use in the paper. The time required for the wood to enter the mill and to be made into finished pulp is about 24 hours.

At the paper mill the pulp is put into a beater where it receives the necessary amounts of clay and alum; then it is beaten or mixed for a few hours. The beater is a large vessel equipped with a revolving set of steel plates. The material must pass between these and thereby is beaten, the fibers being split and frayed so they cling to each other better. The stock is then passed through another type of beater called a Jordan, which refined it by reducing any lumps. Any torn or refused paper is returned to the beater and worked over.

When the beating is finished the water or return water that has been used once, then is passed through slotted brass plates known as screens and goes on to the paper machine. It continues to go forward over heated revolving cylinders or dryers, then through polished steel rolls (calenders) which shine or "iron" the now dried sheet and give it the finish. It is finally wound on to a reel from which it is cut into sheets to be trimmed and packed in cases, or, is rewound on a case to be shipped as a roll of finished paper.

We were very much impressed with the atmosphere of the pulp mill as it was extremely sanitary and very modern in every detail. Around 1400 people are employed in the mill.

This is the first trip taken by the students this year. It was such a success that we sincerely hope it will be repeated.—Rosella Hinebaugh.

NECESSARY FOR STATE TO RECORD LIFE AND DEATH

Death Rate for Maryland is Ascertained This Way

The 1930 Census and the interest everywhere aroused, first. as to why, and then as to whether, every individual has been counted in this year's checking up of the population of the United States, has suggested other questions associated with public reeords.

For instance, records of births and deaths are registered by the State Department of Health. Why and by whom are they collected?

Answering these questions, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that each state maintains its own registry of births and deaths in order that it may know how it stands in the matter of life and death. He compared the registration and analysis of scuh reeords to the bookkeeping a bank does to cheek up on its resources—its gains and its losses. By comparing the deaths with the population, what is known as the death rate is aseertained. By measuring the deaths under one year against the births and getting the ratio to each thousand live births, what is known as the infant mortality rate is obtained. As uniform methods are used by all states in the United States and by all civilized countries throughout the world, these rates serve as units of measurement and of comparison. They are often spoken of as the yard sticks of life and death.

The Bureau of Vital Statisties of the State Department of Health is the legal custodian of the records of life and death in the state. In collecting these records the "Central" or "Direct" method of registration is followed. That is, the records, after having been collected by the local Registrar, are sent each month, directly to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, where they are elassified, analyzed, tabulated and filed.

For the purpose of collecting these records, each county is divided into Registration Districts, corresponding to the voting districts, with a Local Registrar in charge of each district. The County Health Officer serves as County Registrar; the Direetor of the State Department of Health and the Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, serve as State Registrar and Assistant State Registrar, respeetively. Baltimore City has its own Bureau of Vital Statisties eonnected with the Baltimore City Department of Health, and its own Registrar to whom reports of births and deaths are sent.

When a birth occurs, the State Registration Law requires that it be reported within four days after the date of the birth, by the physician or midwife in attendance, to the Registrar of the distriet in which it occurs. The same law requires that a death certificate be filled out by the physieian in attendanee, twenty-four hours after the death in whieh the person dies and that a burial permit be obtained before interment. The registrars hold the eertificates of birth and death deposited with them and forward them by the fifth of the following month, directly to the State Registrar. In each eounty, a copy of the records is also forwarded to the County Health Officer.

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:1-22, 34-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. The second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself (22:37-39).

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching in the Temple.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Temple.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Become a Good Citizen.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Who Is a Good Citizen?

In the previous parable, the responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom were set before us in the light of the obligation to render to the householder the fruits of his vineyard. In this one the emphasis is placed upon the privileges and blessings of the king. Christ's kingdom is infinitely more than a system of laws and regulations to be obeyed.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1-14).

The benefits of the kingdom are set forth under the figure of marriage. The highest ideal of love and friendship known to the world is expressed in marriage.

1. The king's invitation despised (vv. 1-7).

The previous parable showed the attitude of the Jewish people toward the king up to the crucifixion. This one carries us beyond the cross, even to the present age of the Gentiles. The marriage feast which the king made for his son and to which he invited guests, represents the gracious offer of God to give joy and blessing to His creatures. This feast has been made in honor of his son, and is an exceeding rich one. The repeated invitations show God's earnestness in seeking to bless men. They not only neglected it, but made light of it and hurried on to their worldly business, showing their disregard for the salvation of their souls. Some did violence to the messengers of the king, even killing them. Primarily, this is a picture of the attitude of the Jews from Christ's crucifixion to the destruction of Jerusalem, but it has its counterpart in the present day.

2. The king's invitation accepted (vv. 8-10).

When those first invited refused, the king sent his servants to others, for his table must be provided with guests. The Lord's table has been prepared at infinite cost.

3. The king inspecting the guests (vv. 11-14).

As a result of this inspection, one was found without a wedding garment. Failure, therefore, to conform to the regulation of the feast was an insult to the king. The wedding garment provided for each one invited to the Lord's table is the righteousness of Christ.

II. The Wonderful Wisdom of the King (vv. 15-22, 34-40).

That which called forth this wisdom was the effort of the leaders to entrap Jesus.

1. The tribute money (vv. 15-22).

The Herodians sought to test His loyalty to the Roman government; therefore, they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?" For Christ to have answered "Yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of the Roman government, and "No" would have brought him into conflict with the government. Christ's reply to this question is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government.

2. Concerning the resurrection (vv. 23-33).

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection. To entrap Him they placed before Him a hypothetical case of a woman who had had seven husbands—as to whose wife she would be in the resurrection. The Scriptures make it clear that marriage is only for this life; that in the resurrection human beings will be as angels of God.

3. The great commandment in the law (vv. 34-40).

(1) The first commandment (vv. 34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." Supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. (2) The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). This is like the first, in that it centers in love. The measure of love to my neighbor is my self-love.

4. The question put by Christ (vv. 41-46).

The mystery of Christ being the son of David and at the same time being David's Lord put to silence all those who had sought to embarrass Him.

Our Prayers

Our prayers are ships. We send them to no uncertain port. They are destined for the throne of grace; and while they take a cargo of supplications from us, they come back argosies laden with the riches of divine grace.—Presbyterian of the South.

Our Supreme Duty

Our supreme duty is to give ourselves to Christ, and with ourselves all that we possess.—Bishop H. B. Hoss.

On the Old Cumberland Road

Present National Highway Was Only Link Between East and West

The countless thousands of people who have motored over the National Highway during the last year are a negligible quantity in comparison with the multitude of pioneers who made this pike one of the most important, historically and romantically, in our country. The name "National" is partly indicative of the importance of this road, although the term "National Pike" is misnomer inasmuch as that was neither the official nor the original name of the road.

The lack of good roads was discussed frequently by our infant Congress, but nothing was done about it until 1806, when, under Jefferson, an appropriation of $30,000 was made for a preliminary survey for a road from Cumberland, Md., through the Narrows and across the mountains to the Ohio river at Wheeling, W. Va. This road was to be called the Cumberland Road, and it is so designated in all the official documents pertaining to it. In May, 1820, Congress passed an act extending this road from Wheeling through the States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to a point on the left bank of the Mississippi river at St. Louis. This road, planned in 1806 and officially and correctly known as the Cumberland Road, forms the nucleus of the present National Highway. The word "National" affixed itself to the name of this pike because it was planned, built and kept in good repair by the National Government. This Government support continued until 1832, when it was declared unconstitutional for the National Government to sponsor this type of "internal improvement." The management and cost of upkeep was then delegated to the States through which the road passed.

* * *

For many years there was considerable contention as to whether Henry Clay or Albert Gallatin was the originator of the idea for this highway. Although Gallatin is now generally acclaimed, Clay was one of its ablest and most conspicuous champions. Even though the plans had been made, appropriations set aside and some of the work begun, the War of 1812 and a few antagonistic Government officials nearly caused the death of this project before it was fairly started. A few friends, such as Clay, did not come amiss.

From the time of its opening in 1818 until the building of the railroads west of the Allegheny mountains in 1852 the Cumberland Road was one of the great channels over which passed the bulk of the freight, mail and passenger transportation between the Eastern and Western States. Taken at its face value, the construction of such a road might be considered a great economic step, but actually it was of paramount political importance. As a means of cementing the feeling of union between the pioneers of the West and the people of the Atlantic seaboard, this road was of inestimable value. Gallatin said of the importance of this project: "No other single operation within the power of the Government can more effectively tend to strengthen and perpetuate the Union." Before the completion of the road eight to ten days were required in transporting mail from Baltimore to Wheeling (about 270 miles). After the completion fifty to fifty-six hours were required to carry the mail that distance. And, from a military viewpoint, a highway of this type would be a great asset in time of war.

* * *

Those who are familiar with the topography of Maryland know that Cumberland is located in the western part of the State, and may wonder, therefore, how this road, which starts 140 miles inland, can be of value to the tidewater communities. It must be remembered that a series of roads, many in very poor condition, connecting Cumberland with Hagerstown, Frederick, Ellicott City and Baltimore were constructed and owned by associations or individuals.

The road was established at sixty feet in width from Cumberland to Wheeling and from Wheeling to the Mississippi at fifty feet. The surface was macadamized and the rivers and creeks were spanned by stone bridges. Some of these are standing today as monuments to the perfection of workmanship of those early surveyors and as curses to the modern motorist because of their narrowness and difficult angles. The distances were indicated by triangular iron mile posts.

Over this old historic pike Presidents-elect have ridden to their inaugurations in Washington and noted politicians have traveled to and from the sessions of Congress. If some of the stories of strange adventure that befell the travelers were collected in a book they would rival the wildest of Western stories. Mr. Searight in his book, "The Old Pike," tells of the following mishap that befell Henry Clay. The coach in which Clay was traveling to Washington upset on a pile of limestones in the main street of Uniontown. The famous statesman was unhurt and, upon being extricated, remarked with much aplomb: "This is mixing the Clay of Kentucky with the limestone of Pennsylvania."

* * *

The scenery was so beautiful that many people would make pleasure trips over the Cumberland Road for this reason alone. People who were unused to mountain travel or scenery vacillated between overpowering awe at the view from the mountain peaks and adject terror as the stage coach rumbled down the steep descents and around elbow curves at break-neck speed. Scharf's History of Western Maryland" describes one such notable trip:

President Taylor and his party were, in 1849, conveyed over this road * * * "The road was a perfect glare of ice and everything above ground was literally plated with sleeted frost. The scenery was beautiful; to native mountaineers, too common to be of much interest, but to a Southerner like General Taylor, who had never seen the like, it was phenomenon. In going down Meadow Mountain the Presidential coach, with the others, danced and waltzed on the polished road, first on one side and then on the other, with every sign of an immediate capsize, but the coaches were manned with the most expert of the whole corps of drivers. Down each hill and mountain the iron-gray head of the General could be seen outside the window of his coach to look upon, what seemed to him, an Arctic panorama. After a ride of many miles, the last long slope was passed and everything was safe. At twilight the Narrows were reached, two miles west of Cumberland, one of the noblest and most sublime views on the Atlantic slope. General Taylor assumed authority and ordered a halt, and out he got in the storm and snow and looked at the giddy heights on either side of Will's Creek.

The congestion of travel secured this highway from maruders to some extent, but the occupants of the coaches had their expeditions spiced by an occasional hold-up. There were certain places along the pike which seemed to have formed by nature for no other than this unlawful purpose. A stretch of land about six miles east of Grantsville, known as the Shades of Death, was dreaded for this reason. It was here that many of the hold-ups and murders took place. This notorious section consisted of a short but very steep descent with a very sharp curve half way down. Rising immediately from the foot of this hill, the steep, winding road of the next mountain shoots skyward. The grade and the curves made it impossible for the stage driver to see any barrier thrown across the road until he was upon it. The dense forest on the upper side of the road made it possible for the robbers to fell a tree across the road with little trouble and then, after the robbery, the same forest offered an almost impenetrable retreat until pursuit died down.

At Piney Grove a girl bandit and her two male companions caused the passengers of one stagecoach to have a thrilling ride. The coach had been stopped and the order given for the driver to "put up his hands." The driver noticed that all three were quite nervous, so he decided to make a break for it. He brought down his hands, grabbed the reins, yelled to his horses and had started up the bank before the highwaymen could collect their wits. The driver brought his coach through the woods and back to the road again without upsetting it or having any of his passengers injured.

The Cumberland road has a peculiar nomenclature that is familiar to all who have traveled over "United States Route 40." The various odd and yet fitting names are derived from stories of romance and adventure. Big Savage Mountain, Little Savage, Lovers' Leap, The Narrows, Negro Mountain, Shades of Death, each has obtained its name from some local adventure. The Narrows are almost a part of the city of Cumberland. Just west of the city the National Highway, Will's Creek and rows of railroad tracks are squeezed between the rock-ribbed perpendicular sides of two mountains. Here the condition of the land explains the name. Tradition tells us that here the romance between an Indian maiden and her lover culminated so tragically.

* * *

The two lovers belonged to enemy tribes and therefore could never marry. Rather than live without each other they climbed to the highest peak of Will's Mountain and, from an outjutting rock, jumped to the shallow Will's creek hundreds of feet below. That overhanging rock has ever since been known as Lovers' Leap. Negro Mountain has an equally interesting history. Colonel Cresap was about to start in pursuit of some Indians, when he learned that his colored body servant, Nemesis, was not anxious to accompany his master. The Negro had shown courage on other similar expeditions, so the master demanded his reasons for not wanting to go on this one. The servant told him that he felt he would never return alive. However, the old Negro was with his master when the company left the fort. Cresap and his followers trailed the Indians over Big Savage Mountain and as far west as the next mountain, where they overtook them. A severe battle followed and at the end of the fight Colonel Cresap found that Nemesis' premonition was true, for he was one of the few slain in the battle. In honor of the bravery and loyalty of Nemisis this mountain was named Negro Mountain.

* * *

The life on the pike was very colorful. Stage driving was considered quite a high calling and was the peak of a young man's ambition. In the summer no other occupation offered as many advantages, but in winter cyclonic winds, deep snowdrifts and sleet-covered roads were a test of any man's courage and venturesome spirit. Travel was always heavy. All day long, and often in to the evening herds of cattle, sheep and hogs, groups of Negro slaves and weary travelers, on foot as well as on freight wagons and stage coaches, could be seen.

In a speech before the House of Representatives T. M. T. McKennan gave an estimate of the amount of traffic that passed over the Cumberland Road at Wheeling. He estimated that in 1822 there were nearly 5,000 wagons unloaded and $400,000 paid as the cost of transportation in this town alone. From 1821 to 1833 (the date of the Cumberland fire) Cumberland had a vigorous, almost prodigious, growth from the traffic over this road. As high as 3,000 passengers were carried on the stages in one month; twenty stage coaches were seen in line at one time, and the freight wagons passed in a steady stream. These wagons were long and deep, bending up in front and rear. The merchandise was protected by white canvas stretched over broad wooden bows in true "covered-wagon" style. Loads of 10,000 pounds were sometimes drawn, although 6,000 pounds was considered an average load for six horses.

With the Cumberland road producing so much business, many taverns and inns were required and they sprang up with a rapidity and frequency rivaled only by our present-day gasoline stations. A tavern of some description could be found on an average of every two miles. One class was for the stages and their passengers, while another catered to the wagon teams and drivers. Some of these taverns became quite famous. For instance, the drivers of the stages would make a decided effort to have their passengers spend the night at a place where they might enjoy the luxurious depths of the feather beds for which that tavern was noted. Hot buckwheat cakes and sausage gave another an enviable reputation, while the ability of the host to play the fiddle brought popularity to still another.

* * *

The barroom was the social hall of the taverns of both classes. Here the passengers of the stages would sit at tables around the huge fireplace and indulge in much talk and a little corn whisky. Whisky was the drink in demand, but the better taverns kept in stock a small supply of brandy and fine wines for the aristocratic guests. After an hour or two of conversation, indifferent card games or any other amusement that was offered the guests retired to their rooms. An evening at the wagon stands or taverns frequented by the drivers of the teams was not unlike that enjoyed by those who patronized the more expensive inns. When it was time to go to bed the drivers brought out their blankets, wrapped themselves in them with their feet toward the fireplace and slept on the barroom floor.

* * *

Daybreak found the tavern a very busy place. The tavernkeeper and his servants were busy preparing and serving breakfast. The wagoners were hitching the horses to the freight-laden wagons and, with mumbled good-bys and cheery calls to their horses, were driving off. The stages were driven to the door with much prancing of horses and ostentation on the part of the drivers. Passengers stood in small groups in the barroom waiting with assumed patience for the coach. Everyone was ready for another day on the old Cumberland Road.

BITTINGER

Lack of rain for more than a week has resulted in the ground becoming so excessively dry that farmers complain of much difficulty in preparing the soil for the reception of seed.

C. M. Railey, one of the recently announced candidates for the Republican nomination for the office of Sheriff, was a very agreeable caller in this village one evening last week.

Elmer Shawley and family spent Sunday visiting relatives over in Somerset county, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Krause and child, of near Grantsville, visited Mrs. Krause's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Brenneman, at their home here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Broadwater and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brenneman attended the funeral of the late Victor Griffith at Addison, Pa., last Friday afternoon.

Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, was called to Bittinger early last Sunday morning on account of the serious illness of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Brenneman.

Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp, wife of Merchant Ellithorp, of this village, while fishing in Deep Creek Lake last Wednesday afternoon succeeded, with the aid of her husband, in landing a fine trout that measured thirteen inches in length. No one in this section has yet been able to beat that catch.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Resh are very happy since the arrival at their home of an infant.

A very aggressive red fox, which had been preying upon young lambs in this community for some time, was killed recently by Mortimer Durst, of the Dry Run Settlement, but before the animal was taken it had killed seven lambs belonging to Mrs. Charles O. Wilt and three from the flock of Mr. Durst.

Many of our neighbors attended the public sale of personal property held on the John Spoerlein farm at Accident Tuesday of last week.

Perry Wilt, of Swanton, was one of the callers in this village last week.

Mr. Solomon Moon, of Kitzmiller, visited his sister, Mrs. Hester Drysdale here a day or two last week.

A special missionary service will be held in the Lutheran church of this village next Sunday evening to which the public is cordially invited.

TO DISCUSS MARKETING AT FARMERS' CONFERENCE

Four-Day Session Is Announced by University of Maryland

A Farmers' Marketing Conference, to be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, on August 12 to 15, is announced by authorities of the University. This is the first event of its kind to be held in the State and will take the place of Farmers' Day, which has been held at the University for a number of years. Approximately forty are expected to attend from Garrett county.

The program for the Conference provides for general sessions in the forenoon of each day at which marketing problems will be discussed that are common to the marketing of all kinds of farm products. In the afternoon, those in attendance will divide themselves into groups according to the particular products in which they are especially interested. Specific problems related to the marketing of dairy products, poultry and poultry products, grain and livestock, fruits and vegetables, and tobacco will form the topics for the several group conferences.

A number of nationally known and recognized authorities on various phases of marketing will appear on the program, both at the general sessions and at the group conferences, and also outstanding leaders in the cooperative movement in Maryland. Members of the Federal Farm Board will be present and will outline the plans and purposes of that Board. F. N. ZIHLMAN ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR CONGRESS

Comes Before People of The 6th District Fot Nomination for Eleventh Consecutive Time

Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for member of the House of Representatives in the Seventy-second Congress of the United States, on Saturday last. Mr. Zihlman filed his certificate of candidacy with the Clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors of Garrett, Allegany, Frederick, Washington and Montgomery counties, comprising the Sixth Congressional District, the same day.

In making his announcement, Congressman Zihlman says, "To the people of Western Maryland who have so signally honored me in the past I again appeal for their confidence and support and the further opportunity of serving them."

Eleventh Consecutive Term

In submitting his candidacy to the people of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, Congressman Zihlman goes before the people of this section for the eleventh consecutive time.

He was first elected as State Senator for Allegany county in 1909; reelected to the State Senate in 1913, serving in that body for four terms. In the sessions of 1914-1916 he was the minority leader of his party in the body. In 1914 he was the unanimous choice of his party in the Sixth District of Maryland for Congress, but was defeated in the general election by Hon. David J. Lewis by 742 majority. Mr. Zihlman was again nominated in 1916 by a direct vote of the people in a field of four candidates, for Congress, and was elected in that year by a plurality of 2760 votes, although both President Wilson and Mr. Lewis, who was running for United States Senator, carried the District.

Congressman Zihlman was nominated and reelected to Congress in 1918, 1920, 1922, 1924, 1926 and 1928 and seeks to add a 1930 victory to his banner. In the last election he defeated Mr. Lewis, who had defeated him in 1914, by nearly 11,000 majority, which is the largest majority he has ever received in the district.

Mr. Zihlman is now serving his seventh consecutive term in Congress, and is in a commanding position, being chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, and ranking member of the Committee on Labor, Insular Affairs and Enrolled Bills.

CHARLES M. WHITE STEPS UP IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Native of Oakland Made Assistant Vice-President

Charles M. White, formerly of Oakland, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. White, has been appointed assistant vice-president in charge of operations of the Republic Steel Corporation at Youngstown, Ohio, it was announced Saturday by R. J. Mysor, a vice-president of the corporation.

Until his recent promotion Mr. White was general superintendent of the Alliquippa (Pa.) works of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation at Pittsburgh. He joined the latter corporation upon graduation as mechanical engineer from the University of Maryland. His first position with the company was assistant superintendent of the Eliza blast furnace and later he became master mechanic in charge of construction at the Eliza works of the company.

After serving for sometime as assistant to the general superintendent of the South Side Works, Mr. White became general superintendent of the company's railroads at Pittsburgh and Alliquippa.

Three years ago he was made assistant general superintendent of the Alliquippa works and six months ago he became general superintendent.

Mr. White was born in Oakland and is still quite a young man. He graduated from the Lonaconing High School, where he resided with his parents for a few years, in 1913 and married Miss Helen Bradley, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley, of Lonaconing.

Mr. White's many friends in Oakland will be greatly pleased to learn of his suecessive advancements in the steel Industry.

The Civic Club of Oakland has on sale Norway Spruce trees. For particulars see Mrs. A. L. Lee or Miss Lottie Loar.

IMPROVEMENT IN YARDS NOTICED SINCE CONTEST

Residents Show Greater Civic Spirit, Civic Club President of Oakland States—251 Entrants

With the Oakland Yard and Garden contest now well under way, much improvement is already shown in yards and gardens of those entered in the contest, according to Miss Lottie Loar, president of the Civic Club, and Mrs. Albert L. Lee, chairman of the contest committee.

In a recount of the entries it was found 251 were entered in the contest for the beautification of their property and the town of Oakland.

"One of the most valuable benefits of the Yard and Garden contest to this community will be greater civic loyalty," Miss Loar stated. "We can justly be proud to have our home town as the city of beautiful homes. Everywhere garden contests have been held homes have been improved and made more attractive. Like results will be accomplished here.

"Individual citizens who have beautified their home lots by planting trees, shrubs and flowers always take pride in the changed appearance of their places. Grounds such as these frequently come to be the pride of the neighborhood. Yards which won prizes in yard and garden contests in other cities last year were the show places of the entire community."

W. R. Ballard, extension horticulturalist or landscape artist of the University of Maryland, will be in Oakland on May 27 and will give suggestions and inspect properties of all who notify Mrs. Lee or Miss Loar.

"Many people who have entered the contest do not know where to begin fixing up their premises," Mrs. Lee said. "The place to begin is right in one's backyard in most cases. The portion of the property that fronts on the street and is seen by the public should of course be made attractive. But the part of the lot to the rear of the house has ordinarily been overlooked and offers the greater opportunity for improvement. There is the place to huild the outdoor living room. Trees and shrubs will make walls of living green. The blue sky will be your ceiling, the grass your carpet. Flowers will decorate your outdoor living room and cheer you with their color and fragrance every time you step out of doors."

14TH ANNUAL FIELD MEET WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

350 or More County Athletes Will Be In Competition

The fourteenth annual County-wide Field and Track Meet will be held at the Fair grounds, Oakland, on Wednesday, May 28, with 350 or more athletes from various schools in the county competing, Foster Speicher, chairman of the committee in charge, announced yesterday.

The meet will be held under the auspices of the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore, and under the authority of Mr. F. E. Rathbun, Superintendent of Schools of Garrett.

A number of schools have already sent in their entries to the chairman of the committee, and several of the county schools have held or will hold local field day meets in their respective communities in preparation for the county-wide contest. Oakland High School is expecting to specialize on the high jump event this year.

There will be various running events, relay races, broad jump, high jump, shot put, etc., for the 80-lb., 96-lb., 115-lb., junior and senior unlimited classes, and boys' speedball, girls' volleyball and dodgeball contests and other games for all schools participating.

Accident High School won first place last year and Kitzmiller High first in 1927 and 1928. Last year Kitzmiller and Oakland High schools tied for second place.

UNOCCUPIED CAR DAMAGES STORE OF HAMILL—HART

Breaks Loose on Court House Hill on Saturday Afternoon

A Willys-Knight sedan broke loose on Court House hill, between Third and Fourth streets where it was parked last Saturday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, and did considerable damage to the front of Hamill's Book Store and Hart's store before coming to a stop.

The car was owned by Ivan Umstead, of Grantsville, West Va., and had been occupied just a few minutes before the accident by Messrs. Irvin Fowler and Walter Fowler, and two ladies, also of Grantsville.

Two large plate glass windows in Hamill's store and one plate glass window in Hart's store were shattered by the impact of the car, and the total damage is estimated to be about $400. A check sufficient to pay for all repairs was deposited with a local attorney by Mr. Walter Fowler.

No one was injured, as it happened that nobody was in that vicinity at the time. One of the ladies who had stepped out of the car a few minutes before, upon seeing the car start down the hill, attempted to stop it but was thrown to the street. The car was facing up the hill.

SENATOR TYDINGS APPEALS FOR FISH HATCHERY IN MD.

Urges $75,000 Government Plant Be Established in the State—Location In Garrett Mentioned

Efforts are being made to bring about the establishment of a $75,000 fish hatchery in Maryland, says a report from Washington. The White bill, passed by Congress, authorizes a plant in Maryland or West Virginia.

Senator Millard E. Tydings Saturday discussed the matter with Commissioner of Fisheries O'Malley. Senator Tydings urged that, in view of the many available and suitable locations in Maryland, where springs and streams are adapted to the purposes, and the fact that there is a Federal hatchery at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the additional one authorized in the White bill should be located in Maryland.

Urged by Swepson Earle

The Conservation Department of Maryland also has taken the matter up with Commissioner O'Malley. Swepson Earle, conservtaion commissioner, and E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, recently discussed the matter with Federal officials.

The Maryland officials told Mr. O'Malley there were a number of sites in Maryland suitable for bass or trout hatcheries. Mr. Earle and Mr. LeCompte told Mr. O'Malley they would file data regarding the streams and sites they believe would meet the requirements of the department.

Mentions Three Counties

"I am sure the people of Maryland are very much interested in having the United States Bureau of Fisheries establish the Government hatchery in Maryland instead of West Virginia," Mr. LeCompte told Senator Tydings. In the counties of Garrett, Washington and Frederick locations can be obtained for propagation of bass and trout with adequate water supply of a temperature required for the propagation of these fishes."

After his conversation with Commissioner O'Malley, Senator Tydings said Maryland had a good claim for the hatchery, with indications favoring selection of a site in this State.

Representatives Stephen W. Gambill and Fred. N. Zihlman have also taken the matter up with the department.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore.)

Those Democrats who have been leading the movement to get Representative Stephen W. Gambrill into the field as a candidate against Governor Ritchie have nearly given up hope of success. And, unless something positive is heard from Mr. Gambrill within the next few days, some other prospect will most likely be taken up. In fact, it is reported that former Mayor Howard W. Jackson has already been proffered such substantial support that he is likely to announce himself a candidate in the event Mr. Gambrill's declination is made positive.

Persons who talked with Mr. Gambrill in the past week got the impression that he had changed his mind aboout running. About three weeks ago he was full of the idea of running, say those who talked with him. But he suddenly began to cool off and this cooling off was coincidental with the discovery by the Ritchie people that his candidacy was imminent. At that time the pressure of the Ritchie crowd began and never stopped. Only Mr. Gambrill can say how strong and insistent it has been.

We understand that some of those political factors who in the beginning urged Mr. Gambrill to make a fight, shifted their position and urged him not to go in. It is hardly necessary to say that those Democrats who did this sort of thing were individuals who held public positions which put them under obligations to the Governor.

In the Ritchie camp it seems to be considered high treason for anyone to suggest that the Governor should be opposed. To such a pass have matters come in Maryland under theruling clique.

Still there are many who have all along advocated letting the Governor have the nomination by default. The argument is that a primary fight against him would be expensive and its results—if he is not beaten there—might be to help him in the general election. And there are so many Democrats who want to see him ditched for all time. So, it is argued, why not quietly wait and spend the campaign money available in getting hostile voters to the polls in November.

The view is now held by the Ritchie opponents that it would be as well to wait until after the Fourth of July before starting a campaign work. It is held that as much effective campaign work can be done in two months as in a much longer period and that it will have to be done only once. There is no sign that the Ritchie support is growing.

Two months or more ago a Ritchie enthusiast undertook to boost His Excellency by having printed a thousand or more posters to put on automobiles. Several kinds were printed, it appears, but today it is a rare sight to see one. Then the Ritchie buttons were brought out and a few minor office holders wore them. They must have been laughed at, for we haven't seen but one in two weeks, and the man wearing that one appeared to be drunk.

Senator Tydings has been in town making addresses at night in out of the way places. Then Brooke Lee has been brought over by the George Lewis patriots but we see no great enthusiasm. Indeed, everyone who knows about things political says that the city situation is still badly mixed.

Tydings, we hear, is one of those used by Ritchie and Brooke Lee to discourage Gambrill. At first, we are told, Tydings encouraged Gambrill to run, but he soon changed. Tydings is given to change. But at that, he is no favorite of the Governor. The latter does not care any too much for those who rise in party prominence.

From various sections of the city and through various sources which should be reliable we find that the situation as regards the Governor is bad, indec. Some of his most sincere backers seem to have come to the conconclusion that he cannot be electcd again and they express deep regret that Ritchie cannot himself realize it.

As we get It, the situatlon is just as bad in one section of the city as in another. The declaration of Democrat after Democrat is that Ritchie will not again be supported. But theGovernor continues in an atmosphere of adulation, surrounded by flatterers and daily dreaming that no matter what the countics do to him the city will pull him through on election day.

Those who hold court house positions in the city continue very much on the anxious bench. No clear light is to be seen with the Democrats scrapping In every part of the city. In some eases the hand of every man is said to be against every other man and confusion becomcs worse from day to ay.

Why Not Senator Goldsborough for Governor?

The more we look at the situation in the Republican party the better Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough seems to fit into the picture as the Republican candidate for Governor. Of course, there would be a protest on the basis of his having a good office and that his election would necessitate his giving up his seat at Washington, but a serious situation in Maryland demands a serious remedy.

If Mr. Goldsborough would take the place he need not have a primary fight and his election, should Ritchie be the Democratic nominee, would be as certain as anything political can be in Maryland.

Having had the experience Mr. Goldsborough would know just what to do at Annapolis in order to fix up the State government and put it just where it should be. And on the stump he would have the nerve to point out the failures of the present administration as well as the dangers of its alliances.

Candidates a-Plenty In Second District

Evidently thinking that this is to be a Democratic year the candidates for Congress on the Democratic ticket in the Second district grow numerous. Billy Cole, Herbert Grymes and Yewell Dillehunt are in with Dan Chambers and John Gontrum looking on. The last mentioned is the newest and it may be that he will take a chance in a crowd. He lives in the city end of the dictrict as do all the others except Cole but the members of his family have long been identified with Baltimore county.

Mr. Gontrum served as a member of the Appeal Tax Court and for his appointment to that place had the backing of the late John J. Mahon. Our guess is that Harrison Rider, who was a friend of Mahon, will not back Gontrum. Somehow the two don't gee.

Young Cole Setting Up New Political Shop

In Baltimore county it is reported that young Wm. P. Cole, former Congressman, in addition to running for nomination again, is undertaking to set up political shop for himself with the idea that he can upset Harrison Rider.

Cole is and has been training with the Governor while Rider has been plain spoken enough to let everybody know that he thinks the Ritchie business is being run into the ground. So the Governor wants some one on whom he can depend in Baltimore county. The late father of the ex-Congressman, Wm. P. Cole, the elder, was quite a political leader in his day and would probably have been Fred Talbot's successor in the county leadership of the Democratic party had he lived.

Some of Mr. Rider's friends think he made a mistake when he accepted appointment as State Insurance Commissioner at the hands of Governor Ritchie. He did not need the place and at that time was president of the Board of County Commissioners, a place wielding great influence. If the Ritchie people can take Rider down a peg it will be a big thing for them in Baltimore county.

Brooke Lee Gets Very Hard Bump

According to the reports we get from Rockville the Governor's chief political lieutenant, Brooke Lee, has received a hard jolt at the hands of the Circuit Court in the shape of a ruling that the action of Lee and his supporters in going before the Grand Jury in a group and demanding the indictment of the editors of the Montgomery Independent was outside the law. There must have been great rejoicing among the anti-Lee Democrats over there who for quite a while have been making a most strenuous fight to break the Lee hold on the county government.

The contest was going along just as factional political fights usually do when Lee made matters worse by going into the newspaper business and effecting consolidations with other papers. This meant that the Lee object was to get the cream of the public advertising for the county at his own rate and thus force the taxpayers to support his enterprise whether they liked it or not. The natural result was the establishing of a new paper as the mouthpiece of those Democrats who are opposed to the Lee domination.

In the last few years Lee, who seems to be strongly backed by the Governor (the latter having made him Speaker of the House of Delegates twice), has been doing what some consider rather rough things In party politics and therefore the bitterness against hlm has grown. Realizing this, Lee has let it be known that he will not run for the Legislature this year although an excellent opportunity to test his strength is afforded in the candidacy of his one-time friend and present enemy, Dr. Eugene Jones, for another term in the State Senate. Lee, badly cut in the election of 1926, does not choose to run and he has chosen Robert G. Hilton, a much stronger man, to become the candidate against the present Senator.

The talk in the county is to the effect that if the Lee people win the primary the war for extermination will be carried to the general election for the purpose of getting rid of the Lee control once and for all. Which, of course, is not cheering talk for the Lee side.

Jimmie Fazzalari is setting up his new trimmer in his repair shop on Liberty street, and says that he will soon be ready to give anybody a trimming. The machine has so many trimmers and finishers on it that all Jimmie will have to do will be to place the shoe on one end and then run up to the other end and catch the finished product. And according to Col. Bell, who has inspected it closely, there is also a pocketbook trimmer on one end of the machine.

Nels and Jake have had diving suits and a floating pier for more than a week and have at last made the middle concrete support. Jake defeated Nels in an endurance contest out there on Monday when he stayed under the water for six hours, sixty-six minutes, and sixty-six seconds.

VALUE OF CHARMING BUNGALOW GREATLY INCREASED BY JOINING THE YARD CONTEST

Here is a charming bungalow home the value of which was increased several hundred dollars as a result of the planting done during a Yard and Garden contest.

Trees, shrubs, vines and flowers, harmoniously arranged, now join house and yard, in a pleasing picture. Such a place is truly livable, possessing possibilities of usefulness and of enjoyment for every member of the family.

The planting of this lot is quite simple, yet thoroughly effective as far as landscape purposes are concerned. The shrubs are massed about the foundation, leaving the lawn area open. In this case the planting also serves as a screen, a very practical purpose, as the bungalow is built close to the street.

Dairy Herd Improvement Association Enables Dairymen to Increase Their Profits

There is going to be a Dairy Herd Imporvement Association organized in Garrett county. The tester will start work June 1. If you are interested in "MORE MONEY FROM FEWER COWS" join a Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Get in touch with the County Agent and talk it over.

Cow-testing through Dairy Herd Improvement Association is rapidly becoming recognized as a necessity in every well managed dairy herd. It provides the most economical and satisfactory means of obtaining the information necessary to develop a high producing, profitable herd.

There is no quicker or surer method of building up a desirable reputation for a dairy herd than by testing the cows for production. A cow may be registered and of high producing blood lines as well as superior in breed type, but at the same time be a poor producer. The only way to determine what a cow is actually doing is to test for production.

Not many years ago testing was confined to a few leading breeders, but that day has passed. In some of the prosperous dairy counties there are several Dairy Herd Improvement Associations and cow-testing is practiced quite generally. Progressive dairymen have learned that they cannot afford not to test, for besides enabling them to breed better cattle, production records advertise the ability of the individual cows which make up the herd. This brings buyers to the herd and increases the profits from the sale of surplus stock.

A Dairy Herd Improvement Association as ordinarily conducted in the United States, is an organization of about twenty-six dairy farmers who cooperatively employ a trained tester to test their cows for economical production of milk and butterfat. The tester spends one day a month on each farm and while there gets for each cow in the herd a complete record of milk and butterfat production, feed consumption, feed cost, gross income, and income over feed cost. Using these records as a guide, the farmer and the tester figure out better methods of feeding, care and management; they eliminate all cows that do not respond profitably to intelligent feeding; and they give careful attention to problems of breeding.

Dairy Herd Improvement Associations stand for better dairy herds, increased returns, and a better living for the dairyman participating in them. Feeding, weeding, and breeding cannot be intelligently carried on without some form of testing. In fact, testing for production is the guage which enables the dairyman to control and check all his dairy practices.

The importance of a Dairy Herd Improvement Association cannot be over emphasized. Statistics from U. S. Bureau of Dairying show the cows on test in the country have a 60 per cent higher production per cow than those not on test.

PROTECTION AGAINST WAR

The policy of developing domestic resources and domestic commerce, rather than that of seeking prosperity in world markets, has been a vital factor in preserving the peace of the United States. We have in this country the greatest free trade area in the world. We have resources sufficient to serve as the basis of wealth creation adequate for our population. We have created here a high standard of living for the masses, and we have preserved it by preventing the destructive competition of foreign industry based upon labor costs insufficient to maintain working populations above the lervel of mere subsistence.

To surrender this home market to the cheap labor exploiters in foreign lands, whether foreign or domestic in ownership, would be first of all to paralyze our own industry. All of the unemployment existing in the United States today is due to excessive importations made cheap by cheapening the workers whose toil enters into these commodities. To seek to remedy this unemployment by seeking foreign markets, is to enter into world-wide competition with these same cheap labor products. To do this is to come into commercial conflict the world around with other industrial nations, and thus to breed the causes of war.

The World War would probably not have come except, as the result of the keen commercial world-wide rivalry of the great industrial powers of Europe. They sought special zones of influence, colonies, special favors in foreign markets. Their competition in sales and in shipping became intense. This caused the ill will which eventuated in the war.

Now it is proposed we shall follow this course. We are told thatif we protect our own markets, we cannot successfully fight for markets abroad. We are told that we must make large exports of capital. We must become entangled in world economics and world politics to a degree hitherto unknown to us. In following such a course we are walking straight into the jaws of war.

We have a world of our own, as yet far from being fully developed. There are ample calls for the capital here at home that we are exporting in vast quantities abroad, all the time involving ourselves further and further in the economic rivalrics of foreign industrial powers. We are even told that we cannot in view of our position as a competitor for world trade, afford to so formulate our tariff rates that our own employment and standard of living may be maintained.

To turn aside from the national policies which have given us such prosperity and peace to enter the unequal conflict for world markets while surrendering our own, at the risk of maintaining established standards of living for our own people, is to leave a comfortable home in pursuit of a mirage.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

On Sunday quite a number of Oakland people attended the dedicatory services of the new Lutheran church at Eglon, West Va.

The Amateur Charade Club of Oakland advertised a comedy, "A Precious Pickle," to be presented at Offutt's Hall on May 29.

L. L. McCrum, Gorman,was thrown from his horse and seriously injured as he was returning to his home from attending court in Oakland.

A committee to have charge of the flowers to be used on Decoration Day was appointed and included among others Mrs. A. G. Sturgiss, Mrs. H. W. McComas, Mrs. D. E. Offutt, Miss Elizabeth Leary and Miss Addie Cupp.

A bond issue for improving the streets of Oakland was voted upon and carried by a majority of 32 in a total vote of 144.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Announcement was made of the marriage of Harry L. McComas, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. McComas, in Baltimore, on January 17, the marriage having been secretly performed.

James (Colonel) Bell, who spent the winter in Fayetteville, W. Va., where he engaged in the photograph business, returned to his home in Oakland, declaring that the denizens of Fayette county were too much for him, as an average of a murder a day had been committed there while he was a resident.

County Superintendent of Education Ed. A. Browning was given a prominent place on the program of the State Teachers' Association meeting as one of the speakers.

Many homes and places of business were being reconditioned by carpenters and painters.

Now last but not least is the wedding at our little town of Hoyes. The contracting parties were Miss Hallie Friend and Arthur Custer. They were married at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of the bride, the ceremony was performed by Rev. H. E. Friend in the presentce of a few immediate relatives, with Miss Bertha Custer and Mr. Earl Fazenbaker as attendants. The couple is well known and highly respected by all. After a delicious supper was served quite a crowd of serenaders, both ladies and gentlemen, gathered and gave an old fashioned belling, after which cake, lemonade and other refreshments were served. All wish this couple a long and pleasant journey through life.

An Interestino Fact.

CHIEF JUSTICE TANEY

In the early days of the Civil War, Baltimore, owing to its geographical position, being located "where the South begins," was a storm center in those trying times.

Among the many incidents happening in that section of Maryland one stands out in bold relief, testifying to the courage, ability and honesty of Roger Brooke Taney, Chief Justice of the United State Supreme Court, and a citizen of this State.

On May 25, 1861, John Merryman, a citizen of Baltimore county, was arrested on the charge of treason and for complicity in the burning of certain bridges on the night of the memorable 19th of April. On the following day a writ of habeas corpus was applied for and as a similar writ in another case had been previously disregarded by Federal and military authorities, it was decided to apply directly to the Supreme Court of the United States. For the purpose of hearing the matter, Chief Justice Taney journeyed from Washington to Baltimore, an unusual occurrence.

Andrews, in his history, says of this incident: "In the courtroom of Baltimore, on May 27 and 28 (1861) there followed two of the most dramatic scenes in the history of this country. Well past the allotted three score and ten, but with his natural force of Intellect unabated, the venerable Chief Justice took his stand on the principles of Blackstone, Marshall and Story, that it was not within the jurisdiction of the executive branch of the Government to suspend the most prized safeguard of English liberties * * * "

The writ was issued, requiring the military authorities to produce the body of the defendant. The commander of Fort McHenry, where Merryman was confined, did not honor the writ, saying that he had been ordered by the President to suspend habeas corpus proceedings. The details of this historic incident are too long for this short article. Suffice it to say, that it was a direct clash between the President of the United States and Court, the highest tribunal in the world.

Under the tense situation of the times, with State arrayed against State, with brother against brother, with General Butler, who was no reepecter of personal or State's rights, in possession of Federal Hill, with Baltimore practically under military control, it took heroic courage of honest conviction for the Chief Justice to take a stand on this most important question directly opposed to that of the President of the United States.

Beyond the County

In Chicago, under a recent ruling of the Supreme Court, Federal authorities seized about $75,000 of bottles, caps, malt, hops and other materials, suspected for use in the manufacture of home brew. Clarence Darow, noted criminal lawyer, has been retained for the defense.

In Texas, a mob, angered over the slaying of a white land owner, took the body of a negro from his cabin, where he had been previously slain, and burned it in front of a negro church. This is the second outbreak of a mob there within a short time.

In New Jersey, Dwight W. Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico, now a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senate, has declared himself in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In Ohio county, W. Va., eleven cases of bankruptcy have been set for hearing in the office of one referee.

In Tokyo, Japan, a record inheritance tax of 22 million yen, equivalent to 11 million dollars, has been assessed against an estate of a decedent, the entire estate being valued at 125 million dollars.

During the first three months of 1930, American railroads, cooperating with President Hoover's request for the maintenance of employment, spent 223 million dollars for new equipment and other betterments.

For the purpose of checking the exact speed of light, a world famous physicist in Chicago, has completed a hugh vacuum tube a mile in length, through which a ray of light will be shot and "clocked." Light waves are now supposed to travel 186,284 miles per second.

At Frederick, Md., following a rigid investigation, C. C. Klien, City Forester, indicated that the forest fire in Catoctin Mountain, which burned over about 5,000 acres, was of incendiary origin and would be investigated by the grand jury.

160 SCHOOL TEACHERS QUIT IN MARYLAND COUNTIES

43 Accept Posts In Other States Report of Maryland Board of Education Reveals

Forty-three of the 160 teachers who resigned last year from the county schools abandoned their positions because of offers from private schools and institutions in other States, it was revealed Saturday in a report from the Maryland State Board of Education.

Although there were more teaching positions filled last year than in 1928, the number of resignations shows a decided decrease over the preceding year, the board stated.

Dropped For Inefficiency

Twenty-one left schools to take up work other than teaching and an equal number were dropped for inefficiency. Of the remainder who resigned, forty-two gave marriage as the reason, five took other school positions in the State, twelve were forced to leave due to illness, death or change of residence.

Two were dropped by county superintendents because they held provisional certificates or failed to attend summer school. Fourteen gave miscellaneous reasons for their resignations.

In addition to those who resigned, eight teachers obtained leave of absence and thirty-eight left positions in one county to teach in another, the report stated.

INSPECT MEDICINE CHEST INSPRING HOUSECLEANING

Cupboards and Medicine Receptacle Needs Overhauling

"Don't overlook the kitchen cupboard or the medicine chest while you are doing your spring housecleaning," is the advice Dr. Robert L. Swain, Deputy Food and Drug Commissioner of the State Department of Health, gives to every housekeeper in the State.

"Like every other cupboard in the place, the kitchen cupboard and the medicine chest need a thorough overhauling every now and then. As you look over them," he continued, "you will probably find as you do in other cupboards, a lot of things poked away that have lost their freshness or that are even harmful and that should be discarded for safety's sake.

"The real job comes after the various shelves have been cleared out and thoroughly scrubbed with plenty of water and soap, and when you have to decide what is to go back on the shelves. If you want to safeguard your family and to save yourself a lot of trouble, stop long enough while you are working on your kitchen cabinet to label your boxes and jars or whatever you use as containers for your supplies, and to label them with good, clear lettering.

"Next, after labelling, separate the harmful ones, such as insecticides and household poisons, from the supplies that are used in cooking. And finally, put the insecticides and such things in a safe place. Don't keep them in the same place with food supplies or with ingredients used in cooking.

"Within the last six months we have all known of accidental poisonings that have ocuurred here in Maryland as well as in other parts of the country because insecticides or other equally dangerous substances, were somehow mixed with baking powders or with flavoring substances. Very serious illnesses and even deaths have resulted from this sort of carelessness. The spring housecleaning gives the housekeeper an opportunity to check up on all such supplies; to label them clearly and properly and to store them where they will not endanger people's lives. Above all, such supplies should be stored beyond the reach of children.

"As to the medicine chest—don't keep odds and ends of medicine that you have had on hand for two or three years. There are certain supplies that you will want to have and that you will need to have on hand. Ask your doctor to give you a list of them. Then go to your druggist and get the fresh supplies."

Lesson for May 25

JESUS DESCRIBES THE FUTURE OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 24:1-25:13 (Print 25:1-13).
GOLDEN TEXT—Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Being Ready to Help.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Being Ready.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being Ready.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Preparedness.

I. The Prophetic View of the Course of Time from Christ's Crucifixion to His Second Coming. (24:1-51).

The order of events in this time are in general as follows:

1. The moral condition of the world during Christ's absence. (vv. 1-14).

This is the period covered by the parables of chapter 13.

2. The appearance of the Antichrist (vv. 15-26).

3. The great advent (vv. 27-31).

In connection with this advent there will be mighty convulsions of nature, the mourning of the tribes of the earth, and the gathering of the elect.

4. Warnings to God's people in view of the great advent (vv. 32-51).

The time of this advent is unknown and on the part of many unexpected.

5. Instruction to believers in view of the unexpectedness of Christ's coming (25:1-30).

II. Behavior of Believers in View of the Coming of the Lord (25:1-13).

The teaching in the parable of the ten virgins has continuous application in the present time (I Thess. 16:18; Titus 2:11-13).

1. The equipment of the virgins (vv. 1-5).

(1) The foolish virgins took lamps, but no oil with them (v. 3). Lamps signify Christinn profession (Matt. 5:16) and oil the Holy Spirit (Zech. 14). Having lamps but no oil shows that they were professors of religion, without possessing its reality. The Christian life is sustained by the Holy Spirit. As soon as a man is regenerated, the Holy Spirit takes up His abode with him. The Spirit's indwelling therefore, is an advance work upon regeneration. The proof that one is a child of God is that he has the Holy Spirit dwelling within him. (Rom. 8:9). The foolish virgins were professors, but not possessors. (2). The wise virgins possessed both lamps nnd oil (v. 4). They backed their profession with a real life of righteousness. Both the wise and the foolish virgins slumbered and slept. This shows that as the present age lengthens, the real and the professing church will cease looking for the coming of the Lord. It is unspeakably sad that so many, even of God's chosen—the wise virgins—should give up the expectancy of the return of the Lord.

2. The coming of the bridegroom (vv. 6-12).

(1) The midnight cry (v. 6). In the midst of the night when all the virgins were asleep the cry was heard, "Behold the bridegroom cometh." Who knows but that the time of this cry is now close upon us? (2) Activity of the virgins (v. 7). They all arose and trimmed their lamps. There will be great activity when the Lord comes on the part of both believers and those who only make a profession. It will be a day when the reality of one's faith will be tested. (3) The foolish virgins' request of the wise to share their oil (vv. 8, 9). The revelation of Christ will make manifest the genuineness of our faith and expose the folly of mere profession. When the Lord comes, it will be too late to mend one's ways. (4) The wise enter to the marriage (v. 10). While the foolish were seeking to amend their ways—trying to buy oil—the bridegroom came, and those who were ready were admitted to the marriage. (5) The pitiful petition of the foolish virgins (v. 11). They begged the Lord to open the door. (6). The awful judgment (v. 12). The Lord declared, "I know you not."

3. The solemn obligation (v. 13).

"Watch, for ye know not the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." Two solemn facts should engage the attention of every one. (1) Entering with Christ to the marriage depends upon faithfulness to the end. If oil and light be wanting when Christ comes, no admittance will be granted to the heavenly banquet. (2) Borrowed religion will not avail at that day. Despite the value of godly companions and associates, they can render no service in the day of Jesus Christ. Personal contact with the Lord Jesus through faith in His blood the absolute essential.

Those Who Do Not Sleep

While many are sleeping and taking it easy, we, as overseers, are struggling under the burden resting upon us, weeping and warning and begging for help to battle against the forces of evil around us.—Jonas Mininger.

Hear That Voice

How hard it is to get down to that point where we hear the voice which the sheep always know! Be not content until you have heard that voice!—John R. Mott.

JOHN H. RILEY

John Henry Riley, 92, retired employe of the Western Maryland Railway Company and one of the best known citizens of Elkins, died Thursday evening at his residence in Elkins following a few days illness of paralysis. Several weeks ago Mr. Riley was stricken with pneumonia and his death was expected at that time, but his condition gradually improved until he was able to be up and around the house. On Tuesday of last week he suffered a stroke of paralysis and gradually became worse until his death occurred Thursday night.

The deceased was born December 11, 1837, at Cambridge, O., the son of John and Mary (Deets) Riley, and was one of eleven children. At the age of nine years he was brought to Garrett county by his parents and here the family resided for many years. After arriving at the age of manhood he became an employe of the late Henry Gassaway Davis here in Garrett county and remained in his employ with the exception of two years when he was Sheriff of Garrett county. In 1889 Mr. Riley with his family moved to Elkins with the Davis interests as lumber inspector for the West Virginia Central Railroad Co., which later became the Western Maryland Railway Company. Ten years ago he was retired by the railway company.

September 25, 1873, he was united in marriage to Maria Louise Browning, daughter of the late John L. Browning, of Garrett county, the ceremony being performed in Cumberland, and to this union four children were born: Mary Blanche, wife of H. N. Fredlock, of Elkins; Grace, wife of W. C. Hanwey, of Grafton; S. Bliss Riley, superintendent of motive power of the Western Maryland Railway at Hagerstown, and Nellie, deceased. Besides his wife and children he is also survived by two aged sisters, Mrs Missouri Welch and Mrs. Laura Flanigan, both of Deer Park, and a number of grandchildren. Mr. Riley was a life member of Hiram Lodge, No. 103, A., F. and A. M., at Westernport.

Funeral services were conducted at the family residence at Elkins Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. A. F. Richardson, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church officiating.

Purposes of Legion Auxiliary Are Explained

The regular monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, will be held in the K. of P. clubroom, on second floor, above Maryland theatre, on Tuesday, May 27, at 8 o'clock. All members and persons interested in becoming members of the auxiliary are urged to be present.

In order that people of the county might have a better understanding of what the Auxiliary stands for, the ideals, principles and purposes of the organization are explained by one of the members as follows:

The purposes and aims of the organization lie outside of itself in something bigger and of greater importance. Aiding to carry on the great task of caring for the 25,000 disabled World War veterans in government hospitals, and of other thousands who are still struggling to regain a place in civil life, is one of the first endeavors of the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary is also doing a very important work for the children of World War veterans, aiding thousands each year to receive the necessities of life. Units of the auxiliary throughout the country are working with their Posts for the betterment of their communities. They are establishing community center buildings, working for good roads, obtaining playgrounds, beautifying parks, sponsoring units of Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, aiding Boy Scout work, sponsoring the establishment of libraries and night schools, conducting health clinics, and aiding hospitals.

The auxiliary also stands ready to move to the relief of communities stricken by disaster. The principles and ideals upon which the American republic was founded and for which its men have shed their blood are high in the hearts of the women of the Auxiliary. They are working to keep patriotism part of the education of every child, to bring the citizens of America to a fuller realization of the responsibilities of citizenship in order that the American ideal of democratic government may not fail.

The purposes of the Auxiliary, then, are to help care for the disabled, to look after their children and the children of those who have died, to aid in the development of America, to raise a voice for the maintenance of its defenses, to assist in fostering its international friendships and to stand guard over its principles and ideals.

The local Auxiliary, just recently organized, feels that with a better understanding of the purposes of the national organization, people will more readily cooperate and want to take part in its work.

300-TON STONE CRUSHER COLLAPSES, KILLING ONE

Two Others Seriously Injured When Stone and Sand Bin Crashes In Grantsville Friday

Investigation is under way to determine the cause of the accident last Friday morning in which James Woods, aged 18, met death, and George Hale, aged 31, and Lawrence Dermer, aged 22, were injured, when a 300-ton stone and sand bin, approximately 30 feet high, crashed to the ground in rear of the National garage, Grantsville. Woods expired enroute to a hospital.

The two other men were treated in Grantsville by Dr. N. R. Davis and later taken to Frostburg where George Hale, State inspector for the State Roads commission, was admitted to the Miners' hospital, suffering with a badly lacerated right hand. Lawrence Dermer, Corriganville, was taken to his home suffering with a foot injury.

Talked With Father

Young Woods, the bin operator, was caught beneath the fall and his legs were frightfully crushed. He was also injured internally and was not extracted from the mass of stone and wood until more than an hour after the accident. He conversed with his father who was working nearby and told him, "I'm not badly hurt. Don't worry." The father was led from the scene and sent to his home in Lonaconing, later returnig to Frostburg with his wife to await his son's arrival. They were notified of his death some time after.

Hale was standing near a truck which was being loaded with crushed stone which is being used in the construction of a road between Grantsville and the Pennsylvania line. Hale made an attempt to escape but was caught by part of the load.

Dermer, truck driver employed by the Cumberland Contracting company, jumped from the truck but was caught.

H. B. McMahon, foreman of the construction work, together with other employes, were unable to account for the crash. It was believed by some that faulty angle irons supporting the bin gave way. Others thought that the foundation was not substantial and that after unloading sand from one side of the bin, the container became top heavy and collapsed on the stone side. The debris was cleared away before sundown and a new bin was put in place on Saturday.

JULY 3, 4, AND 5 SHOULD BE MADE BIG HOMECOMING

Carnival Company to Feature Rides and Dog and Pony Show

That Oakland's celebration on July 3, 4 and 5, under the auspices of the American Legion and Volunteer Fire department, should be made a great homecoming event for former Oakland residents, was emphasized by Neil Fraley, member of the committee in charge.

"Everyone in Oakland should write to his relatives asking them to return to Garrett county on those days," Mr. Frayer said. "and make this the greatest celebration that we have ever had."

It was definitely decided to hold the carnival in Sweeney's lot, on Third street, formerly the home of the Agricultural Fair, and it was announced that Keystone Attractions company, of Shamokin, Pa., would be on the grounds. They have a number of rides and feature a dog and pony show for children. There will also be free acrobatic exhibitions.

Harland Johnson, Baltimore, the State Commander of the American Legion, has accepted an invitation to be present on July 4.

Landscape Specialist Gives Suggestions for Beautification

Suggestions on how to beautify ones property by the planting of trees, shrubs, and flowers, were given to a number of Oakland people on Tuesday by W. R. Ballard, landscape specialist, of the University of Maryland extension service, who was brought here by the Oakland Civic club and County Agent Carter in connection with the Oakland Yard and Garden contest, now under way.

The committee is sorry that everybody in the contest could not be visited, as it was impossible to visit 250 people in the short space of five or six hours. The High school grounds were inspected and also the old Oakland hotel grounds and suggestions made as to improvement.

The judges in the contest are at work making their first inspection of the properties of entrants. "Already so much improvement has been noticed," Miss Lottie Loar, Civic Club president, stated, "and before the end of the summer we will all have so much of which to feel proud."

About sixty ministers and laymen were in attendance, representing Lutheran churches in West Virginia and portions of Garrett county. The reports of committees showed an encouraging increase in membership and also that the Synod had raised 74 per cent of its apportionment, which is slightly above the average in Lutheran churches of other synods.

The first annual convention of the Brotherhood was held in connection with the synodical convention, at which about 75 ministers and laymen were present. A banquet was tendered by members of the Charleston church. Kenneth R. Kreps, of Columbia, S. C., was the principal speaker.

Rev. Charles G. Aurand, Wheeling, was elected president of the Synod to succeed Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., of Fairmont, at the closing session of synod. Rev. Charles A. Shilke, Oakland, was named vice-president; Rev. C. A. Portz, Wheeling secretary; Mr. B. F. Becker, Huntington, statistical secretary, and Rev. Frank B. Herzel, Westernport, editor of the West Virginia Young Lutheran, a monthly publication. The synod will meet next year in Edgwood Lutheran church, at Wheeling.

Survived by Wife and Seven Children—Stanley Ashby Badly Cut and Bruised by Debris

Stephen Faherty, 56, a miner employed by the Stanley Coal company, at its mines near Crellin, four miles from Oakland, was instantly killed Saturday morning at 8 o'clock by a fall of rock, and Stanley Ashby, mine foreman, was caught by the same fall and badly bruised and cut.

Both men were completely covered with debris, the heavier load falling on Faherty. Ashby was removed by workmen almost immediately but it was approximately 15 minutes before the body of Faherty was uncovered.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, Rev. Fr. W. J. McVeigh, officiating. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery, Oakland.

The deceased is survived by his wife and seven children, Michael, Pierce, W. Va.; and Francis, Mary, John, Edward, William, and Robert, all of Crellin.

COUNTY-WIDE DEBATE TO BE HELD AT GRANTSVILLE

Superintendent Rathbun Sets June 10 as Tentative Date

That the county-wide debate among students of the high schools of Garrett county would probably be held at Grantsville on June 10, was announced yesterday by Mr. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent.

Local debates are being held in the various schools to determine the individual school winners, and when these are completed the winners of the three northern schools of the county—Grantsville, Accident and Friendsville—will debate against the three southern schools—Oakland, Kempton and Kitzmiller. The three northern schools will have the affirmative side of the question to be discussed.

The topic for debate is: "Resolved, That it should be the policy of our nation to increase the power of the Federal Government."

A small admission for the debate may be charged, the proceeds of which will be added to the total of $50 to be presented by the cashiers of the Garrett and First National Banks of Oakland. The prize money will be divided between the schools participating.

OAKLAND COUNCIL BEGINS COUNTY GOOD WILL TOUR

Local Officials and Citizens Visit At Kitzmiller On Tuesday

The first good-will trip of a county-wide tour planned by the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, was taken on Tuesday evening when the members of the official municipal body in company with other citizens motored to Kitzmiller and met with the Mayor and Town Council of that town.

The object of the tours, according to Mayor Grover Stemple, is to create good will and a better friendship between towns in Garrett county and to lend assistance to one another whenever possible.

Oakland representatives were met in Kitzmiller by Mayor McDonald, Mr. Pew, Robert Wilson, Mr. Pritts, Mr. Hamill and others, and a friendly meeting was held in the Health Center. Those attending from Oakland included Mayor Stemple, Councilmen J. W. Whorton, J. J. Ashby, R. T. Thayer, George Little and Howard Stuck; former Mayor L. M. Fraley; Delbert Davis, Rev. C. A. Shilke and E. R. Jones, as representatives of the Oakland Rotary Club.

Business problems confronting both Kitzmiller and Oakland were discused and also the effect of trade between the two towns after the completion of the new concrete road now in course of construction.

Other towns of the county will be visited by the municipal officers and representatives of the Rotary Club in the near future. At the conclusion of the series of visits it is planned to have all the city officials of towns visited to come to Oakland for a pleasure meeting.

Originally a stable, later a garage, which stood on the rear of the M. E. Parish House lot on Fifth street, was razed by workmen yesterday and the site whereon it stood will be beautified.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Baltimorc Observer)

Who now?

That is the question facing the Maryland Democrats who are determined to overthrow the Ritchie dynasty in the September primary if that be possible.

With Representative Stephen W. Gambrill finally stepping aside the picking of a candidate to take the place proffered him weeks ago is the big task at hand. Indications are that a ticket will be made up shortly with either former Mayor Howard W. Jackson or William M. Maloy at the head to do battle with the Governor and his big State machine.

There are differences of opinion in the ranks of the insurgents as to which of the two should be asked to make the race. Many think that Maloy would poll more votes in the counties and get a bigger total in the whole State than Jackson while others contend that Jackson would make a better run in the city than would Maloy because of his wider acquaintance made through his frequent campaigning in recent years. In any event, it is not to be denied that either of the two can give His Excellency great trouble in this period of dissatisfaction over the effort of the Governor and his appointees to stay in office for life.

In this paper last week it was indicated that Mr. Gambrill no longer was expected to run. While he has refrained from making a statement up to this time, the belief of those urging him to become a candidate is that he could not withstand the defeatist campaign conducted by the Ritchie office holders who have been besieging him.

For nearly seven weeks Mr. Gambrill considered the problem before coming to a definite conclusion. He was in the city last Saturday discussing the prospect. And from day to day without ceasing, those opposing the Ritchie regime tried to show him the possibility and even probability of victory. It was asserted that the opposition to the Governor, instead of dying down, has been growing more pronounced despite the claims of his beneficiaries.

Full State and Local Ticket is Advocated

Supporters of the proposal to make a finish fight against the renomination of the Governor intend to make a down-the-line contest in Baltimore City. The suggestion is to nominate for every office on the local ticket except in cases where incumbents support the insurgent cause. And, of course, this is predicted on there being a full State ticket in the field with the possibe exception of State Comptroller. As it is well known that the Governor does not want Comptroller Gordy as an associate on his own ticket and only accepted him at the demand of Frank A. Furst, there is a question as to whether a candidate should be placed in the field to oppose him. Much may depend on the attitude of Mr. Gordy. He is well liked and hence there is hesitancy in classing him with Ritchie, the head of the State machinc.

There are observing party men who express the view that such a fight as is now proposed would put the Governor in a bad plight. The ensuing bitterness might react in the general election should Ritchie win the primary, for the feeling is already becoming intense owing to the activity of the Governor's crowd in trying to prevent a contcst.

Certainly the Governor has never faced a contest with such forces as is now proposed. Four years ago when Maloy was in the field against him the Governor had Baltimore City all to himself, as there was no one to champion the opposition. And then Ritchie had Mahon and Kelly to hold the machine voters in line.

There is no onc to take the placc of Mahon and Kelly and the most effective of the surviving Democratic leadcrs in the city are either opposed to the Governor's renomination or are lukewarm. There is a widesprcad feeling that this year is to be one of every man for himself with no grcat, concern about the Governor. Some suggest that he can be cared for by the group of millionaires by whom he is now surrounded and who are expected to supply thc sinews of war. And as to cold cash the Governor is expectcd to have thc advantage.

Reports from some of the counties indicate that there, as here, the feeling among the Democrats is that it is to be a case of evcry man for himself, which means that there is no willingness to permit the Governor to drag down the local candidates.

Where, O Where Is Howard Bruce?

Although the State administration mouthpiece as far back as two weeks ago asserted that Howard Bruce, former Ritchie backer, was "on the verge" of making an announcement in the Governor's favor, no public word has come from him. He seems to have become stuck on the "verge" discovered by the reporter. He has had ample opportunity to climb back aboard the Ritchie conveyance but if he has done so he has said nothing about it. The inference is that the fourth term project still looks bad to the former National Committeeman.

There are those who seem to think that Mr. Bruce hopes the Governor will become disillusioned over the prospect ere the dog days and agree to retire. In such case, say these prognosticators, Mr. Bruce might be a candidate. But he would arouse no enthusiasm among those who have recently been searching for a candidate to oppose the Governor, for it is well known that he objected to Mr. Gambrill. Mr. Bruce has been silent ever since the withdrawal of Senator McIntosh early in April.

Eastern Shoremen Remaining Silent

No word of worth while encouragement comes from the Eastern Shore these days, despite the indorsement of the fourth term candidacy by former Governor Harrington. Business men who have traveled through that territory report that the hostility to the Governor is not abating and that there seems to be a set determination to ditch him regardless of anything else. But, of course, the Democrats over there want to know who is to be nominated by the Republicans. Indeed, that becomes a more and more insistent question.

In regard to the counties, friends of the Governor have been declaring that he did not expect anything much from them but would pin his hopes on Baltimore City where he has been seduiously cultivating certain groups regardless of political affiliations. He has been claiming political possession of two large sectarian groups and adding—or it has been added for him —"a lot of the niggers."

Second District Democrats Stewing Over Senate

There has been much stewing over the State Senatorial nomination in the Second District—among the Democrats—and one outcome of the stew was a confab of some of the Ritchie people in which they came to the conclusion to support former Senator George Arnold Frick, ardent wet and standpatter. Four years ago Mr. Frick was up for renomination but was bowled over by Ambrose J. Kennedy, backed by the late John J. Mahon, much to the displeasure of Francis P. Curtis, who had an eye of the nomination.

Already John G. Callan, wet, Sunday movies, and personal liberty advocate, is in the field for the Senatorial nomination and there was talk of both Mr. Kennedy, now Parole Commissioner, and Francis A. Michel. Mr. Cailan and Mr. Michel were both members of the last House of Delegates. We assume that Mr. Callan will remain in the fight despite the indorsement of Mr. Frick by the fourth term Democracy of the district, the most active head of which is Eugene H. Beer.

Then we hear that Fendall Marbury, a member of the last (or present) House of Delegates, has also been aspiring to a seat in the Statc Senate and there is nothing, as we see it, to prevent him from going in unless it be his devotion to His Excellency and unwillingness to seem to be breaking up the latter's little party in the district.

But it is a long time to the primary. Candidates made today can be unmade although we do not think Mr. Frick will be unmade with his own consent. He dearly loves life in the Maryland Senate.

Republicans Still Inspcct the Field

Republican leaders continue to consider the possibilities of the various clegibles in their party for Governor, meanwhile breathing a deep sigh of relief that Reprcscntative Gambrill is not a Democratic candidate. The Republicans want Ritchie as their opponent and some of thcm said they considercd Gambrill the only man thcy could not beat this year. They seem to think Ritchie an easy mark and have been gloating over the prospcct of getting another shot at him.

Reports from the big three, Senator Goldsborough, National Committceman Jackson, and State Chairman Tait indicate that they are not convinced that Mayor Broening would prove the best candidate that might be nominated. Recent tactics on the part of the chief Ritchie ncwspaper mouthpiece indicate the line of attack on the Mayor by the fourth term Democrats should he become the G. O. P. nominee. So the leaders seek to get a candidate who cannot be kept on the defensive as Ritchie himself must be—if finally renominated. A candidate who has to defend and explain cannot do much attacking, it is argued, and it will be sought to keep the Governor doing the explaining and defending from start to finish.

Senator Robb still has a lightning rod pointing to the skies while the Mayor's followers in the City Hall from day to day represent him as on the verge of making an announcement of his candidacy. But whatever faults the Mayor may have he has not the onc of talking too much and he can sit quietly and think and think longer than almost any other Republican in Maryland.

Reports coming this way indicate that Mr. Robb would receive a large vote from the women on the prohibition question and it is now understood by keen observers that Ritchie has in his present term lost much of the feminine support which has been a mainstay. We do not offer any explanation of this but it is a known fact and one hears of it almost every day whenever inquiry is made of groups of women. Possibly the Governor, not yet fifty-five, is getting to look too old. Certainly to the casual observer he appears much older than his official biography says he is. Probably this is due to his hair, now almost snow white, made so by the cares of state, the battle for higher alcoholic content, the Chesapeake bay bridge project, the political antics of Brooke Lee, et cetera.

It may be that now that women are becoming used to the ballot they are paying less attention to mere pulchritude. But, say what one may, the Governor is no longer strong with the women.

Going back to Republican candidates, there are some who think the Republicans would do weil to get a judge to run, but there are not many Republican judges in Maryland just now. In this connection the one most mentioned is D. Lindlcy Sloan of Cumberland, who has said that the Gubernatorial bee has never bitten him. It does not appear that Judge Urner of Frederick could be coaxed in. He feels too comfortable in his present position, probably. And we hear that Judge Robert F. Duer of Somerset, mentioned some time back, is out of it definitely, owing to circumstances.

TWO KINDS FLIERS NOT DESIRABLE IN MARYLAND

They Are Flies and Mosquitoes, Health Department States

In spite of the interest in air travel, two kinds of fliers are not wanted in Maryland this season. Flies and mosquitoes. Singly and collectively, these winged pests are enemies of mankind, without distinction as to age, sex, color, or social status.

The indictments against them, drawn up in due form by the disease fighters of the Maryland State Department of Health and concurred in by health authorities throughout the world, present the following facts:

Flies breed in filth; they fly from filth to food; they carry disease germs from sick to well; they contaminate milk, butter, meat—everything they touch—the baby's food and yours; they spread the germs of diarrhea and dysentery; of typhoid and tuberculosis.

Mosquitoes cause sleepless, restless nights by their buzzing and biting, they frazzle the nerves and wear the resistance, of their victims, to disease. The murderous members of the tribe do all of these things and in addition inject into the blood of their victims the germs of breakbone fever, of malaria and of the deadly yellow fever. (Fortunately few, if any, of the yellow fever variety include Maryland in their itineraries.)

Because these things are as they are, action against the invaders is urged by the Director of the State Department of Health, Dr. R. H. Riley, as follows:

1. Get rid of the breeding places of both flies and mosquitoes.

2. Swat each fly that comes within reach. Flies breed so rapidly that one single pair may have several million descendants in a season.

3. Flies breed in manure. Don't allow manure to accumulate. It should be spread out at least once a week during the summer. Advice in regard to special treatment can be had by writing to the State College of Agriculture, College Park, Maryland.

4. Flies feed on garbage and filth. Use a covered pail; either burn or bury the garbage.

5. Screen the kitchen, your dining room and your sleeping rooms against them. The same screens will keep out mosquitoes.

6. Flies carry filth from outhouses to food within doors. Have sanitary outhouses. Write to the State Department of Health, 2411 North Charles Street, Baltimore, for a plan of one.

As to mosquitoes:

1. Mosquitoes lay their eggs on the surface of stagnant water. A very small amount of water is all they need. Old tin cans and other rubbish answer their purpose as well as a whole stream. GET RID OF THE BREEDING PLACES. Bury the tin cans and other rubbish if you can't get rid of them otherwise.

2. Oil your stagnant streams. Your health officer will tell you how and what to do.

3. Do it now.

An Interesting Fact.

Maryland Privateers

The casual reader of history may lightly pass over the part played by Maryland and Marylanders in the trying days of 1775 and until the end of the great conflict with Great Britain, especially in regard to naval operations.

From Andrews History of Maryland we learn that in 1775 there was still bope on the part of some members of Congress that their friends in the mother country would secure redress of their grievances. But as time went on the conditions became intolerable, it was found necessary to create a naval force to insure the success of the Colonies. In that year Congress authorized the construction and equipment of thirteen vessels as the nucleus of a Continental navy. But it was after the outbreak of hostilities that the State of Maryland became engaged in fitting out all types of vessels for operation in the Chesapeake, having for their object the ridding of the Bay of the smaller vessels of the British, as well as for privateering on the high seas.

The operation of privately armed vessels was authorized by Congress in 1776, but the subject had been previously passed upon by the Council of Safety of Maryland, and from April 1, 1777 to 1783 no less than 259 privateers were launched against British commerce. French, Dutch and Spanish capital was secured for the equipment of these Maryland Privateers and many of the fortunes of old Baltimore Town were founded upon these ventures. They inflicted great damage on the enemy, and helped no doubt to make war unpopular with the merchants of Great Britain.

However, Maryland seamen did not confine their activities alone to the capture of merchant prizes, but did battle with armed war vessels whenever opportunity arose. It was while in command of a vessel in this conflict that the Marylander, Joshua Barney, won everlasting renoun by capturing the British "General Monk", which was better manned and better equipped than Barney's vessel. The "General Monk" had once been the "General Washington", which had been captured by Admiral Arbuthnot and placed in the British service. Barney restored the old name, and with it defeated a British privateer in a naval duel in the West Indias. On account of the Maryland privateers, Baltimore was alluded to by British merchants and press as a "nest of pirates."

Without the aid of the Maryland privateers, the outcome of the war would have been in doubt.

The Kingwood Bicycle club plans to visit Oakland and ride on the fine roads around this place. The club has a membership of fifteen.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop's Assistant
(Scoop being overcome with heat this week)

This is sort o' between seasons on the mountains. According to the usual reckoning Spring is here. But really Old Probabilities has been cutting up something scandalous during the past week and a few of the expert gardeners, who had it in their minds to beat the other fellow to it when it came to producing early vegetables, are having the doubtful pleasure of putting in the second planting of beans, as Mr. Frost silently stole in the other night and harvested the first crop. The damage, however, was slight, and from press reports no heavier than in other sections of the country. Cottages are being opened for the summer, lawns trimmed, flowers and shrubbery planted, many houses are being painted, and Jake and Nelse have (about) completed the bridge of sighs at Scoop's Lover's Retreat. We called at The Republican office to see if any of the force could give us an item that would be interesting for this column. As is usual in a printing office, they knew nothing. Ben was back in his corner hunched over his linotype trying to work and at the same time keep his watchful eye on the force, smoking his usual El Ropo cigar; Mose, with his plumb line and level, was setting up a job for a Pittsburgh concern; George was hustling for copy and looking for the Sunday School lesson for Mose; Grace was reading proof and Marie was apparently hunting for something she had lost in the type case. Everyone is really too busy to make news.

Lesson for June 1

CONTRAST BETWEEN FIATHFULNESS AND SLOTHFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing the Best for Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Rule for Promotion.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Use Our Talents.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Service.

This parable, like that of the ten virgins, has a vitnl relationship to the second coming of Christ. In both instances the unpreparedness for His coming on the part of the people is shown. In that of the ten virgins their unreadiness consisted in their lack of the inward life—absence ot the Holy Spirit. In this of the talents, their failure was properly to use the gifts which God had entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was fnilure to work. To each of His servants, God entrusted certain gifts and will hold each responsible for their use. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as gifts of God—physical strength, renson, energy, knowledge, influence, time, money, the gift of speech and song.

I. The Distribution of the Talents (vv. 14, 15).

1. It was a sovereign act.

The Lord called His own servants and distributed to them His own money. He did not consult us as to our gifts. The One who created us and absolutely owns us has assigned us our place and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. "According to his severnl ability."

The God who created us knew our ability to use gifts, therefore made the distribution upon that basis.

3. It was a purposeful act.

The talents were given to be traded with, not to be used for one's own gain and profit, but as stock in trade for the enrichment and glory of the Master.

II. The Employment of the Talents (vv. 16-18).

All the servants recognized that the talents were not their own; that they were therefore responsible to the Lord for the use made of them. This is the first principle of right Christian service. We should remember that we are all stewards of the manifold blessings and grace of God.

2. Two servants used their talents. The five-talent man put his to use and gained five more, and the two-talent man put his two talents to use and gained two more. This shows that God's gifts can be increased. The exercise of nny gift increases it. The faithful use of what we have in the place where we nre will prepare us for greater usefulness nnd honor.

3. The one hid his talent.

The fact that one possesses but one talent should not discourage him, but rather make him strive the more. God does not reward according to what we possess, but according to our faithfulness. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him.

III. The Accounting for the Talents (vv. 19-30).

1. Its certainty (v. 19).

There is a day coming when all must give account of their stewardship. Answer must be given as to the use made of God's gifts.

2. The time (v. 19).

It will be at the coming of the Lord.

3. Judgments announced (vv. 21-30).

(1) Reward of the faithful (vv. 21-23).

a. Praise. "Well done." All like to be praised. How blessed it will be to hear from the lips of the Lord Himself, "Well done." b. Promotion. The great consideration for all is not how many talents we possess, but as to how faithful we are in their use. (2) Punishment of the faithless (vv. 24-30). The one-talent man lied when brought to account. a. Reproach. "Thou wicked and slothful servant." To be called lazy is a reproach disliked even by a lazy man. b. Stripped. "Take therefore the talent from him." Even the talent which had been given to him was now wrenched from him. c. Cast out. "Cast into outer darkness." This servant was condemned on his own ground. The very fact that he knew the character of his Lord should have been an incentive for him to have exerted himself.

They Would Come

If we were once to live as though we had something that they (the unbelievers) have not, we would not have to press men to come to us; they would come without pressing.—F. B. Meyer.

With Christ

Without Christ life is as the twilight with dark night ahead; with Christ it is the dawn of morning with the light and warmth of full day ahead.—Philip Schaff.

MODERN FARMERS UNDERSTAND AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING

By SAMUEL WESLEY LONG
Publicity Director, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Federation.

WHILE the trend is increasingly in the direction of specialization by those engaged in the professions, and industry, commerce and business, the scope of things of which the farmer must have a working knowledge is steadily widening.

The agriculturist, as he is sometimes called, must understand not only the fundamentals of farming, but also a lot about machinery, its operation and maintenance. The spread of rural electrification, with the use of electric current for farm purposes, makes it necessary that the farmer increase his range of knowledge by learning the rudiments, at least, of electricity and its application on the farm and in the dairy. Also, the modern farmer must be somewhat of a chemist, though he would hesitate to lay claim to such a title. Soils, fertilizers and other things essential to farming, however, require that the husbandmen have an acquaintance with chemistry.

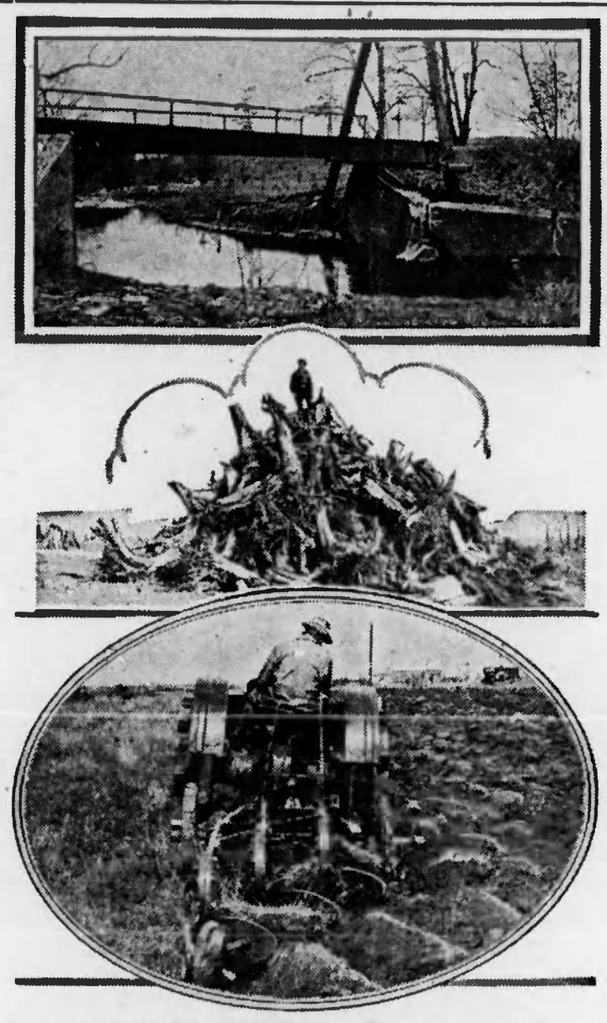
Among the demands made on the present-day farmer is that for a practical understanding of agricultural engineering. Along with the miner, the quarryman and the civil engineer, the tiller of the soil has found it necessary to acquire knowledge of the uses of explosives. Like an engineer, the farmer must study and solve drainage problems and rid his fields of stumps and boulders as is done in the case of the clearing of the right of way for a railroad or a highway. Knowing how to use dynamite and prompt action have saved many a farmer's crops from flood waters. Stones blasted in fields are used to fill in soft spots in lanes and otherwise for roads or as material for the foundations of small farm buildings.

Ponds or reservoirs for the storage of water to be used in case of fire have been made with dynamite by farmers in many localities where the fire apparatus of nearby towns serves rural districts in emergencies. Good fishing has been assured by some farmers by blasting both shallow and deep pools in streams running through their lands. Patches of swamp near farmhouses have been drained to eliminate the breeding places of mosquitoes.

Dynamite is used on many farms to correct the courses of meandering creeks and brooks that menace crops or make swamp of good pasture lands. Quite a number of highway bridges have been saved by putting streams back in their channels where the direction of flow of the water had been so changed by erosion of the banks as to endanger the approaches and abutments of the bridges.

Numbers of county agricultural agents are qualified to advise with farmers on the uses of explosives as they do in other matters affecting farm problems. Agricultural colleges also are sources of information relative to dynamite and its effectual and economical applications. In short, the handling of explosives is now a recognized farm practice.

Other qualifications of the many-sided American farmer include business acumen both in buying and selling, knowing something of his legal rights and responsibilities, ability to "doctor" a sick horse and being able to put a shingle roof on a chicken house. He must know almost as much about the weather as a sailor and be as ready to take advantage of market conditions as a Wall Street "bear."



Fewer but larger fields permit the use of modern farm machinery. Top—The stream that destroyed this massive concrete bridge abutment was put back in its original straight course by blasting with dynamite. Center—"Tramp" stumps removed from the cultivated fields of a moderate-sized farm.

GRANTSVILLE

Operetta A Success

The Operetta, "In the Garden of the Palace of Carelessness," presented by sixty pupils of the elementary school, in the W. O. W. hall, Friday night, under the direction of Miss Ruth Conley, assisted by other teachers, was the outstanding musical event given by the Grantsville schools this year. The characters were well presented, the songs and dances were artistically rendered, and the costumes and scenery were beautiful. A large and appreciative audience was present.

Teachers' Bridge Club

Misses Lena Hamburg and Myrn Custer jointly entertained at bridge at the home of Mrs. John Zehner on Thursday night. Five tables were in play. The prize was won by Mr. Raney, high, and Miss Fern Folk, second. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raney, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Leatherman, Misses Fern and Helen Folk, Vivian Powers, Ercelle Giles, Alverta Miller, Leona Clark, Velora Swauger; Messrs, Edgar and Charles Stanton, George Hale, Gordon Taylor, Clifton Jeffries and Frank Getty. A delicious luncheon was served.

Memorial Day

The Memorial Day program for Salisbury, Grantsville and vicinity has been completed by the Earl H. Opel Post, No. 459, American Legion. The graves will be decorated on Thursday, May 29.

Memorial services will begin at New Germany, at 8 a. m., where the regular Legion ceremony will be carried out.

PROPER PLANTING MADE THIS HOME A WINNER

Proper planting of trees, shrubs and flowers won for Mr. W. Leslie Haley, garden enthusiast of Sioux City, Iowa, first prize in the National 1929 Yard and Garden contest (estate class). This class was open to home properties in the improvement and beautification of which expert gardeners were employed.

The grounds are laid out in English style, but native varieties of trees and shrubs are used almost entirely. The resultant effect is quite simple, almost naturalistic. Plantings are kept well to boundaries. A wide expanse of open lawn forms a pleasing background for the residence, which is kept as the dominant feature of the picture.

So attractive and livable are the Haley grounds that in season the members of the family spend a large part of their days and evenings out of doors. Their outdoor dining table is set in the midst of blooming flowers and shrubs. Friends are frequently entertained on the lawn.

Prior to winning in the national contest these beautiful home grounds had been awarded first place in the Sioux City contest.

DIED

MRS. L. B. C. LIST

The funeral services for Mrs. L. B. C. List, who passed away last Thursday afternoon in the Lynchburg Memorial Hospital, Lynchburg, Va., from injuries sustained May 15 in an automobile mishap near that city, were conducted Saturday morning in Wheeling, Rev. J. H. A. Bumberger, rector of St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church, officiated. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. List, widow of the late Harry W. List, was a former resident of Mt. Lake Park, having conducted the Loch Lynn hotel for a number of years, from the time of its erection until it was destroyed by fire in 1916. Prior to that time, in 1890, she operated various boarding houses of the Park.

Of late years she founded the Virginian Inn at Winter Park, Fla., which she operated during the winter months, and during the summer was hostess at the Hotel Raymond at Eaglesmere, Pa. She was en route to the latter resort, via Washington, when the accident which resulted in her death occurred.

JOHN LEWIS BRENNEMAN

The funeral of Mr. John Lewis Brenneman, whose accidental death last week shocked the entire community, took place from his residence at Mountain Lake Park, Friday, the 23rd, in the afternoon. Rev. Middaugh, pastor of the Park M. E. church, and Rev. Jessee, of the Loch Lynn U. B. church, officiated. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Brenneman was born near Bittinger, Garrett county, on February 22, 1872, and resided in his native county until the day of his death. He was united in marriage with Miss Maude DeWitt, likewise a life-long resident of Garrett county, on September 15, 1897. Four children have blessed their union: Aubrey Charles, who resides at Hoyes, the place of his mother's birth; Mrs. Beryle Beckman and Miss Maeleta Brenneman, Cumberland, and Miss Rozelle Brenneman, who resides at home, all of whom were present at the funeral of their father.

Kindly in his disposition, charitable toward the foibles of human nature, a devoted husband and father, John Brenneman was a good citizen. Death has removed a true type of American manhood.

MRS. JANE LIPSCOMB

The funeral services of Mrs. Jane Lipscomb, who passed away last Sunday, May 25, took place at her home in the Bethlehem settlement Tuesday morning. Rev. Barnhouse, of Deer Park, officiated. Interment in the Harvey cemetery.

Of the seven children born of her marriage there survives, Mr. P. T. Lipscomb, of Loch Lynn; Mrs. Josiah Beckman, Mrs. Hulda Schooley, Mrs. Sarah A. Rodeheaver, and Miss Minnie F. Lipscomb.

Mrs. Lipscomb, of a strong and sturdy character, possessing endearing qualities of American womanhood, was truly a representative of the pioneer Maryland families. A devoted wife and mother, a woman of sterling Christian qualities, unswerving in the path of duty, her circle of friends was limited only by her acquaintanceship. She will be missed in her community.

VOLUME 54. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, JUNE 5, 1930. NUMBER 16.

JUDGE D.L.SLOAN DELIVERS CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Full Text of Jurist's Address to Body When Sworn in for Service Monday Morning.

The June Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court convened Monday morning at ten o'clock with Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan presiding.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned, foreman, and his fellow-members of the Grand Jury were sworn in by Clerk E. Z. Tower, after which Judge Sloan delivered his charge, the full text of which appears below:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury, some of you I know are familiar with the duties of grand jurors, but though you may be familiar with these requirements it is my duty, at the opening of each term of the court to formally charge the grand jury with respect to the performance of their duties.

In the administration of the law, in the preservation of the peace and the promotion of the good of society generally there is no more important function than that performed by the grand jury. It is your duty as grand jurors to investigate offenses against the peace and good order of society which may have arisen since the last grand jury, although you are not confined in point of time to offenses since that date but may pursue investigations if necessary back of that time. It is important, of course, to those against whom charges may be brought that they be fairly and impartially investigated that justice may be done offenders, and it is due to society generally that they be fully investigated in order that the peace and good order of the state may be preserved.

On the strict enforcement of the criminal or penal laws of the state society depends for its safety. In this way the person and property of the law-abiding citizen is best protected and to have these powers put in the hands of grandjuries who are gathered from all over the county is certainly a tremendous instrument for good or evil and the peace of society and of the community is best preserved by a strict compliance with the duties imposed upon you which are fully covered in the oath administered to your foreman at length and to which each of you has subscribed. The performance of the things required of you by that oath is all that society has a right to demand and it is all that the one against whom charges may be brought has a right to expect.

Harry W. McComas Succumbs To Lingering Illness

Harry W. McComas, aged 43, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. McComas, Oakland, succumbed to a lingering illness on Monday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, at the home of his parents. He had just returned from Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, where he had been under the constant care of a physician for a number of weeks, and it was thought that he had improved in health. Upon his first day at home, however, he developed pneumonia from which he was unable to rally.

The deceased had been in poor health since 1918 and had sought relief in Arizona for several years without success.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from the home, Rev. Archibald Moore, officiating, assisted by Rev. B. T. Trevey. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his wife and step-son, Immohr Hamill; his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. McComas; two brothers R. C. McComas and Henry W. McComas, Jr.; and two sisters, Mrs. Edward C. Lawrence and Mrs. Paul McIntire, all of Oakland.

Pallbearers were Ralph Thayer, Wilbur Davis, Max Jarboe, Fred Cropp, Cheston Browning and Paul Naylor, members of the same Sunday School class which the deceased attended.

Flower bearers included Cecil Smith, W. W. Dawson, L. M. Fraley, W. D. Casteel, William Gibson, T. A. Gonder, D. R. Sincell, Alva Gortner, Judson Loar, W. H. Hinebaugh, Percy Frantz, Fred Peddicord, Dr. W. W. Grant, Harold Harned, Carl Brown, Milton Sincell, Wellington Yutzy, Frank Smouse, W. A. Sturgiss, and Bernard Gonder.

POPULATION OF GARRETT COUNTY IS NOW 19,266

County Has Lost 212 Since 1920 —Farms Have Decreased

Unofficial returns in the Fifteenth Census, announced by John J. Stump, supervisor of the First Maryland District, give Garrett county's population at 19,266, a loss of 212 since 1920 when the population was 19,678. The population of Allegany county is 77,604, and that of Washington county 65,739.

The number of farms enumerated in Garrett county was 1760 as compared with 1893 enumerated in 1920. These figures showed a loss of 133 farms, due in a large measure, it was explained, to the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric company's project which flooded quite a large territory. The number of farms also decreased in Allegany county, but gained in Washington county.

The figures for Garrett county for the last thirty years are as follows:

1920	19,678
1910	20,105
1900	17,701
Farms in 1930	1,760
Farms in 1920	1,893

Plans Progressing for Homecoming Celebration July 3, 4, and 5

Plans are progressing for the homecoming celebration on July 3, 4, and 5, under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and the American Legion, according to Neil Fraley, in charge.

Letters of acceptance are coming in from a number of Legion Drum Corps and fire departments throughout this vicinity, and it is expected that the parades on the fourth and fifth will surpass anything of this character in the past.

Committees are still at work in search of more entertainment for the great number of people who are expected to be in Oakland on these three days.

MAYOR W. F. BROENING IS CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Baltimore Mayor Announces His Candidacy for the Republican Nomination In September

Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, last night announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor of Maryland.

The announcement of the Baltimore executive has been expected for some time in political circles, and is the first to come from Republican ranks, though several other party leaders with powerful support have been mentioned as possible candidates.

Two Candidates in Field

Mr. Broening's action brings two candidates for the governorship into the open, one from each party, Governor Ritchie having announced his candidacy for a fourth term several weeks ago.

The Mayor's announcement was made in a statement issued from his office at the city hall, with Edward E. Hargest, Jr., chairman of the Republican city committee and his chief backer present.

Whether or not Mr. Broening will gain the party nomination without a struggle in the state convention, early in September, is still a matter of much conjecture among party leaders who expect other entrants in the race for Republican nomination. One of these expected entrants is former state Senator David A. Robb, of Cumberland, whose name has continually been brought to the fore as a candidate.

Alexander Armstrong, of Hagerstown, former attorney general and candidate for governor has received the endorsement of the Washington county State Central Committee, but has made no formal announcement of his candidacy.

Leaders Withhold Comment

Broening's statement did not elicit any great disturbance among the so called party leaders in the state. Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, titular head of the party in Maryland, refused to comment, while Galen L. Tait, collector of internal revenue and chairman of the Republican State Central Committee issued a five-line statement in which he said he would take no stand, feeling it the chairman's part "not to select but to elect the Republican candidate for governor."

William P. Jackson, of Salisbury, Republican national committeeman for Maryland, also refused to make a statement. He was a member of the group to which Broening belonged which won a factional struggle preceding the last presidential election.

In Public Life Thirty Years

Mr. Broening has been in public life for more than 30 years. He has twice been elected mayor, twice state's attorney for Baltimore and served in both the legislature and city council.

He was a candidate for attorney general at the last state election, and though defeated by Thomas H. Robinson, the democratic candidate, ran far ahead of the rest of the ticket.

In his statement of announcement, Mayor Broening said he had received messages from all parts of the state urging his candidacy. No mention was made in his announcement of the offices on the ticket which the Republicans must put in the field, including that of the attorney general, clerk of the court of appeals and state comptroller. The mayor said he would support the party platform which will be adopted at the state convention.

Deer Killed On Highway

A deer, apparently about a year old, was killed on the highway at a point midway between Rainbow Inn and Deep Creek bridge sometime last Friday night, the carcass being discovered early Saturday morning by a gang of road workmen as they were on their way to Oakland. The find was reported at once to Game Warden Haulenbeek who got into communication with State Game Warden Le Compte, who directed that the meat be sent to some hospital for consumption by the inmates.

Oakland Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was visited last night by the officers of the Grand Chapter of the State, the guests of the local organization coming from many sections of Maryland. Entertainment was afforded the visitors at the Chapter Hall during the evening, which was both pleasant and profitable.

CONCRETE SHOULDERS TO BE BUILT ON 3D AND OAK

Chairman of State Roads Commission States that Work will Soon Be Advertised

Three foot shoulders on each side of the concrete on Third and Oak streets will be built within the next few weeks, according to a letter received this morning by R. T. Thayer, president of the Town Council of Oakland, from G. Clinton Uhl, chairman of the State Roads Commission of Maryland, the work to be done at the expense of the State. The letter to Mr. Thayer was as follows:

With reference to the shouldering of the two streets in Oakland, which we talked about some time ago. I brought this before the Commission and we have agreed to do what you suggested, that is, put a three-foot shoulder on each side at Third and Oak streets, for adistance of about 3,300 feet. This work will be advertised shortly.

G. C. UIIL, Chairman.

The work will include Third street from Crook to Alder; and Oak street from First to Second, railroad bridge to Third, and from Fourth to Eighth.

A check-up on the amount of traffic over these two streets was made a few months ago, and the result of this check-up showed that the city of Oakland was justified in asking that shoulders be placed there by the Commission.

John C. Forman, Oakland, who was found guilty by a jury in the Somerset county, Pa., court on a charge of false pretense and fraudulent conversation, was sentenced to pay the costs and to serve not less that 18 months nor more than three years in the county jail.

Forman, who was a solicitor for the Keystone Marble Works of Meyersdale, Pa., turned in and collected his commission on about $2,000 worth of monumental work, which he claimed to have secured orders for, but after Lintz and Cook, the proprietors, did the work they discovered that the orders for it were bogus, the alleged customers denying that they gave Forman any contracts to have executed.

The three northernmost schools of the county will have the affirmative side of the question and the order of their appearance will be as follows: Carl Everly, Luther Miller and Nina Friend.

The negative side of the question will be taken up first by John Vopodivec, who will be followed by Joseph Sollars and Robert Turek, respectively.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL DISCUSS FLOOD DANGERS

May Erect Bridge and Retaining Wall for Wilson Creek

The proposition for erecting a concrete bridge across Wilson Creek, in rear of the Oakland Model Bakery, and a retaining wall from that point to Third street, was favorably discussed at the regular meeting of the Mayor and Town council, held Monday night at the City hall.

No definite action on the proposed measure will be taken, however, until a committee of citizens has met with the Town council at the point in question, and the plan discussed, according to Grover C. Stemple, mayor. The proposition is a flood prevention measure. and if carried out would insure a greater safety to the merchants of that section of the town, and also to the people of the town, Mr. Stemple stated.

The proposed bridge would replace the old wooded structure directly in rear of the Bakery and would be able to take care of an increased amount of water in case of heavy rams.

Street Improvements

A number of street improvements for completion during the next few months was announced, and included Water street, Green street and Alder street.

All of Water street is to be improved, Green street between Fifth and Sixth will be graded and improved, and shoulders will be built on Alder street. All streets of Oakland will be oiled and screened this month.

The passing of the monthly bills occupied the remainder of the meeting. The next regular meeting will be held on July 7.

TWENTY-ONE INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Inquisitorial Body Adjourned Yesterday After 3-Day Session—Criminal Cases Monday

Twenty-one indictments and presentments were returned by the June Term Garrett County Grand Jury, which adjourned yesterday afternoon following a session of three days in which 67 witnesses were brought before the body and subjected to examination. Due to the illnes of State's Attorney J. C. Renninger, A. T. Matthews had been appointed acting representative of the State on Friday.

The criminal docket will be called on Monday, June 9, at ten o'clock, when Judge Albert A. Doub will be on the bench.

Following is the report of the grand jury:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland:—

The Grand Jury for the June Term, 1930, of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, respectfully reports to the Court that we have been in session for the past three days and that during this time we have to the best of our ability inquired into all violations of the criminal laws and have endeavored to faithfully perform all of the duties incumbent upon us as Grand Jurors.

We have examined 67 witnesses and have found indictments in all cases which we believe the evidence presented warranted such finding.

We have examined the records in the several county offices and are pleased to report that they are kept in a neat, proper and systematic manner and we desire to commend the officers in charge for the courteous and efficient manner in which they conduct the business and affairs of their respective offices.

We are glad to note the cleanly condition of the Court House and commend the janitor for the manner in which he discharges his duties.

We find the Sheriff's residence and Jail in a clean, sanitary condition and the prisoners well and comfortably provided for.

We desire to commend Sheriff Casteel and his deputy for the efficient and able manner in which they have conducted the affairs of the Sheriff's office.

We very deeply regret that serious illness has prevented Mr. Renninger's attendance at this term and we desire to express to him our best wishes and we sincerely trust that he may have a complete and speedy recovery.

We recommend that the Jail porch be painted, the receiving room of the Jail be papered; that a mail box be attached to the door of the Treasurer's office and that the window sash in the women's waiting room be puttied.

We desire also to express to Mr. Asa T. Matthews, our acting State's Attorney, deep appreciation for the very able services which he has rendered in assisting us to properly inquire into violations of the law; we are fully cognizant of the great handicap under which he labored in not having advance information relative to witnesses who were summoned to appear before the Grand Jury. We wish to commend the able manner in which Mr. Matthews conducted the examination of witnesses appearing before us.

We extned to His Honor, Judge D. L. Sloan, our appreciation and sincere thanks for the considerate and courteous treatment he has accorded us.

We now respectfully beg to be discharged.

JOSEPH E. HARNED, Foreman.
ALLEN J. BENDER,
ROBERT E. HARVEY, Clerks.

Memorial Day Is Observed With Appropriate Service

Despite the coolness of the day, quite a number of people were in attendance at the Memorial Day service held last Friday at the Oakland cemetery, beside the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The parade, consisting of the Gilber-Brown Boys' band, American Legion, Civil and Spanish-American War veterans, Boy Scouts and Knights of Pythias, marched through the principal streets of Oakland and disbanded at the cemetery where the graves of the deceased were decorated, following the blowing of "taps."

Rev. Archibald Moore then delivered an address on the significance of the day which completed the program. Capt. James A. Hayden and Tom Nethkin were the only Civil War veterans in the parade, while William Rice was the only Spanish-American war veteran. All three were driven to the cemetery by Sheriff W. D. Casteel.

Flag Raising at Jennings

There will be a flag raising exercise at the Jennings school on Sunday, June 8, at 2:30 o'clock. The American Legion Post of Salisbury, Pa., will be in charge. The Legion drum corps of that post will be present. The public is cordially invited to attend.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

Democrats who are unwilling to swallow the Governor's fourth term program are much up in the air as to a program, now that Representative Gambrill has failed them.

Some advocate the entry of ex-Mayor Jackson as the opponent of the Governor. Some think William M. Maloy would be a more formidable candidate. Some think a State-wide primary fight would be a waste of effort and money and that the best thing is to stand aside and let the Governor and his crowd win again—if they can.

There are many who think the Governor's chance to win is not only small but is becoming less and less as the bitterness grows. This despite the reports put out by the Ritchie people—and Ritchie himself—that he is getting stronger every day. We do not see any evidences of his strength.

Mr. Jackson is said to be willing to make a fight and could gather around him much support in the city. As to the counties there is scant information. There Mr. Maloy is better known than is the former Mayor.

All the reports we have received from the counties are of the same tenor—that Ritchie is to be given rough treatment at the polls. Some of the most discourgaing reports are brought in by Ritchie's most ardent admirers who say that it is a shame that he should sacrifice his chance of national preferment by running for Governor again—and meeting defeat. But the Governor evidently hears little of this. His enemies do not care to tell him as they are willing to see him go down, and his friends do not dare to state the facts.

Republican Cake
Still In the Dough

The Republican cake is still nothing but dough. Leaders look and look, think and consider. The values or probable values of candidates are all weighed. In the City Hall the Broening people shout and talk and tell you that the Mayor will make an announcement in a few days. They have been saying this for months, evidently without any authority so to do. Those who try to pump the Mayor get nothing. He blinks his eyes and looks out of the window.

From the Eastern Shore we get a report this week that the Mayor is very strong over there. Maybe not strong for himself but as compared with His Royal Highness at Annapolis. In short, there seems to be a feeling among the average country people that Broening Is closer to them than is Mr. Ritchie. And over there he is more discussed than any other possible Republican candidate.

A story was published the other day asserting that Senator Goldsborough wanted Federal Judge Soper to resign his life time position and run for Governor. The two are friends and it was Goldsborough who first made Soper a judge. But we do not understand that the suggestion appeals to the Judge, who has made plans to go to Europe in July for a vacation.

Many who know the Judge well say that he is the right type of man to clean house at Annapolis and set things in proper shape for a successor. He is a man of ability and would command public confidence. But giving up a life position—a certainty—for an uncertainty Is another matter. They do not usually do it.

Next we get a report that Mr. Goldsborough wants ex-Senator Weller to run, which report we don't believe any more than we believe that the moon is made of green cheese. And that Mr. Weller would be willing to run no one who knows him can believe. Why should he want the Lowndes-France crowd get another shot at him? They managed to do enough to him in 1926 and the ex-Senator well remember's that fray. Besides that, the ex-Senator is now old enough to appreciate the benefits of getting rid of worries. Just now he is said to be getting a deal of satisfaction in secing that Senator Goldsborough has all the worry of trying to get a satisfactory candidate for the Governorship. We assume that Weller will be willing to back any man who has a chance of winning the general election.

Now and then someone mentions H. Webster Smith, but many say he Is not well enough known. He doesn't mix around. So many people do not know what he looks like or what he would or could do on the stump. Possibly he would do all right, but who can vouch for it?

The talk of C. Wilbur Miller all went up in smoke or hot air. He is busy making acids—and money for a rainy day. He Is not a politician. He cares more for horse shows and such things.

Ex-Senaor Robb has plenty of backers and the greatest objection to him comes from the extreme wets who think he would enrage their kind. They think, apparently, that the State—or partlcularly Baltimore City, is wetter than it really is. When asked about the Pinchot business they fail to make good explanations. But the best explanation about the Pinchot vote is that the right dry man can get a lot of ordinarily wet votes—people who do not think wetness is above everything else.

Second District
Continues Mussed Up

The Democratic situation in the Second Congressional District continues badly mussed. There are four candidates in—Wm. P. Cole, Herbert L. Grymes, Yewell Y. Dillehunt and Daniel B. Chambers, with John B. Gontrum thinking about it. But—Messrs. Chambers and Grymes are expected to withdraw if and when asked to do so by the Governor. The latter is reputed to be sticking to his first love, Mr. Cole. Mr. Gontrum is very popular and could poll a good vote, his supporters say. But it is understood that he doesn't propose to plunge in just to ascertain the temperature of the water.

As for the Republicans, it appears that they are disposed to let Representative Linwood L. Clark get a renomination without a contest. The majority he received two years ago seems to entitle him to it.

In the Fourth District there is talk of opposition to Representative LInthicum. Some think that, like the Governor, he has earned retirement. But Mr. Linthicum doesn't think in any such fashion. He has shown no impairment of running ability. Nothing wrong with his feet at all.

But there are others ambitious. For instance, there is Leonard Weinberg, staunch admirer of the Governor through thin as well as through thick. Leonard looks toward Washington and probably would have the help of the Governor and his State machine. The Governor, however, is a great advocate of self help. He helps himself first. He is far more devoted to self than he is to Leonard, and then, Charlie Linthicum hasn't done anything to His Excellency. And Leonard is still young and his ambitions should keep.

New Scheme for More Political Jobs

According to one of the daily journals a scheme is in process of hatching by which more worth while political jobs will be created. The scheme is to create a sort of legal department for the State Roads Commission which since the start of the Harrington administration has been getting along with the services of the State Law Department headed by the Attorney General. This would be a step toward further political expansion and might help in the campaign.

In the Harrington administration there was enacted a measure creating the State Law Department for the purpose of getting rid of the many jobs of special counsel to board and officials. Mr. Ritchie then Attorney General, drew the bill, but when it came to be examined it was found to have provided so many assistants and so much in salaries that the expense would have been increased rather than decreased. The terms of the measure were finally modified and since that time the Attorney General's office has attended to the most important work of the Roads Commission.

Ritchie and Ennis
Making Local Ticket

As reports are circulated to the effect that the Governor and Robert B. Ennis are collaborating in the making of a Democratic slate for Baltimore City the followers of the late John J. Mahon and the late Frank Kelly grow uneasy. The reports say Ennis picks the candidates and takes them to Ritchie for the stamp of his high muckamuck approval. And not even Billy Curran, long the political friend an confidant of Ennis, is taken into camp in the slate making.

All this is the more exasperating to the veterans becaus they know that it has not been so long since the Governor was saying to some of his friends that he despaired of making a political leader of Ennis—that the proper material did not seem to be in him. And this was before His Excellency began to give Curran the icy treatment for which he is becoming more or less well known. But to the Governor it seems to be a case of any port In a storm and anybody is better than nobody, so thus it is that he is relying to a great extent on Ennis, who is Frank A. Furst's confidential man. We all are aware that the Governor has relied cheifiy on Mr. Furst for support in Baltimore City, in this as well as in previous campaigns, and therefore it may be considered natural for him to turn to Ennis when there are so few on whom he can absolutely rely.

Still, the Idea of a Ritchie-Ennis ticket for Baltimore City is very distasteful to many of the old line Democrats and certainly would have been abhorrent to both Mahon and Kelly.

The current tactics of the Governor merely emphasize the embarrassments he Is meeting In the city where the most powerful party leaders are either against him or lukewarm in regard to his continued candidacy.

Howard Bruce Has
Ritchie at Dinner

Democrats interested in the fate of the Governor are hoping for some cheering news as the result of the dinner given by Howard Bruce a few nights ago in honor of VanLear Black, returned recently from a flying journey over foreign lands, and at which the guests included Governor Ritchie and State Senator McIntosh, lately a contender for the office now held by Mr. Ritchie.

Some affect to see in this dinner a disposition on the part of Mr. Bruce to recant and join the Ritchie procession (or cortege) and if possible take Mr. McIntosh with him. But there has been no announcement of a Bruce change of heart and we all recollect that Mr. Bruce gave as the chief reason for his support of Mr. McIntosh the improbability of reelecting Ritchie this year.

Mr. Bruce continues to serve on the State Roads Commission without pay and many think he has an eye on the Governorship—if not this year, then some other year. It was conspicuous that Mr. Bruce was sternly opposed to the proposed candidacy of Representative Gambrill without giving any good reason therefor and this opposition tended to discourage Mr. Gambrill from opposing Ritchie. This attitude may have helped Mr. Bruce with the Ritchie people but it does not appear to have done him any good elsewhere. On the contrary it has tended to reduce the markct quotation of the Bruce political stock.

As for Mr. McIntosh, although he has been a strong personal friend of Mr. Bruce, we do not think the latter can deliver him to Ritchie or to anyone else.

Open Sad Campaign
At Mt. Washington

Lawrence Lockwood, Ritchie leader in the northwestern section, who arranged the fourth term meeting at Mt. Washington for Tuesday evening, reports that the attendance as compiled by one of Gen. Gaither's policemen, was 427, which was 127 better than the number given by the friendly and subservient Wet Blanket. A clergyman was reported as among those in attendance, but for what purpose was not stated.

The speakers included office holder Albert C. Ritchie, office holder Thos. H. Robinson, office holder Herbert R. O'Conor, office holder J. Bernard Wells, office holder Dr. Josias Bowen, office holder Daniel B. Chambers, office holder Bernard J Flynn, ex-Congressman W. P. Cole, Jr., and C. Ross McKendrick, who Is not yet an office holder.

The attendance was taken by some to mean that the obsequies of the Maryland Democracy this year will not pass without due attention. And it also may be noted that the attendance at the Democratic meetings held in the Mayoralty campaign of 1927 also was very good.

Zihlman to Battle
The Ritchie Candidate

Representative Zihlman having filed for renomination in the Sixth District the indications are that he will have no opposition in the primary although such a contest was expected a few weeks back on account of the Zihlman troubles in Washington.

The Ritchie people propose to nominate William P. Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown, who is looked upon as the fourth term leader in Washington county. Mr. Lane has already been receiving the blessings of the Ritchie journalistic spokesmen in that part of Maryland but the district is normally very Republican. Since the retirement of David J. Lewis no Democrat has carried it. And that any Democrat, running on a ticket with the Governor this year, can carry it, seems more than doubtful at this distance.

That Cement Association
Roads Celebration

We hear that the roads celebration staged at Chestertown on Monday at the expense of the Portland Cement Association was nearly a fizzle, the crowd expected to welcome the Governor not having materialized to any extent. The attendance is said not to have exceeded 250 persons and that is no crowd for such an occasion. Of course, those invited well understood that it was not to be anything lavish like that staged at Upper Marlboro by the Governor's Road Commission at a cost of $18,000 or more. The reception given His Excellency lacked enthusiasm and the impression was created that he Is in a rather bad political fix in that section of the State. The Governor was accompanied by a few members of his political group from Baltimore and Brooke Lee was on hand as Speaker of the House. The Governor was taken under the wing of Senator Scott Beck, who is running for reelection and who, gossip says, hopes to be President of the State Senate—if he Is successful at the polls.

Shriners Displeased at Potentate's Action

There is considerable talk going on about the Invitation extended to the Governor by Grand Potentate Robert A. Sindall to accompany the Shriners on their forthcoming pilgrimage to Toronto and also to respond to the address of welcome there. The Governor is not a member of the Masonic order and hence the comment, some of which is critical, of the Grand Potentate.

The Invitation given the Governor is supposed to be a move in the effort to make him solid with the Masonic fraternity with a view to his election to a fourth term. And Dame Rumor says Mr. Sindall has an eye on the Mayoralty. Possibly he has, even if he hasn't said so even to his intimates.

GARRETT COUNTY TO BE HUNTING PARADISE SOON

Forester Points Out Assets of Newly Acquired Forests

In discussing the newly acquired tract of state forest areas on the Savage River in Garrett county, F. W. Besley, Maryland state forester, predicts that the forest in a few years will become one of the best hunting grounds in Western Maryland.

The piece—one of 4,370 acres and the other of 6,534 acres—are close to another tract of 5,000 acres obtained two years ago. The money for the latest deals was taken from a $50,000 fund authorized by the last Legislature for the additional state forests.

"The forest consists for the most part of a young timber growth," said Mr. Besley. "About twenty years ago logging railroads were projected from the main line along the Savage river up the several stream valleys. The heavy stands of hemlock, white pine and oak were removed, but unlike many other sections, this area has been reasonably well protected from fire and consequently there is over most of the area a very fine young growth of timber.

"It is the purpose of the state, through protection and management, to secure the best timber growth possible on this land, restoring its productiveness, not only ministering to the timber needs of the community, but with the idea of developing wood-using industries that will be a valuable asset to Garrett county and to the state. To this end telephone connection has been extended from the fire lookout tower on Meadow Mountain, overlooking this territory, to a ranger station on the Savage river.

"Another important use that will be encouraged and developed is that of recreation. The forest is reasonably accessible over mountain roads, which will in time be improved, opening it up to camping and other forms of recreation.

"The climate of Western Maryland is almost ideal and the altitude is from 1,500 to 3,000 feet. There is an abundance of pure water from the mountain streams, good fishing, and under state protection game will increase. In season, the area will be open to hunters."

China's Famine Toll One of World's Greatest Human Sacrifices

A Family Typical of China's Millions of Famine Sufferers

STAGGERING and terrible is the death toll that starvation and pestilence are taking in North Central China, according to the testimony of eye-witnesses who have recently returned to Shanghai and Peiping from the famine zones. Six million persons have perished of hunger since 1928, and four million others are close to death, according to G. F. Andrew of the China Inland Mission, whose graphic account of conditions in Shensi and Kansu provinces has been forwarded to the Secretary of State, Washington, D. C. and to David A. Brown and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairmen of China Famine Relief, U. S. A., whose headquarters are at 205 E. 42nd street, New York City, where contributions are assembled. Under the suspices of practically all of the churches and a number of men and women of national prominence China Famine Relief, U. S. A. is seeking to raise $2,000,000 in the United States in an effort to bring food and life-saving measures to the accessible millions of stricken Chinese. Ministers and Churches of all faiths and denominations in the United States are solicited to assist this movement which has the cooperation and active assistance of the Chinese Government, and military chieftains in opposition thereto as well.

Continual drought and crop failures have been chiefly responsible for the prolonged famine which began in 1928, and which in five provinces has increased in severity. The mass of the population yet alive subsists on roots, and clay and where there are trees they have been stripped bare by emaciated fingers. In Kansu, Mr. Andrew learned, cannibalism has become so common that it is no longer noticed.

A press dispatch of recent date says that in the central Shensi district by the time of the wheat harvest there will be only 3,000,000 inhabitants of the 6,000,000 when the famine began. The agony of the past Winter can never be described, the dispatch reports. In the small Wuking district alone there have been 600,000 deaths from starvation and cold.

Whole villages are depopulated of all except a few starving, desperate children who roam the deserted streets. The observers found the roads lined with bodies of refugees from the famine areas who had fallen by the wayside. Wholesale burials of hundreds of bodies in single large pits has become necessary.

China Famine Relief U. S. A. cables money weekly to the National Christian Council at Shanghai, where an all American Advisory Committee makes allotment of funds received, selecting locations and groups to whom food can be given without loss. In two years of famine work there have been no seizures by bandits or militarists. A full measure of cooperation has been given famine workers by the authorities, both civil and military.

BETTER GARDENS—

Every family in this community will be benefited by taking part in the Yard and Garden Contest which is being conducted here this year under the sponsorship of the Oakland Civic Club.

There is something about a garden which brings out the best in people. Perhaps it is because we are Nature's children, after all, and our hands move as if by instinct to digging into the ground, to the planting of things which will grow, to the tending of flowers and the gathering of fruit.

Little children love flowers. They pick them instinctively as soon as they can toddle. The untaught savage adorns his person with flowers. A garland from the woods or fruit from the hillsides is the oldest form of offering.

Gardens such as the average home grounds can provide, make productive our leisure time. They draw us from idleness to creative effort. They provide us with cheering gifts for the sick and poor. They incline us to hospitality, to share their beauties with others.

Out of all this beauty comes an inspiration for each member of the family. Mother wishes to make the yard attractive so children will play at home. The kiddies take a hand in improving the yard. In the garden they learn the dignity of work with their hands and to be helpful to others. They also are taught by an object lesson the all-embracing wisdom of Nature.

Father,in planting his yard, realizes the value of a permanent improvement, and he sets out trees and a mass of shrubbery. Once his home grounds are improved he sees himself as a part of a great movement to make his home town "The City Beautiful," and he becomes a better citizen.

A public movement which creates better citizens should be given wholehearted community support.

An Interesting Fact.

An Historic Race

Many of the facts mentioned in this series of short articles are no doubt known by a majority of our readers. Our object is to recall them to your memory.

It was in 1827 that the Assembly of Maryland granted a charter to a group of far?seeing gentlemen for the building of a railroad, authorizing an issue of capital stock to the amount of one million and a half dollars and its extension as far west as the Obio river. The interval between that event and today, one hundred and three years, has witnessed wonderful strides in the matter of railroad building, as well as in vastly increasing the speed at which the trains are run.

The hearts of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the last survivor of that group of Marylanders who signed the Declaration of Independence, who laid the cornerstone of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on Independence Day, 1828, must have swelled with pride when that first American made locomotive, the Tom Thumb, steamed up and wended its way to Ellicott City, a distance of thirteen miles from Baltimore, the starting point. The outgoing trip consumed an hour and fifteen minutes, but they clipped off the 13 miles on the return in an hour and one minute.

It must have been the fast time made on the return that induced Peter Cooper, under whose direction the Tom Thumb was completed, to accept a challenge by the advocates of horsepower, for a race between the engine drawing two coach loads of people, and a like load drawn by one horse.

The race started, and for the first quarter of a mile the horse was in the lead, having the advantage of a quicker start. But gradually the Tom Thumb got up momentum, closed up the gap and took the lead. We can visualize the enthusiasm of the passengers on the "steam cars" and the crest-fallen aspect of the "horse car" passengers, as that first steam-propelled iron horse passed old gray dobbin.

But the race is not always to the swift. "Pride goeth before a fall." We can imagine the engineer gaily whistling what was then the counterpart of "The old grey mare 'aint what she used to be," and pulling the throttle wide open. Just then something happened. A leather band slipped from the wheel—the engine lost momentum—furiously Cooper sought to replace the belt and in his excitement injured his hand. Old Dobbin pricked up his ears, caught his second wind and slowly pulled away from the new contraption and was first under the wire at the end of the race.

BOTH BIRTHS AND DEATHS DECREASING IN MARYLAND

10,274 Births Recorded for First Four Months of 1930

The report of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health, of births, stillbirths, infant deaths and maternal deaths for the State of Maryland for the first four months of 1930 as compared to the record for the corresponding period of 1929 indicates a falling off in the total number of births—10,274 in 1930—in comparison with 10,365 for the corresponding period of 1929.

The number of infant deaths was considerably fewer in 1930—711—of which 389 occurred in the counties and 322 in Baltimore City, as compared to 887 in 1929—507 in the counties and 380 in Baltimore City. The infant mortality rate was 69.2 for the State for the first four months of 1930, as compared to 85.6 for the corresponding period of 1929. (By infant mortality rate is meant the number of deaths under one year to each thousand live births). The reduction is reflected in both white and colored rates. The white rate for the first four months of 1930 was 59.7 in comparison with 73.6 for the corresponding period of 1929; the colored infant mortality rate was 101.9 for the first third of 1930 as compared to 128.4 for the corresponding period of 1929.

Forty-nine women in the State, 22 in the counties and 27 in Baltimore City, died from some complication in childbearing during the first four months of 1930 as compared to 62 during the corresponding period of 1929. This gives a maternal mortality rate for the State, per thousand live births of 4.8 for the first third of 1930 as compared to 6.0 for the same period of 1929. The number of maternal deaths can be greatly reduced by securing for expectant mothers satisfactory care before and during the birth of their children. This care, so greatly to be desired for the mothers, would at the same time reduce the number of stillbirths and the excessive number of infant deaths that occur during the first few weeks of life. The need for such measures is better understood when it is remembered that nearly half of the infant deaths that are recorded each year, occur during the first month of life.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,
Oakland. Md.

Why Cultivate Corn?

Why cultivate corn? After a week of intermittent rains, when the weeds have all but obscured the struggling young corn plants, there can be but one answer to this question. But ask the question of a group of farmers who have followed or ridden the cultivator over long rows of corn year after year, and you will get a variety of answers. "Conserve moisture"; "kill weeds"; "make a mulch"; "break the soil crust", and "make work for the hired man," will be some of the reasons given.

Regardless of this, the fact remains that a good job of killing weeds does, at the same time, most of these other things. Tests made in 38 States by the U. S. Department of Agriculture have shown that yields from cultivated plots where weed growth was prevented by surface scraping. It appears from this that the primary object is to kill weeds and that "making a mulch," "breaking the soil crust" and others are by-product effects.

The greatest loss of moisture from the corn field is through the leaves of plants. The more weeds there are, the less moisture for the corn. So, from the standpoint of moisture, weeds are direct competitors of the corn plants and handicap the crop to that extent. The most effective moisture control is the kind that gets the weeds before they make much growth that is, just before or at the time they are coming through the ground.

Here is another important fact: Many of the common grasses and other weeds prevalent in corn fields consume more nitrogen, pound for pound of growth, than young corn plants. Hence, conservation of plant food is another point in favor of clean cultivation. Professor Montgomery, in his book, "The Corn Crop," states that the consumption of plant food by weeds may be even more injurious to the corn than their consumption of water.

Regardless of how fertile the fields of any Garrett County farmer may be, none have soil fertility to waste. Certainly no one who has invested in commercial plant food wants to see his profit on the investment reduced through "robbery" by weeds. Farmers buy fertilizer for corn with the expectation of getting their money back three or four-fold in increasing yields, improved quality and earlier maturity. It is poor business to waste plant food whether from the soil or from the fertilizer bag, but this will happen with poor or ineffective weed control.

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:1-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Proves His Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Sufferings for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Agony in the Garden.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gethsemane.

I. Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv. 1-5).

Christ with divine insight predicted not only the fact of His death, but its time and manner. The Jewish authorities in secret conclave were plotting to silence His voice by putting him to death. In spite of themselves they were moving in the line of God's decree.

II. Mary of Bethany Anoints Jesus (vv. 6-13).

1. The meaning of the act (vv. 6, 7).

This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house. Mary had the keenest apprehension of all the disciples. By sitting at His feet in loving fellowship, she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples had. She saw that His body was to be broken and that His precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with His sufferings and the joy of His resurrection.

2. The indignation of the disciples (vv. 8, 9).

The action of the disciples is in strange contrast with Mary's love.

3. Mary defended by Christ (vv. 10-13).

Jesus could not allow His most appreciative disciple to lie under this censure, so He came to her rescue. As a result of Christ's defense, Judas is so stingingly rebuked that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

III. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 14-30).

1. The bargain of betrayal (vv. 14-16).

Satan so completely had the mastery over Judas that he sold his Lord for the price of a slave (Ex. 21:32).

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 20-25).

While they were eating the Passover Jesus made this announcement. Who knows but that the reason for the announcement at this time was to give Judas an opportunity to repent? The sorrowful question in verse 22 indicates that the disciples did not seem to suspect one another, but directed personal attention to themselves.

IV. The Disciples Warned (vv. 31-35).

This took place as they walked from the upper room to the garden of Gethsemane. Jesus plainly told them, "All ye shall be offended because of me this night," quoting Zechariah 13:7 as proof. Though He told them of the darkness which was gathering, yet He gave them a glimpse of the coming light. He said, "After I am risen again I will go before you into Galilee."

V. Jesus Praying (vv. 36-46).

1. The place—the Garden of Gethsemane (v. 36).

Gethsemane means oil press. It was a place some three-fourths of a mile east of Jerusalem, where oil was crushed out of the olives.

2. His companions (v. 37).

Peter, James and John. The same disciples who had been with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration are permitted to go with Him into the deep shadow of the Garden. They slept, while He prayed.

3. Jesus sorrowing even unto death (vv. 37, 38).

The cause of His suffering was not primarily physical, but spiritual. The physical is not to be minimized, but the burden of sin—the world's sin—was pressing heavily upon Him. He was being made sin for us (II Cor. 5:21).

4. The prayer itself (v. 39).

"O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What was this cup? It was not prayer to be delivered from the cross. The idea that He desired to escape from the cross and thus stop short of His redemptive work is not to be entertained. Redemption through the sacrifice of Himself was the supreme purpose of His coming into the world. The holiness and perfection of His nature moved Him to shrink from the mountain of sin which was resting upon Him. Though the cup was bitter, He bowed in submission to the Father's will.

An Important Power

Man has one power in particular which is not sufficiently dwelt on. It is the power of making the world happy, or at least of so greatly diminishing the amount of unhappiness in it as to make quite a different world from what it is at present. The power is called kindness.—F. W. Faber.

Callie's Cobra Was a Thorn

By LILLIACE MITCHELL

(Copyright.)

JIM BLAKE was in advertising. When he had first met Callie, they had both been on one of those Saturday hikes that city people frequently enjoy—for the day.

Callie, however, had always lived in the city. With the usual contrariness of human nature she longed to live in the country. Jim, on the other hand, had been born on a farm, had followed his father from one farm to another and had finally managed to finish high school at a northern Michigan lumber town where "men were men," as they themselves boasted. Jim liked to hike, but he had no particular love for the country as a place in which to live.

Just after they were engaged Callie found out that Jim hated the country. Callie decided to take a "onesome" hike over her three-day holiday. Could she give up all idea of living in the country in order to marry Jim? Could she face life in the city forever?

A thing like that isn't decided in a moment.

Callie, with a light pack to carry, took a train that let her out at a lonely little way-station, a hundred miles from the city. She dropped a postal card to Jim, telling him where she had gone.

Swinging into the country road with no sign of human habitation before her, Callie threw back her head and drew in deep breaths joyously. Ah! this was the life! Even Jim, darling Jim could offer nothing to compare with this. Singing birds, feathery trees, wild flowers springing up at the sides.

By night she had come to a pine woods where she unrolled her blanket, blew up her air pillow, and took out the dainty sandwiches she had packed in the city.

Callie wondered if she could have good things sent out by parcel post.

By morning she wished that she had brought a frying pan and bacon. The sandwiches were good but she could have eaten the three days' supply at once.

By noon her further hiking brought her to a high hill. A few scrub pines dotted it. Brush and spiny looking growths making hiking slow. Under the warm sun snakes glided through the brush, giving Callie little shivers along her spine.

She sat down to make sure that her canvas leggings were well fastened. A small garter snake slithered near her ankle. Callie let out a yell for help before she realized that there was no one to yell to. She began to wonder if she had been foolish to come out alone this way. If she missed the road and did not come to the town she was expecting to find—her heart skipped a beat and she rose to her feet, pulled down her little scarlet hat and pressed forward with clinched teeth.

It seemed now that all of the snakes in the world had congregated in this spot and were gliding about in the sun. She tried to pretend that she could not see them. Then at the side of a little stream where there were bulgy stepping stones that rocked as one stepped upon them, a snake reared and darted towards her.

"A cobra!" she moaned as she lost her footing, stepped wildly on several stones and fell half in the muddy stream and half on the coarse brush bordering it.

When she took off her legging she found two tiny marks. A quick tourniquet, turning, turning, turning until it seemed that all of the blood in her body had stopped flowing; cold hands, blood racing around and around her head—Callie was fear-stricken.

"Cobra—twenty minutes to live," she said in low tones.

The sun was going down now and she thought of herself lying out here never to be found. By her red hat, if she were ever found, Jim would know that it was she for he had helped her select that at a store on Michigan boulevard one Saturday afternoon. Drowsy, her head drooped forward on her chest.

She was aroused by the sound of a motor, and then a voice. She opened her eyes.

"You little idiot! Chasing off like this alone!" said Jim, shaking her.

Callie clung to him, now wide awake.

"I'm going to die—cobra," she whispered. "Oh, don't scold me now, Jim. I'm—dying—twenty minutes—"

He stared at her. He reached over to the place where she had thrown her legging and looked at it.

"There are no cobras in this neck o' the woods," he laughed. "You've got a spiny-thorn in your legging, girlie. Just a thorn—that's all! Lucky you wore that red hat. I got your card in the morning mail and drove right out. The postmaster told me you were in last night and he said you wore a red hat. I've searched for miles!

"Well, all ready to go back to civilization where snakes are snakes and flats are flats and all of that? Plenty of snakes out in Lincoln park at the zoo and they're all classified for you—cobras and all," he teased.

Callie shuddered. "Say, Jimmie, can we stop some place and get a good meal?"

In a Nutshell

There are three ways of getting out of a scrape—push out, back out and keep out.

JUDGE D.L.SLOAN DELIVERS CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Perform the duties required of you by that oath faithfully and thoroughly and the citizens will have no cause to complain of the inaction of this grand jury.

There are certain statutes which we are required by law to call to your attention at each term of court, whether there may be offenses against these statutes listed for your investigation or not does not affect our duty to call them to your attention, and some of them are extremely important.

There is one statute that has been on the books for years, but which rarely brings out an indictment because those things are not brought to the public notice as a rule but are discovered merely by accident. That is the crime of abortion.

You are required to examine the records of the county treasurer to see the manner in which he keeps his books and to satisfy yourselves of their accuracy. The State now has an auditing system so that a detailed investigation is made of the books every year and this perhaps may be available to you, but it is not possible in the time the Grand Jurics are usually expected to perform their duties for you to make an exhaustive, detailed examination, but make an inspection sufficiently full for you to satisfy yourselves that the books are well kept and that the public funds are being properly handled.

We are also required to call your attention to the statute covering defalcations by any public officer who may be required to turn over and account to the state or county for funds in his hands, within a certain time.

The law also against unlawful sale of narcotic is one which is being violated considerably in more congested communities, and if you know of any violation of this law it is your duty to make a full investigation and return indictments against offenders. This is a law the violation of which is most disastrous in its effects and it is your duty to go into the question fully and do not hesitate to indict if you find any violations of this statute.

Another statute we are required to call to your attention is that dealing with the carrying of concealed weapons. It is a matter of common knowledge that there would be fewer crimes of violence if concealed weapons—deadly weapons, were not carried by the perpetrators of these offenses. The carrying of deadly weapons is not regarded as sufficiently serious by the public generally, they do not rail against this act until someone has had to pay with his life for someone else's violation of this statute, and I admonish you that if any cases come before you in which concealed weapons are involved that you give them your very serious attention. I'll tell you, gentlemen of the Grand Jury, this court believes the violation of this statute to be one of the primary causes of disorder and one that should be punished so severely as to make it an example to those who may be inclined to carry deadly weapons.

We hear more these days of violations of the liquor laws than of any others, and are told that the spread of crime is due entirely to this. We had crimes and criminals when we had intoxicating liquors sold legally and we have had crimes since then. It seems to be the sport of many persons these days and particularly of the metropolitan dailies which find a circulation all over the country and in the secluded places, to charge the apparent increase to violations of this law.

The mere fact that there is a federal statute and a Constitutional amendment against this traffic, which makes it the business of the federal government to punish violations of the liquor law does not relieve the state and the grand juries of the counties of this state of their obligations to enforce the liquor laws, which have been declared by the Court of Appeals of this State as well as by the Supreme Court of the United States, to be in force, and it will be your duty to investigate as to any violations and to return indictments wherever the evidence warrants.

There are two important statutes which the court is required to call to your attention. They are the laws regarding mining and the laws as to the running of taxicabs. These matters will be more fully brought to your attention by the State's Attorney.

It is the duty of the Grand Jury at every term to inspect the public buildings of the county. You will therefore make an inspection of the court house and jail and report your findings to the court.

It is a matter of extreme regret that at this term of court we are suddenly deprived, through serious illness, of the services of Mr. Julius C. Renninger, who has so faithfully served this county as State's Attorney in the past. His condition is so serious that it will not be possible for him to attend this term of court and Mr. Asa T. Matthews has kindly consented to perform the duties of that office and his services will be available to you during this term of court.

It is necessary and desirable that all of your transactions be kept secret and that nothing be allowed to leak out which may occur during your deliberations. It is also desirable that you perform your duties with expedition, but do not sacrifice thoroughness for speed and go into everything fully that may be brought to your attention during your sessions.

Keyser Tourist Arrested But the Charge Against Him Dismissed

A newspaper article clipped from a Keyser (W. V.) newspaper of recent date is calculated to make Oakland appear in a bad light with tourists and others entering the town in automobiles bearing West Virginia markers. The article in question is given below:

The cops in Maryland are taking a spite at West Virginia tourists by pinching them in the mountain city of Oakland. Some Keyser folks, on their way to Morgantown, were stopped in Oakland, Md., by cops and asked concerning driver's card. Finding the driver had the proper card, the cop remarked that "we will hold you on a charge that your license plate is too low." The cop said, "I understand that the West Virginia cops are going after Maryland cars."

Investigation this morning, made by a representative of The Republican revealed the fact that one individual from Keyser had recently been detained by Officer Currie for having his markers obscurely placed, the officer following an order issued only a few days previous by the Automobile Commissioner to make arrests in all cases where this provision of the law is violated. The violator, much against the wish of the officer, was taken before Justice Gonder and the charge was dismissed upon payment by the motorist of the sum of 75 cents, the costs of the arrest and entry, and no fine whatever attached.

Charged With Forgery

Charged with forging a check for $200, Ercil Gaskel, Hutton, was remanded to the county jail of Preston county, W. Va., when he failed to raise a bond of $1,000 after a preliminary hearing in Terra Alta recently.

It is alleged that the Hutton man forged a check for $200 on C. L. Shaffer, of Parsons, in trading for an automobile with C. M. Hamstead. Before completing the trade for the automobile Mr. Hamstead called a Parsons' bank and was assured that the check was good. The forgery was not discovered until the check arrived in Parsons when it was noted that the signature was false. Gaskel is being held for the Grand Jury.

Ex-Service Man Announces for Sheriffalty Nomination.

J. S. Teats, of Friendsville District (No. 2), announces his candidacy for Republican nomination for Sheriff of Garrett county in this issue of The Republican.

Prior to the World War Mr. Teats was engaged in farming and for two years was a school teacher in the county. With the coming of the war he became a soldier and went overseas where he served as a corporal, being cited for bravery by his superior officer in the Argonne engagement. At present the candidate is a traveling salesman for a mid-west manufacturing concern.

James A. Fitzwater, District 1, Candidate for County Commissioner

James A. Fitzwater, 52 years old, farmer, and life-long resident of Garrett county, residing in Election District No. 1, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner, subject to the result of the primary election, as will be seen by referring to his announcement in today's Republican.

Recently, at a meeting of the residents of Swanton District Mr. Fitzwater was urged to become a candidate for the office of Commissioner, receiving 38 votes at the meeting which was attended by a few more than fifty taxpayers, hence Mr. Fitzwater's candidacy for the nomination.

NATIONAL ROAD IN GOOD CONDITION FOR TOURISTS

False Statements About Highway Being Closed and In Bad Condition Are Combated

The National Highway, on which Grantsville, in this county, is an important point, is said to be suffering this year from adverse propaganda and misinformation concerning its condition for tourists and others using the road.

To combat the adverse reports by widespread distribution of correct information as to detours, improvement work and temporary impediments to traffic, the National Highway Association has started an active promotional campaign.

During the past week Harold Dunn and George Rathmell, Uniontown, Pa., were in Grantsville in the special advertising car of the National Highway Association. They are traveling east as far as Baltimore to check up on road conditions and visit local representatives at all main points along the highway.

Previous to the present eastern trip an advertising and promotion car went west from Uniontown to St. Louis. Posters and other advertising material stressing the advantages of Route 40 (National Highway) were distributed at every service station, garage, hotel, motor club and restaurant along the route.

False Reports Denied

Interests depending upon traffic along other east-west routes are said to discourage tourists from traveling over U. S. Route 40 by declaring it unsafe; full of detours, one-way traffic stretches and bad mountain road between Uniontown and Cumberland and from Cumberland to Hancock.

Mr. Dunn says the only detour near Uniontown is a fourteen mile detour west of the city, and it is entirely hard surfaced and only two miles longer than the main road.

East of Cumberland the improvement work affects not more than two miles of road on Sideling Hill.

Some improvement work is in progress at Brownsville, Pa., but the road is not closed and there is only slight inconveniences to the motorist, Mr. Dunn says.

The only stretch that might cause any tourist objection is just east of Wheeling, W. Va., between Washington, Pa., and Claysville. An eleven-mile detour is necessary there.

Has Many Advantages

With these few exceptions the National Highway from Kansas City and St. Louis east to Baltimore is in better condition than ever before, and with the completion of the few sections now being worked will be better than any other east-west highway.

The scenic and historic aspects of the National Pike give it precedence over all other U. S. highways and should make it the heaviest traveled road in the country.

Civic organizations, chambers of commerce, local town officials are cooperating with similar agencies along the entire highway.

In the near future national radio broadcasts will be arranged over the principal NBC and Columbia networks to advertise the National Highway nationally and "sell it" to thousands of prospective tourists.

Miss Beulah Engle, Grantsville District, Republican Candidate For County Treasurership

Miss Beulah Engle, of Grantsville District, a daughter of Mrs. Etta Engle and the late Ralph Engle, is the latest aspirant to make announcement of the Republican nomination for the Treasurership of Garrett county.

Miss Engle has shown remarkable aptitude in various lines of clerical work during her career being for two years employed in the auditor's office of the Davis Coal and Coke Company in Cumberland; as assistant advertising manager of the American Machinist, a nationally known magazine published in New York; as assistant postmaster at both Grantsville and Jennings during the illness or absence of the officials at those two places a few years ago. Miss Engle received her training in commercial work at a recognized school and for a time attended the Dana School of Music.

With the qualifications necessary as an accountant and her varied experiences as such and as a business woman, Miss Engle is qualified for the position for which she is an aspirant is the opinion of those who know her best.

AFFIRMATIVE SIDE WINS IN COUNTY-WIDE DEBATE

Three Northern Schools of County Are Declared Victors at Grantsville Tuesday Evening

Carl Everly, Accident High; Luther Miller, Grantsville High, and Nina Friend, Friendsville High, representatives on the affirmative side of the county-wide debate, held Tuesday evening in the W. O. W. Hall, Grantsville, were awarded the decision by the judges after convincing arguments had been heard from both sides of the question under consideration.

The negative side of the question was argued by Tony Diguistino, Kitzmiller High; Joseph Sollars, Oakland High, and Robert Turek, Kempton High. The question debated was: Resolved, That it should be the policy of our nation to increase the power of the Federal Government.

The inter-high school debate was sponsored by the Garrett National Bank, through G. A. Fraley, cashier, and the First National Bank, through Delbert Davis, cashier. Sixty per cent of the prize money was awarded to the three winning schools, to be divided equally for library purposes, and forty per cent was divided among the three losing schools. Messrs. Kearsing, Rice and Ware, instructors in Beall High School, Frostburg, were the judges.

The decision of the judges was based on appearance, delivery and argument. Delivery included voice, enunciation, pronunciation and memory.

A program of musical numbers was presented, consisting of a vocal solo by Grace Swauger; a vocal selection, Springtime in the Rockies, by the Male Chorus of Grantsville High; a duet by the Misses Speicher, of Accident High; a saxophone selection by Howard Rathbun, Oakland High; selections by the Yoder-Miller Quartet of Grantsville, and "River, River," by the Girls' Quartet of Friendsville High school.

H. A. Loraditch, president of the County Board of Education, presided.

Clarence F. Kolb, Districtct No. 5, Orphans Court Judge Candidate

Clarence F. Kolb, of District No. 5, announces his candidacy in The Republican today for the nomination for the office of Judge of the Orphans' Court. Mr. Kolb is a son of the late John Kolb and is highly esteemed in his home community for his straightforwordness in business matters and as a farmer he has been successful.

He states in his announcement that he will give the affairs of the office he seeks every attention incumbent upon him.

Old Oakland Hotel Grounds to be Beautified

Steps to have the old Oakland Hotel grounds cleaned and beautified are being taken by the Oakland Civic club, according to Miss Lottie Loar, president.

The local club will be assisted by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department, and the Boy Scout Troop and a number of citizens of the town. This part of Oakland is first seen upon approaching Oakland by railroad and it is hoped to make this very attractive by cutting out the dead timber and undergrowth and by planting a number of flowers and shrubs.

The project is part of the campaign for beautifying the entire town of Oakland, which a number of citizens have taken upon themselves by entering the yard and garden contest. The work will start in the near future.

Plans for Examination Centers Being Arranged

Plans are being made by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, to have examinations for seventh grade pupils of the different schools of the county given in a few examination centers, the centers to be named later.

Pupils will assemble at the centers from nearby schools on Friday, June 13, at one o'clock p. m., and the Otis-Orleans Standard Graduation examinations, Form A., are to be given.

"There are many advantages to this plan," Superintendent Rathbun pointed out, "and centers to take care of all seventh grade pupils in the county will be arranged for next year. This year, there possibly will be some seventh grade pupils who will take their examinations in their individual schools, as usual."

TO REMODEL CITY HALL WITHIN NEXT FEW WEEKS

More Room Will be Given to Oakland Fire Department

Remodeling of the City Hall, on Third street, in order to give more room to the Oakland Fire Department, will be started within the next few weeks, according to Grover C. Stemple, mayor.

The stairway leading to the second floor of the building will be torn away, giving the engine room of the Oakland Fire department six additional feet. This will allow three feet on each side of the truck and will enable the firemen to drive in and out with greater ease, Mr. Stemple stated.

A stairway leading to the second floor will be built in rear of the building, with a concrete walk leading to the stairs from Third street.

Decision to remodel the building was made at a recent meeting of the Mayor and Town Council.

FIRE DAMAGE AT HAMILL BOOK STORE IS SLIGHT

Firemen Confine Blaze to Basement of Building

Fire, originating in the basement of Hamill's Book Store, corner of Third and Alder Streets, on Tuesday morning, was extinguished by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department before any great amount of damage had been done.

Workmen had been engaged in repairing the front of the building during the past few days and had carried a quantity of rubbish to the cellar, where it is supposed that it became ignited from a match or smouldering cigaret.

Dense smoke enveloped the Hamill building and Hart's store, but the fire was confined to the basement by the volunteer firemen. The blaze was under control a few minutes after the department arrived on the scene.

Gold Star Mother To Leave For France This Evening

Mrs. William Kildow, of Oakland, will leave here this evening for New York City from which port she will sail with other Gold Star mothers Saturday for France to visit the grave of her son Procter Kildow, killed in action at Chateau Thierry during the early days of this country's entrance into the conflict. Corporal Kildow was a member of the Marine corps.

After visiting the various cemeteries in France where American soldiers lie buried the Gold Star mothers will be entertained in Paris for a few days and will leave for the United States on or about July 7.

Semi-Annual Election of Knights of Pythias Held

Olin Hardesty was elected chancellor commander of Garrett Lodge No. 113, K. of P., at the regular meeting of that body held last Friday evening at Castle hall, Oakland. He succeeds Irvin R. Rudy, who assumes the position of master of work.

George Fulk was elected vice-chancellor; Paul Riley, prelate; Stanley Bond, master at arms; Stanley Stahl, inner guard; L. R. Mason, outer guard. The newly elected officers will hold office from July 1 to January 1, 1931.

Narrowly Escape Death

Mr. S. K. Schlossnagle and Miss Effie Paugh were slightly injured last Sunday afternoon, when they drove their car on the railroad crossing leading to Loch Lynn, just as train No. 21 was approaching. The cylinder of the engine caught the front end of the machine, almost completely demolishing it. Mr. Schlossnagle is reported to have said that he did not notice that the electric signal installed at the crossing was flashing, nor did he hear the approach of the train. It was one of those "lucky" accidents and a very close call for the occupants of the car.

Transport School Encamps at Table Rock

A large company of men and officers of the U. S. Transport School, Baltimore, camped at Table Rock, near Red House, during the week-end. There were 85 trucks and several cars in the company.

The purpose is for schooling the men in transportation. They came out of Baltimore over the National highway, route 40, and returned via Winchester, over route 50, the Northwestern Turnpike.

SECOND WEEK OF CIRCUIT IN SESSION SINCE MONDAY

Criminal Docket was Called With Opening of Court, Judge Albert A. Doub Presiding

The second week of the June Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court opened Monday with Judge Albert A. Doub presiding, when the criminal appeals docket was called, two cases on which were disposed of when the appeals were dismissed by the appellees. Both cases involved fines imposed by Justices for violations of the dog law.

Clarence Reckart and Carl Reckart, both of near Selbysport, are on trial this morning, the charge against them being that of stealing sheep. It is alleged that the two young men stole the animals from a pasture field on the farm of Miss Grace VanSickle and then traded them on an automobile deal with a Pennsylvania motor salesman.

Henry Fries, a youth from the vicinity of Sines, entered a plea of guilty on a charge of larceny.

Charles Rhodes, of the Swanton section, indicted on a charge of burglary when he entered a summer home near Swanton and took therefrom furniture and other goods, plead guilty to the third charge in the indictment, that of larceny.

Ray Martin and Albert Shipp, two youths who live on the outskirts of Oakland, began their career of crime a few days after they moved to Oakland when they stole various articles, among them being a wheelbarrow lying in the rear of the Miller meat market and which later they dumped into the Little Yough. The following day they raided Miss Nell Turley's hen house and carried away several chickens which they disposed of to a merchant in town. On this latter charge they were indicted and when arraigned plead guilty to the charge of theft.

Mitchell Rush, tried before the jury on a charge of bastardy preferred by a young woman from the Avilton section, was found guilty and ordered to pay $10 per month for fourteen years to the mother of the child.

Gerald Steiding, was also found guilty by a jury on an indictment charging him with bastardy and was likewise ordered to pay $10 per month for fourteen years to the mother of the children, in this case there being twins.

Frank Stewart, entered a plea of guilty on the indictment for desertion of his wife and children and was ordered by the court to fill a bond in the sum of $500 conditioned upon the payment of $35 per month for the support of his family.

POLITICS IN REVIEW

By the Man In The Street

(From The Observer, Baltimore)

By coming out into the open and proclaiming himself a candidate for Governor, Mayor Broening has confounded his enemies and forced the hand of the leaders who have been essaying to select a slate.

Apparently the Mayor reached the conclusion that those who are charged with the slate making would not favor his cause. In fact we hear that before he made his announcement he sounded out United States Senator Goldsborough without acquiring any satisfactory information.

Then the Mayor assembled a small group in the office of one of his supporters and read his declaration of political independence, the substance of which was that he had sufficient promises of support to insure him the nomination. At the same time, we hear, he received word that he would get no aid from the Anti-Saloon League, the head of that organization being quoted as violently opposed to the candidacy of His Honor.

The Mayor, it appears, did not think he needed the support of the Anti-Saloon League nor of the principal State leaders of his party. Like the Kaiser of old he proposed to go his way undeterred by the criticisms of those who may favor other candidates or who may not think him the party's strongest available man.

It is a fact that the Mayor has been pushed and pushed by the City Hall crowd. The members of this group seem to have had a nervous fear that he would not go in at all. They urged that he had waited long enough for the leaders to pick a candidate and that further delay would lose him ground.

So the effect of the Broening pronouncement will be to hasten matters. Messrs. Goldsborough, Jackson, Weller, Tait, Parran and others must get a candidate to pit against the Mayor. In this group the belief is said to prevail that a suitable candidate other than the Mayor will soon be found.

There is no substantial hint of a name. There is some backing for H. Webster Smith, a rather dark horse, but the Broening people are giving it out that Smith will not run against the Mayor. Smith is advised to wait. The Anti-Saloon League leaders favor David A. Robb, but it appears that the latter has been doing so little for himself that it is difficult for others to do things for him.

One by one so-called availables have been swept off the board. Federal offices have taken some of them and Federal offices are had without expensive campaigns.

The declaration of some heretofore Weller lieutenants in Western Maryland in favor of Broening served to give the impression that Mr. Weller has swung around to the Mayor, the favorite of W. Bladen Lowndes, the most bitter of all anti-Weller men in Maryland. But this doesn't prove anything. Mr. Weller's last public declaration was that he favored the nomination of a Sixth Congressional District man since Albert G. Towers, his first choice, did not choose to run.

The Eastern Shore, usually the home of candidates without number, has no candidate. Some of its availabies have moved to Baltimore where the clover grows taller. Judge Robert F. Duer of Somerset, has been mentioned, but is said not to be available. Albanus Phillips is not after any office and is booked for Europe.

In Western Maryland, Judge Sloan sidesteps. So does Judge Urner. Alexander Armstrong, former Attorney General and a very popular man, has substantial backers and has a county behind him but to date not one of the big State leaders has undertaken to blow a horn for him. Had he kept out of the Ritchie legislative Roads Commission whitewash he would have been right in line for the nomination. He is criticized for walking into a trap designed by the cunning Governor.

Maryland Democracy
Still in a Stew

What the opponents of Governor Ritchie within the Democratic party are going to do is still an open question. Some are arguing that the Governor should be permitted to get the nomination by default and that all energies be centered on the effort to prevent his election in November. This is referred to as the easy way, many thinking that his defeat is almost a sure thing.

Others counsel that nothing should be taken for granted but that every effort should be made to break down or demoralize the Ritchie machine in a hot primary. Of course such a primary would cost money and the insurgents do not have charge of the State treasury. Friends of former Mayor Jackson continue to urge him to become a candidate in the primary against Ritchie while others center their hopes on William M. Maloy who, it is argued, would go after the Ritchie administration hammer and tongs.

Friends of Mr. Maloy say that if he agrees to enter and make a contest he will do so with the understanding that there is to be a full local ticket in the city and that he would not begin the fight until next month. He thinks, it is reported, that as good a battle can be fought in two months as in three or four.

It is reported that Senator Edward J. Coglan is entirely willing to enter the contest against Attorney General Robinson and many say that it would not take much of a battle to down the latter. He is now completing his second term in the office and was a member of the Conowingo Democratic group four years ago.

Still Another
Is Found Guilty.

It must be very provoking to the head of the State administration to see that a jury has brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Robert R. Ayres, former Clerk of the Circuit Court of Kent county and a member of the Scott Beck Democratic faction in that bailiwick. Ayres was charged with converting to his own use something more than $5,000 received by him as principal account clerk at the University of Maryland. Sentence in the case has not yet been passed as a motion for a new trial is yet to be heard.

While not so much has been published about the case in the Baltimore papers, it is a great subject of discussion in Kent county. Mr. Ayres was Clerk of the Circuit Court for six years, beginning in 1921, but was not re-nominated. In Kent county, it is said that there was some trouble about his accounts as a result of an examination by the State Auditor, but the matter was adjusted with the cooperation of Scott S. Beek, State's Attorney at that time. During later months of the Ayres incumbency, it is reported, he was employed by a lumber company and during this period was not supposed to have much active connection with the court clerk's office.

At the office of the State Employment Commissioner it was stated that Ayres took an examination along with others for a rating as principal account clerk and that he supplied satisfactory references. Probably we shall hear more of the matter later.

Coming Out for
The Legislature

We hear that Senator John H. Bouse is to file for renomination in the First District and we hear of no opposition as yet. Four years ago he defeated William I. Norris, who since that time appears to have lost interest in politics and become engrossed in other matters. Which reminds us that the other day an employee of the Public Service Commission died and under the Governor's so-called Merit System it was the turn of Mr. Norris as a Ritchie follower to pick a man to fill the vacancy. But when Mr. Norris was sought it was learned that he was in Canada.

Too Much Harmony
For Eastern Shore

Reports from Kent and Queen Anne's counties indicate that the harmony local tickets have not pleased everybody and there is considerable dissatisfaction. And some of those who have been voicing their opinions as to the way things are going are mentioned in print as Hoover Democrats. This will not add anything to the "harmony" now prevailing over there and the impression of some is that much of the bitterness of the last election will be carried into the November contest. The harmony slates, it appears, were fixed up largely by supporters of the Governor.

Who For Senate
In Baltimore County?

James J. Lindsay, Jr., Democratic floor leader in the last House of Delegates, is casting his eyes toward the senatorship now that Senator McIntosh has decided to retire and take it easy politically. But there is Frank S. Given, member of the Board of County Commissioners, who is said to think a seat at Annapolis would fit him all right and they can't both go. So we shall see. Why not let Uncle Frank stay on the Board of County Commissioners, suggests James J. Why not let James return to the House? suggests Uncle Frank.

THIRTY-FOUR MARRIAGES ARE LISTED DURING WEEK

Total for Month of June is 40—15 Are Issued on Saturday

Thirty-four marriage licenses were issued during the past week ending at noon from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit court, bringing the total for the month of June thus far to 40. Fifteen of the permits granted during the past week were issued on Saturday.

The record number of licenses for June is 149, made in 1928, and last year's total was only one behind this number. It is not expected that the record will be broken this year considering the number that already has been granted. Nine licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while four applicants were refused permits on account of the youthfulness of the contracting parties.

SERVING MANY BUSINESSES

Experience of large fleet owners reveals the unusual reliability and economy of the new Ford

A SIGNIFICANT TRIBUTE to the value of the new Ford is found in its increasing use hy Federal, state and city governments and hy large industrial companies which keep careful day-hy-day cost records. In most instances, the Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests of every factor that contributes to good performance—speed, power, safety, comfort, low cost of operation and up-keep, reliability and long life.

Prominent among the companies using the Ford are the Associated Companies of the Bell System, Armour and Company, The Borden Company, Continental Baking Corporation, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, General Electric Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Kellogg Company, Knickerbocker Ice Company, Morton Salt Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, The Procter and Gamble Company, and Swift & Company.

Each of these companies uses a large number of Ford cars and trucks. The Associated Companies of the Bell System use more than eight thousand.

Modern business moves at a fast pace and it needs the Ford. Daily, in countless ways and places, it helps to speed the production and delivery of the world's goods and extend the useful service of men and companies.

Constant, steady operation over many thousands of miles emphasizes the advantages of the sound design of the Ford car, its high quality of materials, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing. Beneath its graceful lines and beautiful colors there is a high degree of mechanical excellence.

An example of the value built into the Ford is the use of more than twenty hall and roller bearings. They are hidden within the car and you may never see them. Yet they play an important part in satisfactory, economical performance. Their function is similar to the jewels of a fine watch.

Throughout the Ford chassis, a ball or roller hearing is used at every place where it is needed to reduce friction and wear and give smooth, reliable mechanical operation.

At many points, as on the transmission counter-shaft, clutch release, fan and pump shaft, and front drive shaft, these hall and roller hearings are used where less costly types of hearings might be considered adequate.

Additional instances of the high quality built into the Ford are the extensive use of steel forgings, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Rustless Steel, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, and the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part and then, through large production, give it to the public at low cost.

SUN PROTECTS BLANKETS FROM MOTH DESTRUCTION

Sunbath Will Keep Comforts Intact During Summer Months

Housekeepers who give their down comforts a good dose of sunshine before they put them away for the summer, will be interested to know that in giving them a sunbath they are using one of the most effective methods of protecting their treasures from the ever dreaded moth. In connection with inspections of materlals used in filling comforts, pillows and other bedding, made recently under the State Bedding Law, a number of moths were found in some of the articles. These were placed in a covered glass jar and kept in a dark cupboard where several generations lived and flourished for five months. When the jar was brought out again and exposed to the direct sunlight, life departed from these pests that are the despair of every homemaker.

When the Maryland Bedding Law was passed by the State Legislature in 1924, its enforcement was entrusted to the State Department of Health. The operation of the law closely parallels that of the State Food and Drug Law. Under the Bedding Law, manufacturers and dealers are required to state on a label attached to each of their products, whether or not the material used in filling mattresses, pillows, comforts, quilted pads and other articles of bedding are new, or are secondhand. They must also state the kind of filling used—wool, cotton, feathers, down, or the various combinations or mixtures of these or of other materials. If the articles are second hand, that fact must be indicated on the label and they must be sterilized or disinfected before they can be offered for sale. Stamps, bearing the namc of the Maryland State Department of Health, which must be attached to the labels, are supplied by the Dcpartment. Nearly half a million of these stamps have been distributed during the past year.

Frequent inspections of manufacturing plants and of retail concerns are necessary to see that the requirements of the law are mct. A check of such inspections made recently by the Departmcnt, showed that over three thousand articles which failed to comply with the law had bcen found during the last ycar in rctail and second-hand stores—five hundred of thcm in one month—and the proprietors were notified that the articlcs would have to be withdrawn from sale until the requirements of the law were met. Prosecutions are resorted to only after repeated warnings have failed to bring about compliancc with the law. One of the most recent, was that of a dealer who was found guilty of selling second hand, unsterialized pillows. Mr. J. Davis Donovan, Chief of the Division of Legal Administration of the State Department of Health, who has charge of the administration of the Bedding Law, said that housekeepers could help in securing compliance with the law, if they would carefully check back on the purchases to see that the articles they buy are duly labeled and stamped when delivered.

A voice beloved is stilled;
There is a vacant place in our home
Which never can be filled.
But we know her dear Master has called her
To the heavenly home
Where she is free from all sorrow and care.
We all hope to meet her in heaven
With the angels above.

EVERYONE FOR GARRETT—

The journey of 40 of Garrett county's high school athletes to Baltimore last Friday had at least three good merits, and there might be many more.

First, it furnished the boys and girls an incentive to strive to win an event for themselves and for their school.

Second, it let Garrett county athletes know what they are up against when they leave their home environs, the quality of competition that must be met at all stages of the game, not only in high school athletics, but in days to come when they are no longer students.

Third, it showed a unity of purpose among all athletes of the county. The intense rivalry between Kitzmiller and Oakland has long been known in high school circles, and while this spirit is commendable as long as it lasts only through the duration of the athletic event, it sometimes ran on, year after year.

To see, then, a Kitzmiller youth, yelling his head off for an Oakland boy at the State meet in Baltimore, should have amply repaid anyone for the expense borne in sending those boys to Baltimore. There it was not Oakland against Kitzmiller, but Oakland and Kitzmiller combined, fighting for Garrett county. Let's continue having the county meet first, and then the winners from the different schools combine, all of one accord, to do something for the good of the entire county. That will go a long way toward having harmony in competition.

"Oakland, the Beautiful."

The following is the first of a series of communications to The Republican contributed by an Oakland woman whose life, social and otherwise, and that of her family, centers in Oakland and the community surrounding the town:

To the Editor of The Republican.

"Oakland, the Beautiful," we want folks to say, to think and to know that it's true.

If all work together we can make it more beautiful than it has ever been by keeping the streets clean, all rubbish burned; make the back yards as attractive as the front yards; plant flowers and vines or shrubbery or all of these, then give them the attention required and Oakland will certainly be beautiful and attractive to the eye.

Many persons remark as they pass through Grantsville and Addison, on the National Highway: "What lovely hamlets." The homes are all nicely painted and the many beautiful flowers and masses of shrubbery along the way contribuate largely to the beauty and attractiveness. Let's all get busy and have our town as lovely as Addison and Grantsville. It can be done and at small expense.

Miss Loar, chairman of the Civic Club, is on the job all the time to help in any way or advise anyone about home improvements in our town. We all love it—it is our home town and we should embrace every opportunity to make it more attractive and pleasing.

While the great majority of home owners take pride in their properties and the appearance of the surroundings, there are a few places that the owners should be ashamed of. Have they not eyes to see, or don't they care. If they don't, then we do; so get busy and clean up.

An Interesting Fact.

The Union Saved by Maryland

It would seem, in the light of events of the past several decades, that Maryland was foreordained to play a most important role in directing the destiny of this country.

Perhaps no single instance serves to emphasize the influence of this State in solidifying and tieing together the various and conflicting interests making up what is now a united republic.

On the 5th of November, 1777, a plan for the first perpetual union was agreed to by Congress when the Articles of Confederation were adopted. By the following July these articles had been ratified and signed by all the states except New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, and by May, 1779, Maryland was the only State that withheld her signature to the compact and expressed a determination to remain merely an "associated commonwealth" outside the pale of the formal confederacy until some satisfactory settlement should be made of what was known as the Northwestern Territory.

Maryland, perhaps more clearly than any of the other states, saw elements of danger to herself and the smaller colonies in permitting this vast territory to be attached to states already formed, thereby greatly enlarging and extending their boundaries to the west and south. Maryland demanded that these vacant western lands should be used to form new states, and until this should be agreed to refused to sign the Articles of Confederacy, even in the face of the claim of her adjoining colony, Virginia, which by the use of men and money had wrested vast stretches of the noorthwest from the British by force of arms and therefore laid claim to the conquered territory. Virginia, however, owing to the immovable determination of Maryland and for the common good, gave up her claims. Thereupon, on the first day of March, 1781, Maryland signed the Articles thereby assuring the ceding of the Northwest Territory to the general government.

This attitude was not merely captiousness on the part of Maryland, for she knew from boundary experiences with her neighbors that disputes about land engendered enmity, and while for a long time she raised her voice alone, the other states were gradually convinced of the fairness and wisdom of her stand, if any lasting nation was to be built as the fruit of the Revolution. By her insistence on the creation of a national domain she welded the most effective bond that could have been devised for a lasting union, and when peace came the thirteen states found themselves joint owners of a vast territory and their common interest in developing their joint property held them firmly together.

It is now the consensus of opinion that Maryland's foresight saved the Union and preserved it for us as a blessed inheritance.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By SCOOP--HIMSELF

Contrary to a lot of hot air talk during the past two weeks, Scoop has not received bribes to refrain from writing this column, nor has he been threatened by the members of the corn mash association, nor has he had spring fever; neither has he suffered from stillness of the brain, nor inactivity of the muscular sinews of the body. He has not, in fact, any one of these good excuses, but has to fall back on that old gag of not having the time, and he knows all the while that nobody is going to believe such a tale.

Time has been the same, but it has been put to other uses, and hence the absence of Scoop, because it is always the first thing to fall by the wayside. There isn't going to be anything in the column this week either, but this rambling is just to save 50 subscribers for The Republican, who threatened to stop the paper if it didn't appear hereafter.

* * *

By the way, that reminds me, while this thing called Time is being put to other uses, why don't the numerous subscribers to The Republican try their hand at writing a "Column" and turning them in to Scoop. Scoop, for this great favor, will promise one dollar ($1) for each column accepted for publication.

Now is the time for all those old smart-alecks who think they can write a "column" to try their luck. In fact Scoop dares anybody to try their hand at it. Between five and six hundred words are all that are necessary, and the more local material in it the better it will be. You can give anybody the razz who is good natured enough to take it, but you must sign your name to the article and take the responsibility for all libel suits.

Come on now, do your stuff.—And I'm not foolin'.

Sidelights on the Fire

Emroy Bolden nearly became suffocated in fire at Hamill's store on Tuesday. Emroy placed one of those smoke masks over his face before venturing into the cellar filled with dense smoke, and he almost suffocated before His Honor, Ex-mayor Fraley and Bill Browning loosened the thing enough so he could get some air—and smoke.

Lesson for June 15

JESUS ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 27:1-66.

GOLDEN TEXT—Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Suffering of the Cross.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Calvary.

The grand climax of the six months' lessons is reached in this one. To miss the significance of the crucifixion of Christ will be to render valueless all the preceding lessons. It is not a matter of learning the lessons taught by a great teacher or imitating the examples of a great and good man, but of apprehending the atonement made by the world's Redeemer.

I. The Place of Crucifixion, (vv. 33, 34).

They led Him away to Golgotha, a hill north of Jerusalem, resembling a skull. He was crucified "without the gate" (Heb. 13:12). At first He was compelled to bear His own cross, but when physical weakness made it impossible for Him to continue, they compelled Simon the Cyrenean to bear it for Him (v. 32). In order to strengthen Him for the ordeal before He was nailed to the cross, the soldiers offered Him a stimulant of vinegar mixed with gall. He refused the stimulant offered and consciously drank the cup of sin to its bitter dregs.

II. Gambling for the Clothing of the Lord (vv. 35, 36).

It was the custom for the soldiers who had charge of a crucifixion to receive the garments of the one crucified. We have here a fulfillment of Psalm 22:18. What sacrilege for them to gamble for His seamless robe under the very cross where He was dying!

III. The Accusation (v. 37).

It was customary to place over the victim on the cross his name and indicate his crime. This superscription was placed over Jesus by Pilate to vex the Jews. He was their King in absolute truth. They had long looked for Him and now, when He had come, this is the kind of treatment they gave Him.

IV. Two Malefactors Crucified With Him (v. 38).

We are not told who they were. Perhaps they belonged to the band of Barabbas. This was another fulfillment of Scripture (Isa. 53:12). In these three crosses we have set forth a spiritual history of the whole world.

V. The Dying Savior Reviled (vv. 39-44).

This reviling was engaged in by the passerby, the chief priests, the scribes, elders, and the malefactors who were crucified with Him.

1. "He saved others, Himself He cannot save" (v. 42).

This jest was meant to show the absurdity of Jesus' claims, but it demonstrated them and showed the reason for His suffering. He could not save Himself and others, so He chose to give Himself to save others.

2. "If he be the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross" (v. 42). His refusal to abandon the cross established His rightful claims. The devil offered Him the kingdoms of the world if He would escape the cross (Matt. 4:8-10). Through His death He came into His place of kingship over all who bow to Him.

3. "He trusted in God. Let him deliver him now" (v. 43).

His obedience unto death was the sacrifice which met God's full approval.

VI. The Death of Christ (vv. 45-50).

Who is sufficient to comment upon this tragedy! Let us contemplate it in adoration and wonder. So shocking was this crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud that the godless company could not gaze upon him. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. Upon the termination of the darkness, He cried with a loud voice, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" He became sin for the world and the world's sin hid God's face from Him. God forsook Him, turned from Him who had taken the sinner's place. God was dealing with sin on the innocent substitute. No one can understand that but God, but we can believe. When the price of sin was paid, He cried out with a loud voice, showing that He still had vitality; that His death was not from exhaustion, but by His sovereign will. He yielded up the ghost and sent away His spirit.

Kindness

Full half our holiness is shown in simple, everyday relations with our fellow men; and nine times out of ten the best immediate expression for our love of God and gratitude to Christ is found in some small kindness to our neighbor.—Isaac Edwards.

God Can Be Trusted

State at the present term of court, won a signal vietory yesterday when he succeeded in convincing a jury that his client, William Welch, indicted for forgery, was innocent of the crime charged against him. It is seldom that a forger is acquiitted as there is usually documentary evidence to prove his guilt. The prosecuting witness in the ease was Charles R. Savedge of Deer Park, who alleged that he had given Welch a check for $1.50 and that he (Welch) had raised it to $9.50. Mr. Dawson was congratulated by the members of the bar and others in the court room when the verdict was announced.

Charles Waleott and Charles Frame, West Virginians from the Clarksburg section, who came to Garrett county to carry on the business of manufacturing moonshme liquor, when arraigned on the charge Frame entered a plea of guilty and submitted the case to the Court.

John Dilly was found guilty by a jury on the charge of manufacturing and the possession of liquor. His attorney entered a motion for a new trial, which has not been argued.

Abraham Andratis, another West Virginian with moonshine manufacturing tendencics, also plead guilty to the charge of making and having in posscssion illicit liquor.

Preston Coulter entered a plea of guilty to a like charge.

George Peiadas and James Morris, West Virginians whose outfit said to be worth several thousand dollars, was recently discovered and destroyed on a farm north of Oakland, plead guilty to the indictment charging them with manufacturing and possessing liquor. The Court fined Peiadas $350 and costs of prosecution and Morris $300 and costs.

I. J. Kelly, a bad check artist, who passed such a paper on an Oakland merchant some weeks ago, entered a plea of guilty.

The case of Oscar Green, who is said to reside in or near Lonaconing, indicted on a charge of assault with intent to rape, was removed to Allegany county.

Ervin Hetrick, larceny and receiving stolen goods, entered a plea of guilty as charged in the indictment.

Aside from the cases above set forth the Court has not passed sentence upon others who were convicted.

The Tourist's Dollar

What may seem of importance to the writer of this column, may not appeal in any sense to the reader. There is one thing, however, that appeals to us all, and that is how to acquire more money, both as a community and as individuals. But none can acquire the nccessary root of all evil without effort.

We have frequently referred to the great asset which the wonderful scenery is to Garrett county. Much printers ink is being used to advertise this asset by the press of other states, in an effort to build up a profitable tourist trade, and many of them do not have natural attractions comparable to this county.

It is interesting to note the statisties given out by the U. S. Department of Commerce as to the manner in which the money spent by the tourist is proportioned. Out of each dollar, only 7 to 10 cents goes for transportation, a little more than 17 cents for lodging, more than 25 cents for retail purchases, about 20 cents for meals at restaurants, garages and accessories about 11½ cents, confectionery and incidcntals, 6 cents, and theatres and amusements, a little more than 8 cents. So, it can be seen that out of each dollar spent by tourists at least three-fourth is spent locally.

Attention to the retailers is called to these statistics, as they show that tourists spend about as much in retail stores as they do on the trains, busses or automobiles which carry them. This extra source of revenue is well worth the effort.

This effort can only be properly directed by the mass cooperation of all interested in making a business profit and can not be too long delayed. In many instances, time is the essence of the contract. So it is in community or individual effort. Nero is said to have fiddled while Rome burned.

Bread and Butter Pudding

Three slices of white bread spread thickly with butter and cut into three pieces each. Put into a buttered baking dish and sprinkle about them one-half cup of seeded raisins. Over all pour the following custard:

One and a half cups milk, 2-3 cup sugar, 3 well-beaten eggs, pinch of salt and dash of cinnamon.

Bake until set, and serve at once with hard sauce.

Six rounds bread, 3 inches in diameter, ⅓ cup grated cheese, 4 tablespoons butter melted, 3 slices cooked ham.

For each savory, dip a round of bread in melted butter and then in the grated cheese. Place plain side down on the buttered pan. Prepare another round of bread in the same way and place it on the first, plain side up, and with a slice of ham between them. Brush the top with melted butter and bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit until a delicate brown—about ten minutes. These proportions serve three. Tomato sauce may be poured over these, if desired.

ELECTRIC POWER PROJECT NEAR DAVIS IS APPROVED

Public Service Commission of West Virginia Approves Construction of Eight Dams

BLACKWATER DAM FIRST

Construction of eight of the 13 hydro-electric projects proposed by the West Virginia Power and Transmission company for development of water power on the Cheat river watershed was approved by Governor Conley and the public service commission of West Virginia on Monday.

The projects which were given the unanimous approval of Governor Conley, Chairman I Wade Coffman of the commission and Commissioners C. E. Nethken and Alex Mahood, are to be located on the main stream of the Cheat river in Preston and Monongalia counties and on the Blackwater river in Tucker county. Projects which were disapproved were proposed for Big Sandy creek, Gladys Fork, Shavers Fork and Dry Fork, tributaries of the Cheat river.

A lengthy report of their investigation of the company's application and of objections by protestants was given by the commission members and June 24 was fixed as the date for a meeting of protestants and company representatives to agree upon the form of the license.

Case Reviewed

Reviewing the entire history of the case from the filing of the company's application on December 20, 1929, through the long series of hearings which included the appearance of members of the legislature to reply to charges that the license fee of the 1929 Water Power Act was charged "surreptitiously" before its passage, the commission's held that the company had met requirements of the act in its application for the Cheat and Blackwater projects but had failed to comply with its requirements for the five projects on other streams.

Of the projects approved, four were listed in the company's report as those it planned for immediate construction at an estimated cost of $17,158,000. The commission's report said that construction of two of those projects, Blackwater storage dam, estimated cost $2,507,000, and Blackwater Power Development No. 1, estimated cost $4,037,000, both located near Davis, in Tucker county, shall be started within one year after the license is granted and completed within the succeeding three years.

Other approved projects which the commission's report said should be started and completed by order of the commission were: Blackwater Power Development No. 2, Tucker county, estimated cost $5,310,000; Beaver Hole Development, Cheat river, Monongalia and Preston counties, estimated cost $5,304,000; middle Cheat development No. 1, Preston county, no cost estimate; middle Cheat development No. 2, Preston county, no estimate; Albright development, Cheat river, Preston county, no estimate; and Erwin development, Cheat river, Preston and Tucker counties, no estimate.

Disapproved Projects

The projects which were disapproved were: Big Sandy storage development, Preston county and Fayette county, Pennsylvania; Big Sandy power development, Preston county; Glady Fork development Randolph county; Shavers Fork development, Randolph county, and the Dry Fork development, Randolph and Tucker counties.

In granting the application for the Cheat and Blackwater projects the commission held that the company's application for those projects "has met requirements of the water power act and the act makes it the duty of this commission to issue a license." It also held that "the advantages to the state and the people thereof, insofar as the project might include the development of power at the proposed sites on Blackwater river do substantially exceed the disadvantages."

Construction Work

Construction work, the commission directed, shall be started on the Blackwater river "within one year from the date of the license" and completed within the succeeding three years. The initial projects for construction are the Blackwater storage dam and the Blackwater power development No. 1, both located in Tucker county. Other developments, the commission said, shall be started and completed by order of the commission and the "failure, refusal or declination of the licensee to construct and operate any such succeeding stage or stages of said project when lawfully required so to do, shall operate to terminate, revoke, and cancel the license as to said stage or stages of development."

Herbert Burk will address the boys and girls of the party.

The sight-seers will be conducted through the largest aircraft factory in the world and will also visit the Cruiser Olympia, Dewey's flagship at the battle of Manila Bay, after which they will be taken to the Evening Bulletin building which paper has sponsored a marble tournament each year for the past eight years. In all there will be a thousand or more boys and girls in the party and in order to get this vast company of champions and their escorts to Ocean City in time for dinner Monday and ready for the tournament two special railway trains, two fleets of busses and taxicabs and a ferry will be employed.

James Ryan, Garrett county's champion, is a dandy good boy, according to Rev. Shilke, and a large group of boys and girls are expected to see him off at 8:18 Saturday evening. James, the freckle-faced mib shot, is all set to win the national championship. He says he is "going to win." He will do his best.

If he does he will not only win the title and emblem of the National Mib Shot, but will be given a free trip sailing from New York on the Panama mail liner to Haiti and Cuba and to Peutro and Colombia in South America. Rotary Anns Are Hostesses to Rotarians Thursday

At Table Rock Inn last Thursday evening at a well appointed dinner the Rotary Anns (wives and daugters of local Rotarians) were hostesses with a well chosen committee in charge who arranged for the dinner, the decorations and the program in its entirety. There were nearly sixty Rotary Anns and Rotarians who thoroughly enjoyed the dinner amid very beautiful surroundings in the dining hall of the Inn.

The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, chicken, vegetables, hot rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake, which had been prepared at the Inn and served in large portions.

A member of the committee in the person of Mrs. Delbert Davis made the address of welcome, which was responded to by President Davis of the Rotary Club. Several club songs were sung and Mr. Reeves Blandford entertained with two solos.

Following the dinner cards were played by those who desired to do so, while others danced.

At Asheville, N. C., Philip Price, formerly a Washington newspaper man, to make doubly sure, held a revolver in each hand and fired a bullet in both his right and left temple.

AWARDED VAIL MEDALS FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

Center—Gerald Taylor Mahaffey, Cleveland, gold medal; Top—Mrs. Myrtle Dorothy Dull, Elmdale, Kan., Ephraim W. Decker, Rosebank, N. Y., Miss Vivian Harper, Elba, Ala.; Bottom—James J. Roonan, Cleveland, Miss Iola Delett Gibbons, Woodbridge, N. J., and Benjamin G. Spaeth, Cleveland, silver medals.

Nine telephone employees — four women and five men — have been awarded Vail medals for courage, loyalty and devotion to duty during public disasters. The awards are made by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Gold medals have been awarded Miss Gladys I. Gibson, Cleveland, Ohio, clinic operator, and Gerald T. Mahaffey, district traffic superintendent of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company. Miss Gibson's medal award is made posthumously, she having lost her life as a result of her devotion to duty.

The citation accompanying the gold medal reads:

"While choking from the gas fumes and struggling for breath, Miss Gibson asked the local exchange operator to call ambulances and the fire and police departments, but was unable to complete her message.

"Rescuers found her lying over the switchboard in an unconscious condition, and were unable to revive her. The cords plugged into the lines throughout the building were mute evidence of her valiant effort to spread the alarm, while a few feet away a window offered a means of escape."

Mr. Mahaffey will receive in addition to the gold medal a cash award of $500. His citation in part follows:

"For conspicuous courage in saving human life, resourcefulness, initiative and devotion to duty in re-establishing and maintaining telephone service in the face of great personal danger at a time of public disaster.

"Despite danger from the poisonous gas, Mr. Mahaffey, with a dampened handkerchief over his nose and mouth, went into the bulding and carried out several victims. Then, re-entering the building, he found his way to the switchboard and operated this board until other emergency service was provided. • • •"

Other telephone employees who rendered an outstanding service aa a result of the Cleveland Clinic disaster, May 15, 1929, in which more than 120 people lost their lives, include Benjamin G. Spaeth, district plant superintendent; James J. Roonan, district installation foreman, and Walton A. Turner, Jr., district outside maintenance foreman, each of whom will receive silver medals and checks for $250.

Silver medals and checks for $250 have also been awarded Miss Iola D. Gibbons, night chief operator, the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, Woodbridge N. J.; Mrs. Myrtle D. Dull, agency chief operator, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Elmdale, Kan.; Miss Vivian Harper, operator, The Elba Telephone Company, Elba, Ala.; and Ephraim W. Decker, repairman, New York Telephone Company, Rosebank, N. Y.

Miss Gibbons maintained service at her switchboard after an explosion had wrecked the building adjoining the telephone office. Mrs. Dull and Miss Harper each operated their switchboards in the face of great personal danger and warned people of impending floods. Mrs. Dull also probably averted the serious wreck of a passenger train by notifying railroad officials of the derailment of a wreck train. Miss Harper warned people in Geneva, a nearby town, of the danger of high water and furnished State authorities with information on flood conditions. She nearly lost her life by the wrecking of the boat in which she was leaving the central office.

Repairman Decker saved the life of a boy who had fallen across the third rail and tracks of an electric railroad. Using artificial respiration methods he was able to restore breathing to the injured boy. He then took him in an ambulance to a hospital where he later recovered.

The health course inaugurated by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies for its women employees is producing excellent results. Just recently 780 women employees of the companies in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia have received graduation certificates of this health course from John C. Koons, vice-prealdent. These classes bring the total graduates in health course work to more than 3,500 employees in this area.

Employees taking the course receive training from competent inatructors under the supervision of telephone company medical advisors on general rules for the maintenance of good health, prevention of the more common kinds of illness, simple rules of nursing, what to do in case of accident, and how to render first aid.

The health course consists of lessons of one hour each, extending over a period of fifteen weeks, the only stipulation made by the company being that the employee take the course on her own time. Class rooms are provided convenient to the central offices or other places of employment and the hours are arranged suitable to the working hours of the young women.

Graduating exercises are held at the end of each course, at which the graduates are given an opportunity to display the knowledge obtained in their class work. At each of the graduation exercises plays are given by members of the class emphasizing the value of exercise as a means of keeping well, and the proper kinds of food and its preparation.

This national distinction was awarded Mr. Turnquist by the Yard and Garden Contest Association of America following the Chicagoan'a local triumph in winning first prize in the big garden contest conducted there.
